Eight Hurt As Car Hits Novato Bank

Group Is Showered By Glass

By DAVID DIETZ

A late model station wagon careened out of control in downtown Novato early today and roared through a plate glass window into a bank conference room, injuring eight employees.

Ten employees of the Bank of Marin at 1400 Grant Avenue were in the small staff room shortly before 10 a.m. when the car, which apparently had swerved to miss another auto, entered with a roar and in a shower of broken glass.

"It was just like an explosion," a bank employee said.

Bank officials said a training film was being shown tellers and secretaries in the darkened room when the auto burst through the window.

The car rammed into the cluster of bank personnel. Chairs and tables were upended. A large table was forced by the auto into a wall separating the conference room from the main part of the bank, buckling it.

The bank had not opened for business at the time of the crash and the tellers' area was deserted except for two other employees.

All the injured were taken to Novato General Hospital as at least two ambulances rushed to the scene. Two of those hurt, tellers Betty McAskill of 219 San Felipe Way, wife of former Novato Mayor Halley McAskill, and Shirley Swihart, 39, of 2360 Center Road, Novato, were admitted. Their condition was not available immediately.

The other injured were released from the hospital after treatment for bruises and fractures. They are Susan Simontacci, 22, of 1224 Kaehler Street, Novato, a secretary, treated for a bruised arm; Vella Deanne, 26, of 36 Lauren Avenue, Novato, treated for a fractured forearm; Peggy Boke, 23, of 805 Diablo Avenue, Novato, treated for multiple bruises; Melva Jones, 43, of 118 Sunnyhill Drive, Petaluma, an employee of the bank's San Rafael branch who was showing the film, treated for multiple bruises; Mary Ellen Agnew, 38, of 1360 Monte Maria, Novato, Multiple bruises, and teller Ione Lee, 51, 130 Trish Drive, Novato, injuries not given.

Witnesses said the auto, driven by Lucille McAlister, 46, manager of Sportsman Lodge on Highway 101 in Novato, emerged from a parking lot and was southbound on Fourth Street toward the intersection of Grant when it appeared to swerve to miss another car.

Police, still investigating the accident, said the driver may have touched the accelerator instead of the brake or the gas pedal may have stuck, sending the car out of control. The auto swerved wildly and smashed through the plate glass window on the Fourth side of the bank.

The scene in the room appeared as if a "bomb had

Span Board Fails In Terminal Site

Golden Gate Bridge District directors failed again today to resolve their six-months' dispute over where to put the Central Marin ferry terminal.

The two competing sites are the Hutchison Quarry property in Larkspur and the Domenic Muzzi property on Corte Madera's waterfront.

The directors, stymied by an 8-8 vote on acceptance of the Larkspur site, unanimously declared both sites acceptable and left the two property owners free to compete for the terminal land sale.

Meeting as a committee of the whole, directors also unanimously approved a plan for a $331.5 million start on a bus, rapid transit and ferry system. The plan, drafted by the district staff, is to be submitted to the state Legislature by April 3.

Advertising for a fleet of 152 buses has been held up for almost eight months pending a decision on the facility location.

The ferry terminal compromise motion by E. J. Guidotti of Sonoma County authorized the district's attorney to negotiate written options on the two properties and to report the best deal back to the board.

The motion also invited Kaiser engineers to make an offer to perform an economic study of the acquisition and development costs of the two properties. District Engineer Robert E. Shields estimated that the study would take up to two months.

Today's ferry terminal stalemate came despite recommendations by their staff and Marin's three board members favoring the proposed Larkspur site.

Both the directors and the staff argued that the Larkspur site offered better land and water access, had the advantage of already being filled, and could qualify for federal funds to dredge the channel.

The compromise was voted after more than two hours of debate and a 6-10 vote that seemingly refused acceptance of the Corte Madera site.

Director Stephen C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco led the minority favoring Corte Madera, but was unable to swing the needed votes despite his continual lobbying of directors during the meeting.

Leonoudakis argued for the Corte Madera site on the grounds that only it had enough adjacent land also to accommodate the district's bus maintenance facility.

Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum won committee approval of his proposal to hire an ecological consultant from the Bay Conservation and Development Commission. The consultant, he said, should evaluate the environmental impact of both ferry terminal sites to "avoid a lot of trouble later."

Whitney Young, Civil Rights Leader, Dies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whitney M. Young, Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, died today in Lagos, Nigeria, the State Department announced. He was 49.

A column about the Negro revolution titled "To Be Equal" by Young was published in the editorial pages of the Independent-Journal in the fall of 1964.

Officials said the moderate civil rights leader suffered a heart attack while swimming at a beach. He was in Lagos to attend a meeting of a discussion group sponsored by the African-American Association.

The association, sponsored by the Ford Foundation, brings together prominent African and American leaders for discussions.

Official sources said former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, also attending the meeting, was with Young at the beach when he died.

Young became executive director of the Urban League Oct. 1, 1961.

He was born in Kentucky and graduated from Kentucky State College in 1941. He did graduate work at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Minnesota.

Explosion Kills Pair

CAMPBELL (UPI) — The nose of a 40-millimeter antiaircraft shell exploded Wednesday, killing two young brothers who had been playing with it. Another youngster was critically injured.

Police Sergeant Ron Eddlemon said one youngster apparently tapped the trigger mechanism against a cement post, setting off an explosion that killed one youngster immediately and fatally injured another.

Those killed were Randy Owens, 10, and his brother, David, 9, the sons of John Owens.

Jonathan Martin, 7, the son of Mrs. Joyce Marlowe, suffered first and second degree burns on his hands, chest, face and eyes.

Airport Bus Drivers Out

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Maintenance employes and drivers of buses which carry 4,000 to 5,000 travelers daily between San Francisco and its airport went on strike today.

The airport bus strike at 6 a.m. occurred on the final day of the national convention of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons in San Francisco.

A Heavy Rain Is Forecast

Light, intermittent rains beginning early today brought .05 of an inch of moisture to San Rafael by noon, .02 at the Marin County Civic Center and .14 to the Bolinas area.

Forecasters said there was a 70 per cent chance the showers would continue tonight, and 90 per cent chance of rain tomorrow.

Smog Officials Sharply Split On Industry's Clean-Up Costs

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials split sharply yesterday over claims by industry that new smog controls may prove unjustified because of their high cost.

The Bay Area League of Industrial Associations has claimed that the new controls will cost at least $200 million, if not much more, just in capital costs. Annual operating costs will average 10 per cent of the capital costs, $20 million or more, according to the league's estimate.

The new controls were adopted by Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors in November, but the issue — which will bear on upcoming proposals for even tougher controls — erupted again yesterday in the executive committee of the regional board's advisory council.

William B. McCormick of San Francisco, an architect, urged the council to make its decisions without considering a cost-benefit ratio. Such a ratio, he argued, should be left to the "political judgment" of the regional board.

Industry has "huge accounting departments," McCormick declared, "and if you get sucked into that game, that's the basis the regulations will be decided on. You'll get so lost in the figures game that you can't win."

Differing with McCormick was Joseph D. Coons of San Rafael, a consulting engineer. Coons insisted that the regional board has "got to be concerned to some extent with costs." He suggested that future recommendations by the council be linked to precise cost-benefit ratios so that the board would know how much control it would get for each dollar of new control equipment.

The district's chief administrative office, D. J. Callaghan, pointed out that industry will face continued new regulations, regardless of any cost-benefit ratios. Ever tighter state limits on air contaminants, he said, "means we're down to that area where we're squeezing, squeezing."

The executive committee reached no decision on the issue.

FRIDAY NIGHT OPENINGS AND A BIG SALE

A "Moonlight Sale" tomorrow by downtown San Rafael merchants will inaugurate regular Friday night openings of stores, Walter E. Zurcher of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce has announced.

Some stores have stayed open on Wednesdays, some on Fridays and some both nights. However, the Downtown San Rafael Merchants Committee of the chamber, has won endorsement of merchants for the Friday night openings, said Zurcher, committee chairman.

Friday will now be the official opening night but some stores may wish to remain open other nights also, he said.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

'Lady' Marshalls

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Several lady sky marshals, packing pistols and trained in karate and judo, soon will be taking their places beside the men assigned to guard against airplane hijackings in the United States, it was learned today.

U.S. Customs Bureau sources confirmed that "several ladies" had been accepted for the program and will soon start the arduous four-week training course at Ft. Belvoir, Va. They will learn expert marksmenship and agility in hand-to-hand combat.

Whether they actually will be used aboard planes has yet to be determined, the sources said.

The sky marshal force is almost at its authorized strength of 2,000. Lt. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis Jr., director of civil aviation security at the Federal Aviation Administration, said recently there would be 1,400 marshals in the air at all times once the program is completed.

Harper's Crisis

NEW YORK (UPI)—The managing editor and four contributing editors of Harper's magazine resigned Wednesday in a financial dispute with the magazine's owners. Harper's editor Willie Morris resigned last week.

Publisher William S. Blair, who announced the resignations, said a new managing editor would be appointed "in due course."

The resignations were submitted by managing editor Robert Kotlowitz and contributing editors David Halberstam, Larry L. King, John Corry and Marshall Frady following a Tuesday night meeting with John Cowles, chairman of the magazine's board.

The dispute at Harper's, one of the oldest and most respected monthly literary magazines in the country, was apparently over financial problems. The magazine reportedly has been losing circulation and Morris in his resignation said it was a dispute between "money people and literary people."

Continue Strike

MOSCOW (UPI)—A dwindling group of protesting Jews today returned to a Soviet parliamentary building for the second day of a hunger strike for the right to leave Russia for Israel. Police did not interfere.

Jewish sources said 16 of the 110 Jews who occupied the reception hall of the Supreme Soviet (parliament) Wednesday returned there today. They said the others continued their fast but did not go to the reception hall across the street from the Kremlin.

The 110 Jews who began the strike Wednesday were driven from the darkened hall last night by squads of uniformed and plainclothes police. Today officers stood at the door and barred foreign journalists. They did not interfere with the 16 strikers inside.

Big Four Call

By United Press International

Egypt called today for the Big Four powers to use their incluence to get Israel to agree to withdraw from all Arab territories captured during the 1967 Middle East war.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said this request was conveyed to the representatives of Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union in Cairo and New York.

The newspaper said the Big Four should concentrate on getting Israel's written commitment to withdraw rather than discussing peace guarantees or a renewal of the cease-fire at this time.

There has been no fighting along the Suez Canal despite the end of the formal cease-fire Sunday night.

Professor Urges Study Of Indians

NEW YORK (UPI)—Once ignored, the American Indian is now a proper subject of study, according to Dr. Lloyd Melis, professor of special education at Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis.

"And, as is the case with many other minority groups, the more we know about the Indian, the more we can understand his basic needs which must be met to bring him into the mainstream of contemporary life," Melis said.

Agreement On Lending Act

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) said today it was provisionally accepting a consent order under which Bell & Howell Co., Chicago, agreed not to violate the Truth in Lending Act.

The agreement followed an FTC complaint charging a Bell & Howell division, the Robert Maxwell Co., with failing to list credit terms in its advertisements for motion picture equipment.

Attack On Heroin

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said today the Nixon administration would rather maintain military ties with countries that illegally supply heroin to the United States than solve America's drug problem.

Church introduced an amendment to the foreign aid bill which would cut off aid to countries that did not try to control their drug traffic.

He cited Turkey as being the biggest supplier of heroin to the United States and as having the most lax rules against its drug exports.

In a speech prepared for the Senate, Church said, "the executive branch apparently continues to place greater weight on Turkey's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization alliance than it does on the drug epidemic preying upon our own youngsters."

Bulk Mail Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Winton M. Blount announced today a nearly $1 billion project for the Army Corps of Engineers to build 33 bulk mail handling facilities across the nation.

Blount also told the House Post Office Committee the present one-year residency requirement for appointment as postmaster in major cities will be eliminated.

He said he hopes the building program of 21 major facilities and 12 "satellite" units will be completed before June 30, 1975.

PUC Is Under Attack Over Rate Increases

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Public Utilities Commission is under fire for allegedly softening its consumer protection philosophy since Gov. Ronald Reagan began appointing its members.

The attack came Wednesday from the California Journal which said there was "clear evidence' that the PUC's posture on handling rate increase requests was changing in favor of the utilities.

The Journal, a monthly digest of state government and politics, reported that in 1969 and 1970 the commission granted 70 per cent of all rate hike applications.

These included, the publication said, $96 million in gas rates, $46.5 million in electric rates, $3 million in water rates and $18.5 million in communication rates.

Surprise Demotions Bounce School Bosses Back To Class

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Back-to-back-classroom demotions of school administrators—whose numbers have long been growing—have unexpectedly developed in California this week on a mass basis.

San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, San Diego and some smaller communities all have moved since Monday to drastically cut back their higher paid officials.

In San Francisco, 125 persons were given formal notice of demotion. They included assistant superintendents, principals, deans and citywide directors of sundry projects and departments.

At the same time Berkeley reassigned 106 middle-level administrators. Oakland planned reassignment of 30 and San Diego 52.

In San Francisco, shock among the administrators prompted talk of their joining the Teamsters Union. Administrator associations threatened lawsuits.

San Francisco, having a unique seniority system for administrators, faced a domino effect in which downtown administrators will bounce principals back to assistant principals, and assistants back to the classroom.

In each city, the reason for the demotions was an impending deficit in the face of a taxpayer revolt and cutbacks in federal-state aid. The San Francisco demotions were intended to save $1.5 million.

What inspired so many cities to act at the same time was a state law requiring notification of demoted administrators by March 15.

The San Francisco situation was complicated by a decision not to demote racial minority administrators.

3 Soldiers Executed By Irish Terrorists

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Six gunmen police believe to be members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) "executed" three British soldiers Wednesday night after drinking beer with them in a Belfast pub. IRA spokesmen today denied their organization had anything to do with the killings.

The three soldiers, two of them teen-age brothers, were shot in the back of the head — the normal method used by the IRA to execute its enemies. The triple killing brought to six the number of British soldiers slain this year. The troops are being used to try to bring law and order to Northern Ireland's battling Protestant majority and Roman Catholic minority.

What happened was pieced together from a number of reports.

The three soldiers —Fusilier John McCaig, 17, his brother Joseph, 18, both from Ayr, Scotland, and Fusilier Donald McCaughey, 23, from Glasgow —took advantage of a quiet night to go out for a drink. Wearing civilian clothes, they choose the quiet area of Ligoniel, a suburb about four miles from the city center.

They stopped at the Glen Inn pub on Ligoniel Road and had a pint of beer. The pub was crowded and they became involved in a conversation with six men. Shortly afterwards they left with the men, supposedly bound for the Squires Hill Tavern just down the road.

Six shots were fired, with each soldier getting at least one bullet in the back of the head. The bodies were piled atop one another in a ditch littered with beer bottles and the gunmen fled in a yellow car. Shortly afterwards, two schoolchildren saw the bodies and summoned a man, who called police.

An Army spokesman said "it is callous and cold-blooded murder. They just gunned the three troopers down and left them here in a heap, one atop the other." Another officer, clenching his fist in anger, said "they were deliberately murdered. It was an ambush. The men were lured to their deaths and then shot. Obviously, they never had a chance."

Both army and police sources said they were convinced the killings were carried out by the IRA.

The IRA, which is outlawed in the Irish Republic to the south as well as in this British province, has as its chief aim the driving out of British authority and the uniting of Northern Ireland with the Republic, by force if necessary.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

'Inside Track' For Space Shuttle Bid

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke says the Reagan administration's "personal contacts" in Washington give this state a boost over others in winning the federal space shuttle program for Southern California.

independent committee promoting California as the launching and landing site for the project, told a news conference Wednesday California's lobby effort will be "based on facts and not emotional or political pressure."

He said the state administration has "personal contacts" in the White House and Congress, adding, "We feel we can open the right doors to make sure these presentations are made at the right level."

The lieutenant governor discussed the space shuttle program with newsmen after a couple of citizens working to secure the project for California met with Gov. Ronald Reagan for an hour. Reinecke declared the governor was "totally committed" to the effort.

He and James A. Cook, executive director of the newly formed private California Space Shuttle Task Force, brushed aside fears that California might have joined the race for the program too late and with insufficient funds.

Other competing states, such as New Mexico and Florida, have spent tax funds in the lobbying effort to attract the estimated $10 billion program to their states, Cook said.

Cook, noting that California's prime sites are Edwards and Vandenberg Air Force bases, estimated the program would employ up to 85,000 Californians during its 10-year development period.

The two men said the effort to convince Washington that California is the correct site would be financed by contributions from the aerospace industry itself and involved no direct public funds.

PORT OBJECTION

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— San Francisco port commissioners have voted unanimously to oppose Assembly bills which would limit the height of waterfront buildings and require housing for the poor.

Both the bills objected to in a resolution Wednesday were introduced by Sen. John Burton, D-San Francisco.

One would prohibit any structure more than 200 feet high on the waterfront. The other would require that not less than 30 per cent of any housing constructed on port-owned land be for low-income groups.

The Port Commission's resolution declared they would "usurp ... functions which more properly belong to the orderly planning procedures of the city of San Francisco ... functions which should not be dictated by the Legislature of the State of California."

'NO FAULT' HIT

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation setting up "no fault" automobile insurance in California has been introduced with trial lawyers complaining it would "rob innocent victims."

The measure by Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, would establish a program similar to one in Massachusetts.

Under the bill, all medical expenses and property loss resulting from an accident are paid by the injured person's own insurance company.

But the California Trial Lawyers Association opposed the program saying it would "rob innocent victims of their rights against wrongdoers."

CTLA President William H. Lally said the insurance would "neither produce any long-range reductions in average overall rates nor will it reduce congestion on court calendars."

OFF-HOURS FEE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —It will cost up to $2 more to obtain a marriage license outside the normal business hours under terms of a bill by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose.

McAlister Wednesday introduced a bill authorizing county boards of supervisors to set an extra fee, not to exceed $2, for issuance of a marriage license outside of the county clerk's normal business hours of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The extra money would be in addition to the regular $6 fee.

MISS IRELAND — Dominican College freshman Jane Marie McCabe of San Francisco, chosen as Miss Ireland of California by the Irish Society of San Francisco, will be Miss Shamrock in the St. Patrick's Day parade Sunday. She will go to Ireland this summer to compete for the title of Rose of Tralee.

$9,000 In Boyle Park Work Urged

The Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission has decided to request the city council to approve more than $9,000 in capital improvements for facilities at Boyle Park.

Parks and Recreation Director Don L. Dimitratos said the commission Monday asked the council to appropriate $7,000 to resurface three tennis courts and $2,000 to install play equipment, such as slides and swings.

Also requested were funds to repair erosion in the park, caused by Warner Creek, Dimitratos said. The requests will be considered by the council during discussions of the 1971-72 budget.

Commissioners also decided that separate bond issues to build a swimming pool and two more tennis courts at Boyle Park should be put to voters, instead of a combined issue.

Dimitratos said commissioners agreed to meet Saturday at 1 p.m. in the recreation center parking lot to examine sites for the proposed pool. Mentioned are sites at the middle school, the city's small craft harbor and Boyle Park.

New Funds For Crime Fighters

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —An additional $612,604 in federal funds has been granted to a newly created organized crime unit in the state Justice Department, the Council on Criminal Justice said yesterday.

It said the funds, made available under the Omnibus Crime Control Act, bring to more than $1 million the amount of federal money allocated to the unit.

The project consists of the state attorney general's office providing a pool of manpower and special investigative equipment for local police agencies which need help in investigating organized crime.

struck," according to a witness.

Said Mrs. Jones: "I had just started talking. I didn't see it coming. Chairs and tables were thrown all over us."

Bank manager Glenn Tovani, also in the room, said, "I was sitting there and the next thing I knew, a car was in my lap."

Tovani and the 10th person in the room, William Thompson, from the personnel office of the San Rafael branch, escaped injury.

"It was just like an explosion," said assistant cashier Kenneth B. Howard, who was in the main part of the bank. "At first I thought the roof had caved in."

After calling police, Howard dashed across the street to the Novato Medical Clinic at 1324 Grant Avenue and alerted a nurse, Joan Bremner.

"There was glass everywhere," Mrs. Bremner said. "Two women were lying on a table. Another woman was walking around in a daze. I took her to the rest room and sat her down. There were two men in the room walking around in a daze."

The injured were accompanied in the ambulances to the hospital by doctors and nurses from the nearby clinic.

Bank of Marin dispatched other employees from its Petaluma and San Rafael offices in order to keep the Novato branch operating.

Former Chief Of Hospital To New Post

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Arthur G. Burns, the last manager of San Rafael General Hospital, is serving as administrator of the Sacramento Medical Foundation Blood Bank.

It is the 10th executive job in the health field for the 54-year-old former hospital administrator.

Burns became administrator of the San Rafael hospital in 1963, but the facility closed three years later. He then headed the hospital's foundation while it looked for a new site, but left in 1967.

He had been executive director of the Hospital Planning Council for Sacramento, Yolo and Placer counties before taking the blood bank post.

Crash Leads To Hepatitis Immunizations

A noon-hour, two-car collision in Fairfax yesterday hospitalized a San Rafael motorist and resulted in policemen, firemen and others who helped the driver receiving immunization shots against infectious hepatitis, Fairfax police said today.

The injured man was Michael Harris, 20, of 44 Loch Ness Lane, San Rafael. Marin General Hospital said he was in good condition today, with a concussion and a scraped knee.

His auto and one driven by Michelle Dathe of Fairfax collided head-on on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard while Harris was making a left turn onto Pacheco Avenue.

Police said Harris appeared to be ill, and they later learned he was suffering from hepatitis. Two officers, two firemen and ambulance attendents were given immunizations, police said.

Police Dog Finds Suspect

Everett Carl Albro, 50, of no known address, was arrested at 1 a.m. today in Petaluma on suspicion of burglary.

Police said they received a report of a burglar inside Friedman Brothers Hardware, 17 East Washington Street. Arko, the department police dog, accompanied officers into the building and reportedly cornered Albro. Officers said he had $17 in change that had been taken from the counter.

Albro was booked into the jail for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Hub Council, School Board Sets Session

A joint meeting of the San Anselmo City Council and school district board will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. at city hall to continue discussion on use of the district's community service tax funds.

The two bodies will consider use of the funds as a means of reimbursing the city for recreation programs extended to non-residents — mainly Sleepy Hollow residents.

Other matters for discussion include an agreement to permit use of funds of one agency to be used to construct facilities on the property of the other, proposed school district improvements to Memorial Park and discussion of joint use of the Isabel Cook School Site.

Merger Off By Airlines

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)— Northwest Airlines has canceled plans to acquire Northeast Airlines because of Civil Aeronautics Board ruling prohibiting the merged company from operating a Miami to Los Angeles route.

Northwest said Wednesday the CAB's Dec. 31 order would "adversely and materially" affect the merged corporation.

The CAB had granted the flight to Northwest to boost its failing financial condition but said it should be awarded to another airline if the proposed merger went through.

Northwest had announced plans for the takeover 15 months ago.

Police Hit Mail Order Pornography

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Police, who said Wednesday they were attacking the biggest mail order distributor of pornography in Northern California, arrested a bookstore owner and his clerk.

Those arrested at the Gay Parisian bookstore at 30 Sheridan St. are owner Roland Boudreault, 39, and clerk Noe Petersilie, 32, both of San Francisco.

Five boxes of material were confiscated as evidence.

Part Of UBAC Aid Restored

United Bay Area Crusade directors yesterday restored part of its allocation to Marin Aid Retarded Children, previously cut out of UBAC funding when UBAC decided to make a greater contribution to the urban poor and those afflicted with problems as a result of color or ethnic background.

The Marin Agency for the retarded, which received $6,000 last year, will receive $3,000 this year and nothing in the future UBAC directors announced.

Still pending is an appeal by St. Vincent's School for Boys in San Rafael, which received $46,000 last year.

The partial reallotment of money was part of an areawide restoration of $201,550 to 19 of 72 agencies previously cut out.

68 Cases Of Strep Reported

Strep infections with 68 cases reported last week, led all other communicable diseases reported in Marin County, said Dr. Carolyn Albrecht, Marin County health officer.

There were 13 cases of rubella, or German measles, reported in the county. All but one of these had not received the immunization, Dr. Albrecht said. This was an 11-year-old West Marin child who received the vaccine 10 days prior to getting the disease. It take the vaccine six weeks to become effective, according to Dr. Albrecht.

Other diseases reported were 34 cases of gonorrhea, seven of infectious hepatitis, two of syphillis, one of tuberculosis and one of salmonella.

Nonsmoking Areas Backed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —The State Senate unanimously approved a bill Wednesday requiring airlines, railroads and bus lines to provide designated seating areas for nonsmokers.

The measure by Sen. James R. Mills, who is allergic to tobacco smoke, was sent to the assembly where similar legislation was defeated last year.

Mills said it was "an unpleasant thing for people who don't smoke" to sit next to someone on a public conveyance who puffs away at a cigar, cigarette or pipe.

Winter Harvest Potatoes Decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Agriculture Department today estimated production of winter-harvest potatoes at 3,170,000 hundredweight, down 12 per cent from last year's crop.

Cold and dry weather in Florida reduced Florida prospects to 1,437,000 hundredweight. The California portion of the crop was estimated at 1,633,000 hundredweight, unchanged from a month ago but 16 per cent below last year.

Low Bid Too High For Center

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The lowest bid opened Wednesday for construction of a new 750-bed medical center was $2.5 million more than set aside for it in city, state and federal funds.

The low bid of $31,580,000 was by Perini Corporation of San Francisco.

It's Reassignment Time At Two Rock Base

By BONNIE BARD

Thoughts were on an uncertain future this week as Two Rock Ranch Army Station near Petaluma settled down to the news the post will close June 30.

The post, ordered shut in a Defense Department economy move, went about its daily routine, but it has been a time filled with anxiety for many of its workers.

The job of reassigning many of the 581 civilian and military personnel has begun.

For the 500 military workers at Two Rock, thoughts were on a new post. Many of the soldiers are veteran career men who can bid for certain assignments, but others have no voice and will go where they are needed.

While the military personnel are guaranteed a new job, however, the future is not as clear for the 81 civilian workers still at the post. (Two have quit to take other jobs since Thursday's announcement the post will be closed.)

And this week, Roy G. Ledbetter, cheif recruiter and placement officer for the U.S. Security Agency, arrived at the post to begin the tedious task of attempting to place civilian employees who wish to continue working for the Defense Department.

Ledbetter was dispatched from the headquarters at Arlington Hill Station, Va.

"We have to play everything by ear," Ledbetter said. With other military installations also closing or cutting back, it will be difficult to place the employees, he said.

"We're also closing many operations overseas in connection with deescalation of the war, so we also have all those people to place," he said.

Ledbetter and Col. Joseph Richards, Two Rock's commanding officer, met with the post's civilian work force yesterday and announced interviews for other jobs would be held during the next two weeks. "I'm telling them to bring their spouses, too," Ledbetter said, knowing the effects of any change will be felt by the entire family.

He said all federal agencies in the Bay Area would be notified for possible openings, since he's found that most of the civilians don't want to move too far away. Ledbetter said, however, there were fears other local installations would face the economy ax.

"We have a real good group of people out here," he said, gazing over the rolling countryside west of Petaluma. "They have good educational backgrounds and have undergone heavy security checks, so you know they're good, trustworthy people."

(The post is part of the Army communications network that relays and receives classified messages from around the world.)

Ledbetter said local chambers of commerce, businesses and industries would also be notified about hiring Two Rock employees. He said he wasn't depending too heavily on the private sector since the unemployment rate is 7 per cent in Sonoma County.

"We'll be beating all the bushes to see what we can come up with," he said.

Many of the civilians are retired military personnel who are accustomed to moving and have said they would be willing to relocate to the East Coast to continue in their particular jobs.

Others are less fortunate and are what Ledbetter calls on "accepted status." These employees were hired for particular security jobs at the post without competititive testing. While they hold a specific Civil Service rank, they would have to go through testing procedures in order to qualify for other types of jobs.

In mass meeting Tuesday with employees, Ledbetter explained the government would pay moving expenses for employees who chose to relocate, and spelled out the severance pay procedure for those who do not wish to remain in government employment.

Ledbetter said he expected many of the civilians who are eligible for retirement would do so. While anyone with 25 years service is eligible for retirement at age 50, the benefits vary with length of service and rank.

He said the government would continue life insurance benefits at no further cost to the retiree and would also permit them to continue medical coverage with the federal government paying at least 38 per cent of the cost.

Leafing through a large stack of personnel folders in preparation for the interviews, Ledbetter was going about his task enthusiastically, but with a clear understanding of what hardships the relocation process can bring to families.

"When I was working down south as a personnel officer, I had to sign my own letter telling me I was out of a job," he said. Meanwhile, telephones were busy at the post as career soldiers renewed friendships on other posts in hope of finding openings that would not take them too far from the Bay Area.

Unexpected Ally In Channel Fight

By GEORGE NEVIN

Mill Valley citizens, declaring their opposition last night to a concrete flood control channel in Arroyo Corte Madera del Presidio, found a staunch ally — the Army Corps of Engineers.

Col. Charles R. Roberts, head of the corps' San Francisco region office, told about 150 residents at a public hearing that "we want to give you what you want."

"I would be very disappointed," he said, "if we had to build a concrete channel, and I don't think we will."

The position marks a switch from former corps policy. In 1965 the agency proposed such a channel to control winter floods, but the plan was shot down by Mill Valley officials two years later.

The corps is starting all over again, Roberts said last night, and hopes to come up with a plan that will both protect the environment and reduce floods.

Roberts said the corps is anxious to work with a citizens committee appointed by Mill Valley Mayor George E. Wickham to come up with many possible alternatives.

The most feasible of these, he said, will be presented to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which will choose one.

If that plan is confirmed by Washington, Roberts said, funds could be appropriated by Congress in 1974 but construction could not be finished until 1977 at the earliest.

Seven speakers out of about 18 at last night's hearing opposed a concrete channel even though Roberts said one was unlikely.

"Concrete is a terrible thing," said Norman Ash, who identified himself as a surveyor who has worked on many Marin creeks. "It would just mean more Los Angeles."

L. F. Frasson, of 251 Miller Avenue, echoed oppostion to a concrete channel and urged consideration of diverting part of the creek's waters through an enclosed culvert.

Such a plan, studied by the corps and also suggested by Mill Valley City Engineer Stanley M. Bala, would feature a culvert under Miller Avenue from Millwood Street to Richardson Bay to divert potential floodwaters from the creek, thus allowing it to remain natural.

Others supporting a bypass were councilman Jerome C. Hauke, a member of the citizens committee, and Dr. Earl S. Johnson, who has a creekside office at 10 Millwood Street.

Strong opposition to the Bala plan, however, came from Rev. Jack Bartlett, of 17 Plymouth Avenue, because the proposal suggests removing 18 Plymouth Avenue residences for a dirt streambed and Creekside Park.

"No one should have to lose his home," he said. "It's a cruel hoax to tell people, 'We're sorry but you have to move.' We need an imaginative plan that will allow people to keep their houses."

Roberts concluded the hearing with assurance the audience's comments would be considered by the corps and the citizens committee.

Further hearings will be held when supervisors consider the plans and when one is chosen, he said.

They will receive $100 for first place; $50 for second and $25 for third, Marshall said.

Burglary Counts Off

Burglary charges against two Marin City men were dismissed yesterday in Marin Superior Court after the two pleaded guilty to reduced charges.

Daniel Patrick Smith, 22, was placed on probation for six months and sentenced to two days in jail by Judge Thomas F. Keating after Smith pleaded guilty to malicious mischief.

Kelly Sanford Walter, 21, was fined $15 and placed on probation for 30 days after pleading guilty to violating a Sausalito ordinance prohibiting littering.

The two had been charged with burglarizing a locker at the Sausalito Yacht Harbor in September.

Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony said yesterday the facts of the case indicated Walter's only crime was to answer a call of nature at the yacht harbor.

Area North Of Los Angeles The Next Big Quake Center?

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The next major earthquake along California's San Andreas Fault is more likely to occur north of Los Angeles, rather than in the San Francisco area, a noted seismologist said Thursday.

Dr. Clarence R. Allen, head of Caltech's Seismological Laboratory, spoke to newsmen following an appearance before the county Earthquake Commission.

"We can't point out where along the whole length of the San Andreas Fault it's likely to break, although my guess is the southern part of the fault, north of Los Angeles, is more apt to go than is the segment north of San Francisco," Allen said.

"But whether that happens next year or 50 years from now —I don't know. Nor does anyone else."

Seismologists believe the San Andreas Fault, which runs the length of the state, is due for a major shift within the next half century.

Allen told the earthquake commission that civil authorities should be more prepared to cope with future major quakes than they were for the last one Feb. 9.

"There are things we should have done, but didn't, to prepare for the earthquake," he said. "But the problem now is not so much what we should have done ... but what we can do at this stage of the game to prepare for the next earthquake."

Allen did not elaborate, but a special report last week by the county Health Department said there were many foulups in communications between government agencies, especially in evacuations and disaster assistance.

Marinites Invited To Transportation Session

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors and nine Marin County mayors have been invited to participate in a daylong, federally sponsored transportation meeting here March 22.

The session will be kickoff for the National Transportation Planning Study, according to Brian R. Van Camp, acting secretary of the state Business and Transportation Agency. Gov. Ronald Reagan later will submit the California portion of the study to the federal Department of Transportation, Van Camp said.

Louis H. Baar, chairman of the Marin County board, and mayors of all the cities except Ross and Belvedere have been invited to discuss their local transportation needs and future financing. Cities with less than 5,000 population were not included in the meeting, Van Camp explained.

Septic Tanks 'Must Conform'

Residents of rural areas can no longer merely repair faulty septic tanks, but must modernize them, John Barrows, assistant county administrator told the West Coast Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, said Secretary Ada Kendel.

Barrows told the chamber members that people with faulty septic tanks in the future would be required to remodel them to conform to new regulations for larger tanks and leaching fields, she reported. He suggested that where possible, 10 or 12 households should get together to install their own sewer system, she said.

William Desmond of the county health and sanitation department, told the group that it was now proposed to make annual inspections of all septic tanks. This would require a larger staff and probably a $20 inspection fee, she said.

Short Prison Term In Forgery Case

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Janice Long, 21-year-old Sausalito blonde who claimed to have forged more than $50,000 worth of checks in four months, has been sentenced to state prison.

Judge Walter Calcagno of San Francisco County Superior Court Tuesday ordered that Miss Long's sentences on counts of forgery, passing bad checks and forging the seal of the Bank of America run concurrently.

She had earlier pleaded guilty.

He also sentenced under the "youthful offender" section of the penal code which will give her a minimum six-month term. The section applies to persons under 23 years old.

It had earlier been determined that Miss Long, who once told an interviewer she liked to sniff cocaine after a day of check forging, was not a narcotics addict.

SAN QUENTIN WEAPONS UNCOVERED

The variety of weaponry found in the continuing inmate lock-up and search at San Quentin ranges from sharpened ladle handles (upper left) through "shanks" — knives made from steel bedspring material and scrap metal from the shops. Assoc. Warden James W. L. Park said today 40 weapons have been found in the cell blocks searched since five prisoners were stabbed Monday and Tuesday. The hunt today moved to prison shops. The north and west cell blocks returned to fairly normal routine, Park said. (Independent-Journal photo)

Track Boss In Surprise Guilty Plea

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A millionaire race track operator who got his start as a shoeshine boy pleaded guilty Wednesday to income tax evasion in the "skimming" of $1.3 million from betting receipts.

John S. Alessio, 59, who runs tracks and bookmaking operations in three Mexican border towns, and his brother, Angelo, 53, entered surprise guilty pleas during the second week of their federal court trials.

U.S. District Judge Bruce R. Thompson, who set sentencing for April 13, indicated charges against three other members of the family will be dismissed.

The brothers pleaded guilty to one count each of conspiracy to defraud the U.S. government by obstructing collection of income tax and one count each of evading income tax.

Five Alessio family members were charged last year with failure to report $1,286,476 in income and evading $929,394 in taxes by "skimming" betting receipts at the Caliente race track in Tijuana, Mexico, between 1963 and 1966. They went on trial March 1.

The change in pleas came one day after the former business manager of the Alessio operations on both sides of the border told of skimming from the 5-10 handicapping pool and foreign bookmaking operations at Caliente.

Robin Mansfield, who was granted immunity from prosecution, said they juggled books so the full amounts betted were not reported and "additional" winning 5-10 tickets were shown.

"Skimming" is a term applied to tax cheating in gambling operations. The professional gamblers, in this case legal bookmakers and track operators, "skim" some of their winnings off the top before reporting the totals.

The attorney for race track employes at Tijuana said there was no cheating of bettors, as union ticket sellers and machines handled the bets. However, Jose Maria Gutierrez said, the operators kept their bookkeeping practices confidential and employes couldn't comment on them.

$25,328 Refund In Sewer Project

The Ross Valley Sanitary District board last night authorized a $25,328 refund to property owners in Fairfax's Forrest Avenue sewer assessment district.

Ralph C. Noah, district manager, said today the refund is for cost savings from the $158,000 project which voters approved in 1968.

He said the refund will total about $210 to each of the special district's 124 assessments which averaged about $1,500 each three years ago.

The refunds will be credited to taxes of those paying on district bonds, he said, adding cash refunds will be given those who paid cash for the sewer system.

"The district has the right to retain the excess funds for maintenance," Noah said, "but the board chose to refund the money."

The board last night also authorized the district staff to apply for a federal grant totaling $1,250,000 for its proposed sewer line and pumping station which will run from the Ross-San Anselmo boundary to the treatment plant in Greenbrae, Noah said.

Crewmen Held In Pot Probe

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —Thirty crewmen of the Navy destroyer USS James E. Kyes have been detained at the Naval Station here for disciplinary action and possible courts-martial resulting from marijuana use aboard ship.

A Navy spokesman said Wednesday an investigation was held during the weekend when a sailor told an executive officer he wanted to get out of the Navy "because there is too much pot smoking going on aboard."

The ship was scheduled to sail for the western Pacific today with its complement of men replenished from other ships. The vessel carries a crew of 263.

Ross Tycoon Leads City Tax Revolt

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Jeremy Ets-Hokin of Ross, whose San Francisco property holdings are said to be worth $2 million, has launched a taxpayers' revolt.

Ets-Hoken, denouncing the redevelopment agency, department of social services and the school system as "bureaucratic tyrants," said yesterday he hoped 10,000 San Franciscans would refuse to pay their taxes this year.

Ets-Hokin, who announced in December he would refuse to pay most of the taxes on his property, urged residents to sign a petition limiting the San Francisco property tax rate to $8 per $100 of assessed valuation (it is now $12.82) and another one to abolish the redevelopment agency.

Ets-Hokin lives on Canyon Road in Ross.

Teens Have Some New Rec Ideas

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission heard last night that youths are generally satisfied with the recreational program, but also heard suggestions for improvements.

Gary Ramatici, a student representative on the commission, said he found his fellow students at St. Vincent's High School to be generally satisfied. He said students did suggest, however, that the commission look into bicycle paths for recreation and safety; a summer basketball program; the opening of a school gymnasium one or two nights a week and sponsorship of an open rock concert this summer.

Recreation Director Richard W. Shollenberger said he would immediately look into the bicycle paths and basketball program, but said the commission will need further study on the open gymnasiums and rock concert suggestions.

Shollenberger also reported that the baseball diamond has been completed at La Tercera Park

Bureaucratic Fight Described At Inquiry

A secretary for the Marin County Human Rights Department told yesterday of persistent squabbling between members of the human rights commission and attorney Bella H. Aaron, head of the county's police-community relations program.

The employee, Anne Smith, testified before a special fact-finding committee looking into reasons why the commission severed relations with Mrs. Aaron's program. which formerly had been under its wing.

The commission broke ties with the program after complaining Mrs. Aaron was running it unilaterally without required commission guidance.

Mrs. Smith told the special committee, which convened hearings yesterday at the Civic Center, that the bickering became so heated that the human rights department, which had been using the same office as Mrs. Aaron's program, moved into new quarters.

Mrs. Smith also charged that Mrs. Aaron threatened her with retaliation when she attempted to transfer from the police-community relations staff back into the human rights department, where she had been previously. The secretary complained she was forced to resign and be rehired in order to make the transfer, taking a pay cut as a result.

Maren Rinne, county personnel officer, testified the pay cut was necessary because the position in the human rights department called for a lower pay.

Kentfield To Get New Pumper

The Kentfield Fire District board last night accepted the $67,822 bid from an Oakdale firm for a new 15,000 gallons per minute pumper.

Chief Kenneth T. Kamp said today the bid was awarded to P. E. Van Pelt Co. of Oakdale despite a lower bid from a New York firm.

He said Board La France Truck Corp.'s bid of $57,970 did not meet district specifications and was rejected.

Vote To Computerize Water Bills

The Petaluma Water Commission yesterday voted to support a proposal to computerize the city water billing department.

Secretary Kay Hagan said the commission voted 4-1 to recommend that the city council lease an IBM systems three computer. Commissioner Robert Pope cast the dissenting vote.

Under the plan, the water department would pay $7,000 toward the estimated first year cost of $19,000. The remaining $12,000 would come from the city general fund.

SONOMA STATE

Small Show At Protest To Budget

By BONNIE BARD

Sonoma State College students gathered yesterday to protest budget cuts for education and welfare, but the convocation may be remembered as one of the dullest in the college's history.

Protest organizers, numbering about 12, opened the rally in front of the Commons with a call for a boycott of classes. Fewer than 200 of the college's 4,200 students, most of them noticably indifferent, gathered on the lawn. Class attendance was not apparently affected.

The organizers spoke fervently against Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed budget cuts, but evoked little response from the gathering. When the microphone was opened to anyone who wished to speak, no one came forward and organizers tried to fill in the embarrassing gaps.

"Don't you people give a damn?" an unidentified organizer shouted. There was no response. "I guess we're just burned out when it comes to political issues," the following speaker said.

Students stretched on the grass, played with dogs and children and showed little interest in the subject under discussion.

Organizers unsuccessfully began spreading a rumor that a rock band would soon appear to enliven the proceedings.

Unable to hold the group's attention on the budget issues, speakers turned to broader issues, condemning the war in Indochina and urging the release of "political prisoners" Angela Davis, Bobby Seale and others.

Students distributed literature attacking the budget cut plan. "Budget cuts, welfare cuts, money for war, it all amounts to the same thing," one of the leaflets said. "The rich get richer, the poor get poorer and anyone who doesn't like it can go to jail."

Also distributed was a memorandum from Vice President James B. Enochs which said the main effect of the budget for Sonoma State would be larger class sizes since 500 additional students will be enrolled in the fall with only one additional teaching position provided.

He said faculty members will still teach the equivalent of 12 units per semester, but to larger classes. Enochs said the budget cuts would not impede the normal progress toward graduation for most students. He said, however, that classes would be spread out more during the day from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. with plans in the works for Saturday classes.

Chile Calls For The Release Of Angela Davis

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Chile's Chamber of Deputies has called on the United States and the United Nations to work for the release of Angela Davis, Negro militant charged with murder in California.

The resolution that deputies approved was introduced by deputy Gladys Marim, a Communist Party member. Before approving the resolution Tuesday, deputies rejected a motion that it cable Fidel Castro asking that he spare the lives of 10 anti-Communist Cubans condemned to the firing squad for alleged counter-revolutionary activities.

That resolution was introduced by deputy Gustavo Monckeberg, a rightist.

Miss Davis is charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy because of an unsuccessful shoot-out escape attempt at the Marin Hall of Justice in San Rafael, Ca., by Negro convicts from a courtroom. Four persons were killed, including the presiding judge. Officers say she purchased the guns that were smuggled into the courtroom.

Historic Parade On St. Pat's Day

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The St. Patrick's Day parade— a celebration that predates the Gold Rush days in San Francisco—will be repeated Sunday.

A 294-unit procession, including more than 10,000 participants and 20 Irish wolfhounds, will start at 1:30 p.m. and march from the city's financial district to the Civic Center.

Parade directors said the holiday was celebrated as far back as 1843 when Irishmen marched from the old City Hall near Ninth and Market streets to Mission Dolores.

Mass will be celebrated before the parade at 10:30 a.m. in St. Mary's Cathedral. The St. Patrick's Church choir also will participate in the services.

House To Back Lower Vote Age

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Early House concurrence is forecast today for a Senate-passed constitutional amendment proposal to lower the voting age to 18 in state and local elections.

The House vote probably will come next week, or the following week at the latest. Backers of the 18-year-old vote said there is no doubt the proposal would be overwhelmingly approved.

That would send it to the states for ratification, and its sponsors believe enough time is left to win approval by the necessary 38 state legislatures to make it part of the Constitution before the 1972 elections.

By law Congress already has entitled 18-year-olds to vote in federal elections. But the Supreme Court ruled out part of that law that was intended to extend the lowered age limit also to state and local elections.

The Senate acted to plug that loophole Wednesday, approving the necessary constitutional change on a 94 to 0 vote.

Before acting the Senate stripped the proposal of a rider which would have given the District of Columbia two senators and a number of House members proportionate to its population.

Sale Of Post Cards Approved

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The City of San Francisco may sell postcards, including some that would not be reassuring to tourists.

The Board of Supervisors' governmental services committee recommended Tuesday that the city sell cards with pictures from its historical collection, including one of ruins of the City Hall which was wrecked by the 1906 earthquake.

William C. Roddy, Mayor Joseph Alioto's public service director, made the recommendation, saying the cards could be printed for 1.8 cents each and sold for 5 cents in the City Hall information booth.

GOP Chief Roughs Up Demo Doves

CUMBERLAND, Md. (UPI) —Sen. Robert J. Dole in his toughest speech since becoming national Republican chairman has accused Ramsey Clark of being a "left-leaning marshmallow" and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of undercutting President Nixon in Moscow.

In a speech to a Republican fund-raising dinner Wednesday night, the Kansas senator also criticized Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., the only announced Democratic candidate for President, of failing to denounce bombers who damaged the U.S. Capitol March 1.

The rhetoric was the harshest delivered by a leading GOP spokesman since Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's campaign speeches last year.

Dole flayed Clark, the U.S. attorney general under President Lyndon B. Johnson, for becoming involved in the defense of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and five other persons indicted in an alleged plot to bomb government facilities and kidnap Nixon aide Henry A. Kissinger.

"No wonder the extremists had a heyday under the Democrats when they knew that the chief law enforcement official of the federal government was a left-leaning marshmallow like Ramsey Clark," Dole said.

Dole said Muskie, who is considered the front runner for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972, was a "wandering minstrel" who had "undercut the President's position in foreign affairs." He said he referred to Muskie's meeting with Premier Alexei Kosygin in Moscow recently, after which Muskie said he told the Soviet leader there was an antiadministration view in the United States and that many persons were concerned about the arms race.

Delayed Reaction In Metzger Case

By C. P. McCARTHY

A raid on a Sausalito attorney's home last December was prompted by information that drugs were seen at the home more than seven months earlier.

The delayed reaction was disclosed yesterday in Marin Superior Court during a hearing in which attorneys for Michael Henry Metzger sought to prove the drug raid on his home was the result of a "witch-hunt" by narcotics agents.

It was also revealed yesterday that Jerold N. McDonald, who provided agents with the information that led to the raid on Metzger's home Dec. 6, was a paid informer for the United States Customs Service, drawing a $12-a-day salary in addition to bonuses for information leading to arrests.

McDonald was the captain of a gun-laden sub-chaser raided in Tiburon Harbor last July. Charges against McDonald stemming from that raid were dropped four days after the raid on Metzger's residence.

McDonald, who lives in Salt Lake City, Utah, is fighting a subpeona to bring him back to California for questioning by Metzger's attorneys.

Metzger, 33, is charged with felony counts of possessing LSD, marijuana, cocaine and a tear gas weapon.

Alfred Teixeira, a Marin County drug agent, said yesterday that the raid was based on information from McDonald that he had seen a small quantity of marijuana, hashish and cocaine at Metzger's home sometime in April or May.

Under questioning yesterday by one of Metzger's attorneys, William O. Weissich, Teixeira said he first learned of McDonald's information from another drug agent and that he was told by McDonald himself in September.

Asked why he did not act on the information when he first heard of it, Teixeira replied he just "didn't get around to it," and added he was not sure of McDonald's reliability then.

He said McDonald's reliability was assured when he used him in connection with a San Francisco case in September, but replied "I really don't know why," when asked why no action was taken on Metzger in September.

In affadavits filed earlier, Metzger's attorneys claim that drug agents "conspired with each other to procure the arrest of Mr. Metzger by fair means or foul" in retaliation for Metzger's demand that an agent be made to take a lie detector test in a San Mateo County case.

The involvement in the Metzger case of that agent, Garrett Van Raam of the state Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement, was traced by Teixeira yesterday.

He said Van Raam was present in the Marin Drug Abuse Bureau office Dec. 3 when agents had McDonald telephone Metzger in an attempt to set up a meeting. That telephone conversation was taped by the agents.

Van Raam was present when the agents unsuccessfully attempted to send McDonald, who was "wired for sound" into Metzger's home Dec. 4, and when they succeeded in getting him into the home Dec. 5.

Van Raam did not go along for the raid on Metzger's residence Dec. 6, Teixeira said, although he said the two agents met at the Hall of Justice and again at the Sausalito Police Department prior to the raid, and that they met, by accident, at a San Francisco bar following the raid.

In affadavits, Metzger's attorneys claim that McDonald told them that Van Raam had said "he hated Metzger, wanted to get Metzger" and would see that charges against McDonald were dropped if McDonald would assist the agents in arresting Metzger.

Teixeira and the district attorney's office denied yesterday that the charges were dropped because of McDonald's assistance to the agents, although Teixeira said he did tell McDonald, "I would do what I could. I could promise him nothing."

Harold Diaz, assistant special agent in charge of the United States Customs office in San Francisco, said in court yesterday that McDonald had been a paid informer on the customs payroll from April 22 to June 18, 1970, but that he received payments from the customs service through Sept. 24.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court continued the hearing on Metzger's motion to dismiss the case until March 26.

Marriages Of Jews, Gentiles Attack Target

BOSTON (UPI)—Marriages between Jews and Gentiles are not "Jewishly valid," according to a ruling of the rabbinical court of the Associated Synagogues of Massachusetts.

The court's ruling followed an announcement of the State Board of Rabbis. The decree, announced Wednesday, said the greatest threat to Jewish survival was assimilation.

The court's decree applies even to marriages "solemnized" by a rabbi and calls for the expulsion from rabbinic organizations clergy who officiate at such marriages.

"To have such a union solemnized by a rabbi in order to give it religious status and religious identity constitutes a sham and a fraud perpetrated by the Hebrew clergyman performing such a ceremony on the people concerned," the court said.

Banning Of Superjets Supported

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Ignoring pleas by organized labor and the aircraft industry, the Senate Health and Welfare Committee has endorsed a bill to ban the supersonic transport from California skies.

On a split voice vote Wednesday the committee sent to the full Senate legislation by Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson prohibiting an SST—foreign or domestic—from taking off from any airport in the state.

The measure orders local district attorneys to prosecute any violators and seek recovery for individuals who have suffered health injuries or property damage.

"I believe, first, that this aircraft must not be allowed to operate in, or over, California because it presents an intolerable threat to the health and well-being of our citizens," Beilenson said.

The Beverly Hills Democrat said the SST poses a threat to the environment from sonic boom, exhaust pollution fallout and ambient alteration of the stratosphere.

"The SST is the perfect example of what this nation ought not to be doing, and it is within our power to help prevent this costly and foolish mistake, this misallocation of limited natural resources, this gross perversion of national priorities and concerns," he said.

The lawmaker said he believes the bill's "chances might be good" for gaining Senate approval.

But the aircraft industry and labor presented a united front in seeking to scuttle the legislation, which Beilenson hopes may induce Congress to refuse additional funding for the proposed 1,800-mile-an-hour plane.

Philip L. Peoples, spokesman for the Boeing Co., the prime building of two prototype SSTs, told the committee his firm's scientists believe the plane will cause no environmental harm.

He said the 300-passenger plane will fly subsonically over land.

SST's Future Is Still Cloudy One

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The future of the controversial supersonic transport (SST) remains doubtful, with at least one indication the Senate would vote to kill the project if a decision were made today.

But final action was a long way off as the Senate Appropriations Committee continued its hearings.

The House plans to vote next week on a $290 million appropriation for the SST — including $134 million to keep the development going until July 1. Senate action will follow.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., leading Senate opponent of the project, said he thought the weight of the testimony Wednesday was against the SST. He cited as "most damaging" a statement of Najeeb E. Halaby, president of Pan American World Airways, that as of now he would not exercise an option to buy Concordes —the British-French version of the SST.

Last year the Senate voted to kill the SST, but tentatively revived it at the insistence of the House pending the current round of hearings.

"If a vote were taken today I think the Senate would kill it again," one senator told UPI. He said right now he could count 50 votes against the plane.

Administration witnesses — including Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe —testified the SST was vital to American air supremacy, to the country's financial well being and to fight unemployment. They said if there was the slightest doubt, however, that it would pollute the atmosphere, the project would be killed.

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, also called on Congress to continue funding the project. He said it was needed to provide up to 150,000 jobs in the aerospace industry. But Arthur M. Okun, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, replied:

"If the SST is nearly as good —as feasible technically, as sound commercially, and as demonstratably safe environmentally —as its proponents insist, then the SST does not need public funds. If the case is that good, private investors in private financial markets would provide ample funds to cover SST development without any drain on the already strained resources of the federal treasury."

Town Meeters To Study Plan

The Larkspur Town Meeting committee, which has set May 1 for the city's second such gathering, will meet March 18 at 8 p.m. at city hall to continue work on a meeting agenda.

According to Joan Sestak, chairman of the committee, the May meeting will concentrate primarily on revamping of the city's general plan and related matters.

Town Meeting members have been involved with studying the general plan, the downtown plan and the park and recreation master plan since the last meeting in November, she said.

Those studies and related action by city government will form the nucleus of the next meeting, she said.

Heavy Ground Fighting Is Reported In Sepone Area

SAIGON (UPI) — Heavy ground fighting broke out today in the Sepone area of Laos and front dispatches said the North Vietnamese were sending in tanks despite massive air strikes which have killed more than 1,000 Communists in the past two days.

U.S. military sources said B52 strikes accounted for at least 600 of the victims and that the raids were the most successful of the entire war by the high flying bombers. Spokesmen said this brought Communist deaths to more than 7,000 since the Laotian operation began Feb. 8.

UPI correspondent Barney Seibert, aboard an American press helicopter attempting to reach the area of the B52 strikes, said his chopper was turned back this afternoon by heavy ground fire.

Seibert said it appeared that South Vietnamese forces in the region 25 miles inside Laos and astride the Ho Chi Minh supply trail were in ground contact with North Vietnamese forces and that North Vietnamese tanks were spotted moving toward the battleground.

Brig. Gen. Pham Van Phu, commander of the 1st South Vietnamese Infantry Division, said at Khe Sanh, 12 miles inside Vietnam, that his troops at Sepone were having "some difficulty" in resupply by helicopter but they were carrying five to seven days supplies when they moved out of base areas.

The North Vietnamese have been reported sending in more and more heavy antiaircraft guns for use against the swarms of American supply helicopters and Cobra gunships supporting the South Vietnamese incursion. A spokesman said three helicopters were shot down in less than one hour today.

Another Boycott At Paris Talks

PARIS (UPI)—The chief Hanoi and Viet Cong negotiators boycotted the Paris peace talks again today in protest against President Nixon's Vietnam policies. The Saigon delegate was ill and U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce was the only chief negotiator to attend.

The Communist deputies issued lengthy statements accusing the United States of preparing to invade North Vietnam and, before flying off to Romania for a visit, chief Viet Cong negotiator Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh told UPI she was convinced Communist China would give Hanoi all the help it needed.

Bruce, in one of the shortest prepared statements he has yet made, said the Communists "prefer propaganda maneuvers to serious discussion. I therefore have nothing further to say at this time."

Bruce opened his remarks saying, "We have made clear repeatedly that we are ready for serious discussion of the issues relevant to a negotiated settlement. Our proposals on a cease-fire, withdrawal of external forces, prisoners of war, political settlement and an Indochina-wide conference are before you." Then he said there was nothing more to be said.

The conference ended again without progress and the delegates agreed to meet again next Thursday—but without saying who would be there.

Chase Manhattan Cuts Prime Business Rate

NEW YORK (UPI)—Chase Manhattan Bank today cut its prime business loan rate to 5 14 per cent from 5 3-4 per cent, effective immediately. Chase is the nation's third largest bank.

Money market sources expect other commercial banks across the nation will follow suit, although some were surprised by the half-point Chase move because most of the recent prime rate cuts have been 1-4 point.

If other banks follow, it will be the 10th round of prime interest rate cuts in just under a year. The first of the series was on March 25, 1970 and brought the rate down to 8 per cent from the record 8 1-2 per cent in effect since June 1969.

Eight of the 10 cuts took place after last November's Congressional elections, which registered the unpopularity of high interest rates and tight money, two tools in the government's anti-inflation arsenal. Five of the cuts took place since the turn of the year.

Chase said it cut its prime rate to bring it into closer alignment with prevailing shortterm rates.

The prime rate has no direct bearing on consumer loan rates or residential mortgage rates.

Farm Income Up In Salinas Valley

SALINAS (UPI) — Despite lengthy farm labor disputes in the Salinas Valley last year, farm income was better than ever.

The Monterey County Farm Report showed this weekend that agricultural income in 1970 was $227.6 million, a gain of $11.4 million over the previous year.

The county, leading producer of vegetables in the country, got $13.6 million more for its lettuce crop in 1970 than it did in 1969, despite strikes in August and September.

Only in tomatoes was the cash return down significantly as a result of the labor troubles, the report indicated. Income on tomatoes was $10.2 million, don from $17 million the previous year.

Death Penalty For Leo Robles

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday decided that San Quentin's "most dangerous killer" should die.

The jury of six men and six women deliberated six hours before returning a death verdict in the retrial of the penalty phase of Leo Estrada Robles' 1968 murder conviction.

A death verdict in the 1968 trial was thrown out by the California Supreme Court which ruled that the late Judge Harold J. Haley should not have allowed Robles to act as his own attorney during the penalty phase of the trial.

The conviction of first degree murder in connection with the death of a fellow inmate at San Quentin was allowed to stand.

Following a poll of the jury yesterday after its verdict was in, one of the jurors, Dorothy Wright of Tiburon, began to weep.

"Thanks a lot, Dorothy," Robles said from across the courtroom, "Give me death and then cry. That's just like a broad."

Mrs. Wright is the wife of Gordon C. Wright, Reed School District trustee facing a recall election April 20.

During the trial, which began Jan. 7, the 26-year-old murderer threatened to kill his attorney, Deputy Public Defender Edward Briggs, as well as to kill or maim Marin Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman, his wife and children.

He also threatened during court outbursts that he planned to kill six correctional officers at San Quentin and said he had "contracts" to kill two Death Row inmates.

At one point in the trial, Robles — who was chained in his seat throughout the proceedings — broke two links of a chain in an attempt to attack Briggs.

In his closing argument to the jury, Herman had warned that "this man will kill again," and askedthe jurors to decide "Who is going to die, Leo Robles or his next victim?"

Briggs had contended that Robles was insane and should not have been convicted of first degree murder in the first place.

After the jury was dismissed yesterday, Robles sneered, "Don't clean it up now, pig," as Judge E. Warren McGuire stated for the record that the jury had never seen Robles being chained or unchained from the chair.

Judge McGuire set March 31 for formal sentencing.

Robles was convicted of hanging his cellmate in Santa Clara County Jail in 1965, where he was awaiting trial for stabbing a man who had offered him a ride.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment for that killing, and it was at San Quentin that he slashed the throat of a fellow inmate, Forrest Smith, 42, with a razor blade imbedded in a tooth brush.

Last week, Robles and another inmate teamed up in an unsuccessful attempt to stab a guard.

If he ever got loose, Robles warned the jury during his trial, "You'll think the Manson case was nothing."

Elderly Ross Woman Injured In Crash

A 73-year-old Ross woman driver was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital, where she was under treatment for concussion from a one-car accident Tuesday.

Helen H. Mayor Del Pino of Laurel Grove Avenue, was injured when her car struck a concrete guardrail at the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard exit from the northbound lanes of Highway 101.

Gardiner Refuses To Allow Reporter's Magee Interview

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court yesterday refused to order San Quentin Prison authorities to allow a newspaper reporter to interview inmate Ruchell Magee.

The order had been sought by Alice Yarish, a reporter for the weekly Pacific Sun. She charged prison regulations prevented her from talking to Magee, who — Mrs. Yarish contended — had requested an interview.

Before any action could be taken on her petition, prison regulations were changed to allow interviews with men awaiting superior court appearances if certain conditions were met.

In his order yesterday, Judge Gardiner did tell prison authorities to clarify one of the conditions which demands a court order for interviews in cases where inmates are not represented by counsel or where a judge has restricted publicity.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court has issued an order limiting pretrial publicity in the case of Magee, who is charged — along with Angela Y. Davis — of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 7 escape attempt and shoot-out at the Marin Hall of Justice.

Judge Gardiner said the condition was "incomprehensible" and made it impossible for Mrs. Yarish or anyone else to know what his rights are.

He ordered San Quentin Warden Louis S. Nelson to clarify the condition and also to formulate a regulation regarding tape recordings.

Mrs. Yarish's attorney, Jerome Berg of San Francisco, taped a conversation between himself and Magee. Berg said yesterday he will seek permission to allow publication of the taped conversation.

In discussing his decision today, Gardiner said he was not going to govern the prison.

"Prison authorities are "the ones who know the problems and they should make the rules," he said.

The most important thing regarding the case, Gardiner said, was not publicity, but the "fairness of the trial."

Preschool Reports Exposure Case

A man exposed himself in front of Kiddieland Preschool at 46 Louise Street, San Rafael, at 7:31 a.m. yesterday, owner John H. Bunch reported to police.

The man was described as about 24 years of age with brown collar length hair and a beard. He wore an army type coat.

Test Results Due Discussion

The Larkspur School District board, meeting tonight at 8'oclock at the district office, will review results from a state test given some district students.

The test, mandatory for all school districts, was given last fall to first, second, third and sixth grade students to determine learning achievement.

The board will also begin review of its fiscal 1971-72 budget and its summer school program.

Impasse In Reed Near A Solution

A meeting between the Reed School District board and district teachers ended last night with agreement near on procedures aimed at resolving disagreements between the two, including the current teacher contract impasse.

Board chairman Gordon C. Wright said the board would meet again with the teachers at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, preceding the regular 8 p.m. board meeting, to wrap up the discussions.

Allen West, head of the Reed District Teachers Association, told the board he would recommend sanctions against the district by teachers be dropped if agreement is reached, Wright said.

The fanctions were imposed after the teachers claimed the district board would not talk in good faith over what the instructors insist are "punitive" clauses in the proposed new contract.

The procedures, following guidelines in the state's Winton Act, set up a type of grievance organization for teachers; establish framework in which board and teacher representatives can confer on personnel questions and matters of instruction; provide for guidelines for "meet and confer" sessions between board and teacher representatives, and establish a method, such as fact-finding, for resolving "persistent disagreements" arising from "meet and confer" sessions.

'Foolish' Habit: Sunglasses In Dark

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Wearing sunglasses at night or on dark, cloudy days may lend a Hollywood glamor appearance, but it is a foolish and illogical practice, an industrial medical director warns.

Dr. Lee B. Grant said sunglasses reduce visibility which can cause hazardous slips, falls and traffic accidents.

Army Colonel Denies Corruption Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Former Brig. Gen. Earl F. Cole, trying to battle charges that he was involved with corruption in his command, did not fire his biggest guns —sworn documents showing some of his accusers may have made conflicting statements.

An examination of documents which Cole gave to Senate investigators revealed today that high-ranking officers stated under oath that the major who made many of the charges against Cole later apologized and formally retracted the accusations.

They also reveal that a colonel swore to the truth of sharply differing versions both of the major's allegations against Cole and of a confrontation between the two men in 1968.

Cole submitted the documents to the Senate investigations subcommittee Wednesday as he took the stand in his own defense, denouncing the case built against him in three preceding weeks of testimony as "unproved, untrue and slanderous accusations" made by malcontents bent on destroying him.

But Cole made only a passing reference to the documents which were added to the hearing record, flooding the record instead with accounts of his achievements in command positions in Vietnam and Europe and complaints that his career had been ruined.

"In my judgment, there is a very good chance you have committed perjury before this committee," snapped an unconvinced Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., when Cole finished. "Unless you can testify otherwise, this committee will be compelled to take action against you."

Cole was reduced to colonel, stripped of his distinguished service medal and retired last summer.

The charges against Cole were based largely on allegations made by Maj. Clement E. St. Martin and corroborated by many other witnesses. Principally they accuse him of involvement with shady businessmen dealing with service clubs and post exchanges under Cole's control in Vietnam from mid-1966 through 1968.

In sworn 34-page testimony one week ago, St. Martin detailed the charges and said Cole ordered him off the U.S. Army headquarters base at Long Binh for making the accusations in a New Year's Day confrontation in 1968.

Cole, however, submitted sworn statements from himself, from another general, and from three colonels present at that meeting. Three of them stated that St. Martin apologized and later filed a written retraction; the other two said St. Martin "appeared satisfied" by the explanations Cole gave for his conduct.

One of the colonels, Robert H. Williamson Jr., said in an Oct. 28, 1969, statement produced by Cole that St. Martin's charges "consisted largely of hearsay" and that the major "was satisfied with the explanations given as were other members of the group ... and had a man-to-man conversation with Gen. Cole and that everything was straightened out or words to that effect."

But in an affidavit sworn April 30, 1970 and made public by the subcommittee this month, Williamson said just "some" of St. Martin's charges were unsubstantiated. Williamson, who was post commander at Long Binh at the time, also said in the second statement that "while complete and satisfactory explanations were given for some allegations, others still required more thorough examination."

Williamson's second statement also gave evidence against Cole while praising St. Martin as "conscientious and (having) a flare for investigation."

'War Tax' Attacked By Political Group

The special 10 per cent excise tax on telephone bills is a wrong number because it is earmarked exclusively to support the war in Indochina, Marin Alternative has declared.

As a result, the relatively new political action group has called for a class action lawsuit challenging legality of the tax, and for withholding payment of the 10 per cent until the issue is decided in the courts.

Alan Barnett and Grace Hughes, spokesmen for Marin Alternative, said the strategy will be explained at a public meeting at 9:30 a.m. March 20 in Alexander Hall at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The Marin Alternative leaders said Philip Drath, Marin builder and a congressional peace candidate in 1968, originated the idea of putting the disputed 10 per cent tax into a trust fund.

The protest procedure and lawsuit plans will be explained at the meeting by attorney Lloyd McMurray of San Francisco.

Marin Alternative backed its claim that the tax is war-related by quoting Rep. Wilbur Mills, House floor leader when the bill containing the tax was enacted in 1968. According to the Congressional Record, Wills said, "I believe it is clear that it is the Vietnam, and only the Vietnam operation, which makes this bill necessary," the Marin group reported.

Marin Demos Endorse Bill On 'Undeclared War'

Legislation making it illegal for Californians to fight in undeclared wars has been endorsed by the Marin County Democratic Central Committee.

The legislation, AB 233 by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, is awaiting action in the Assembly Judiciary Committee. A similar measure died in the 1970 Legislature.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, is a coauthor of the new measure, which is designed to force a U.S. Supreme Court test of the constitutionality of fighting undeclared wars.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors endorsed the measure last month.

Charge Of Blocking Quake Aid

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The Reagan administration deliberately is blocking $72,000 in federal funds to improve earthquake safety, a Democratic senator has charged.

The accusation was made by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist of San Jose, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Seismic Safety. The committee was created more than a year ago, but has been crippled by a lack of funds.

Alquist, testifying Tuesday before a senate finance subcommittee, said that federal funds earmarked for his committee had been blocked by the State Office of Emergency Service.

The senator said that the finance subcommittee should withhold temporarily its approval of the state office's budget for "bungling" the federal funds.

The state office reportedly has objected that the seismic safety study should be conducted by its staff, and not by Alquist's committee.

Assessment Levied For Sewage Facility

The North Marin County Water District board has approved formation of an improvement district to finance sewage facilities at Oceana Marin Unit One near Dillon Beach.

District Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill said protests from 10 property owners representing 18.5 per cent of the area involved were overruled by the board Tuesday.

The district will cover 57 lots and the assessment to property owners was set at $1,577 per lot.

The North Marin County Water District board also:

RELOCATION — Approved an agreement whereby the district will receive $70,000 from the state Division of Highways for relocation of a water line on Atherton Avenue, from Highway 101 to Armstrong Avenue, in preparation for the Highway 101 By-Pass, and awarded Soiland Co. Inc. of Bel Marin Keys, lowest of six bidders, a contract for relocation work at a cost of $47,378.

POINT REYES STATION — Approved condemnation to obtain easements across four properties from its well site on Papermill Creek to water mains at Shoreline Highway, Point Reyes Station, needed for improvements to recently acquired private system.

NEXT MEETING — Deferred until March 23 at 8 p.ms at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, discussion of providing a water supply and sewage disposal for the county's proposed recreation development at Stafford Lake. Churchill explained the regular meeting date of the 16th was bypassed because all directors were unable to attend.

House Crime Panel Gets 2 More Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, on a voice vote, has agreed to extend for another two years the life of its special committee on crime, a panel which has power to "conduct a full and complete investigation and study of all aspects of crime affecting the United States."

The committee, after its creation on May 1, 1969, held hearings in 13 states and issued reports on the widespread use of drugs but none of its recommendations was submitted as legislation.

A Specialist In The Fashion World

By BETH GAEDDERT

When Beatrice Judelle started out in the fashion business in her native New York City there was no place to train.

"In my day you learned secretarial and bookkeeping skills and your boss would spend an hour or two overtime teaching you the business. Of course there were no overtime wages or hour restrictions," she said in an interview in her condominium home in the Peacock Gap area of San Rafael.

"Harvard Business School was the best business school, but it wasn't open to women," she said.

Since Miss Judelle, whose married name is Mrs. Alex Mittelman, started writing about fashion merchandising by accident she has authored hundred of articles for trade papers and magazines, co-authored five books and has done research for coutless others on merchandizing, buying for and managing clothing stores.

She uses her maiden name professionally partly because of the prejudices against women in the business.

"They always think women won't stay very long, but they don't think about the young man who may transfer to another job after a short time," she said.

HER LATEST book, "Fashion Merchandising," co-authored by Mary D. Troxell, associate professor and coordinator of fashion merchandizing at the University of Hawaii, is the first one to combine all the aspects of modern merchandising — sociology, economics and the development of women as costumers — into one book for school courses.

"Today fashion merchandisers have a masters degree in business administration and the buyers are carefully trained. There is a great demand for teaching fashion merchandising but there are no books. They are trained by lecturers, instead," she said.

Big department stores used to hire "stylist" or "fashionists," persons with fashion instinct to advise on buying.

Miss Judelle was graduated from Hunter College in New York City prepared to teach high school English.

"But the nearer I go to it the further away I went," she says.

"I had a great desire to be a writer. By accident I got into a trade association and met a man who knew everything about department stores but he couldn't write."

Beatrice Judelle has seen concepts of fashion develop from the '30s when "fashion was what they saw in the last show room" to today when fashion is "very scientific, very well informed and comes very definitely from the people who wear the clothes."

"WHAT BUYERS bought used to be determined by what royalty wore, then what the very wealthy wore. Today each group does its own thing," she said.

The idea that hippies have started fashion trends is one of the newest theories, she said. "The ones who are out of society — have cut themselves off, have nothing to lose, no status — they wear what they want. People who are very wealthy and secure can do the same thing.

"A fashion comes back every generation," she said. "And it's as if they've just discovered it. Just like sex. In the '20s there were girls who wore peasant blouses and long skirts. They were the hippies of the day. As soon as we take over their styles they'll drop them,"

The Mittelmans moved to Marin three years ago and feel "we've been alive three years," she says. The only thing they miss about living in New York is a "glorified log cabin" they had in the mountains.

"Nobody is so provincial as a person who has lived all his life in New York City," she said. Her "big ambition" is to travel around the country in a trailer. "I have flown across the country several times and I have seen clouds."

The fashion business is centered in New York because, like Paris, all supplemental industries are near. "All the companies that make buttons and trims and all the other things you need are there, she said.

"At noon you can go down to the garment district and everyone who's not nailed to a machine is down there talking and they are all taking business. With that tremendous concentration, news travels fast," she said.

"NEW STYLES always take off in a big city," Mis Judells said, "because there is a crowd of people who like to wear something new and they need

CO-AUTHOR of the only book on modern fashion merchandising, Beatrice Judelle of San Rafael has written hundreds of articles for trade publications and associations. She and her husband moved to Marin three years ago after living all her life in New York City. "The whole technique of fashion merchandising is recognizing consumer desires and responding to them," she said.

Reversal Of Marriage Patterns Seen As Solution To Birth Rate

Ideas for setting up roadblocks to early marriage as a solution to California's high birth rate were suggested yesterday by a demographer from the University of California at Berkeley to a symposium at the U.C. Davis campus.

Dr. June Sklar told a symposium on California Population

Problems and State Policy that because young marriages support a high birth rate, California should consider attempts to reverse the early-marriage pattern.

California and the United States as a whole are early marriage regions, especially compared to Western Europe. California women first marry at a little over age 20 and California men at about 23. In Western Europe, women on the average do not first marry until their 23rd birthday or later, and men not until their 25th birthday or later.

THE RESULT of early marriage is not only associated with larger families, Dr. Sklar pointed out, it is also related to lower levels of childlessness. Among American women 45 to 54 years of age in 1960, for example, less than eight per cent of those who wed before age 18 were childless by the end of their reproductive years. For women who married at advanced ages it was 45 per cent — or almost six times as great.

The Sklar estimates revealed that with no married women before the age of 25 — "everything else remaining the same" — the number of total births in this state in 1969 would have declined by almost 40 per cent, while the general fertility and crude birth rates would have declined by more than 60 per cent.

In addition to reducing the number of births, Dr. Sklar suggested, delaying marriage would have additional benefits for Californians:

1) Divorce would likely decrease, since the very young, divorce-prone marriages would be eliminated.

2) The population is likely to become better educated and more economically productive since young people would have additional years to spend in these two activities before marriage.

3) The additional time in school and the labor market "will better prepare couples both financially and psychologically for the burdens and responsibilities of marriage and parenthood when they do marry."

BECAUSE CALIFORNIANS could easily evade laws directly regulating age at marriage (such as marrying in Nevada, as is now done to some extent), Dr. Sklar recommended an indirect approach as official state policy. One set of proposals comprises short-term measures, the other long-term.

The first would be based on financial considerations: "Require couples to prove solvency before a license is granted; tax a marrying couple; raise the marriage license fee substantially."

Accompanying this program would be a firm state commitment to a policy of "changing the currently pervasive social and economic supports of early marriage."

One group of social and economic factors actually permits couples to marry early — an increase in married female labor force participation, and the concentration of these women in low level jobs, subsidized housing in terms of federal low interest, low down-payment loans, inexpensive married student housing and fellowships that provide for dependents have all helped couples to "decide" they can afford to marry early.

A second group of factors has motivated couples to marry, and to marry relatively young — the denigration of bachelors and spinsters, the praise of married persons, a lack of alternative roles other than marriage and motherhood for women and easy divorce and remarriage "have all encouraged wedlock, apart from purely financial reasons."

MOREOVER, DR. Sklar declared, a shift in official policy which encourages later marriages would probably result in increased illegitimacy. The number of unwed mothers would climb on the one hand and, with marriage delayed to older ages, young unmarried pregnant women would find it more difficult to arrange a hasty marriage in order to give their unborn child legitimate status.

The answer to this problem, Dr. Sklar insisted, should be further liberalization of abortion laws — which should reduce illegitimacy figures considerably.

It is these social and economic conditions Dr. Sklar believes should be changed if California seriously hopes to reduce the effects of early marriage on the state's population problems.

The two-day symposium was sponsored by the California Assembly Science and Technology Advisory Council, with local arrangements completed by the U.C. Davis Extension.

Long-Burge Vows Are Exchanged In Fairfax

Fairfax Community Church was the setting for the nuptials of Janice E. Burge of San Anselmo and Leonard L. Long of San Rafael.

For the Saturday afternoon ceremony Janice was attended by Jackie Jew of San Francisco, maid of honor. The bride's brother, Thomas Burge of San Anselmo, performed best man duties and the ushers were Carl Weber of San Anselmo and Charles Talley of Citrus Heights.

A reception followed at the church hall and the couple left on a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe. They will make their home in San Rafael.

Janice, who is employed with Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. in San Francisco, is a Sir Francis Drake High School graduate and she attended the College of Marin. She is the sister of James M. Burge, who is stationed with the Navy aboard the USS Constellation.

Janice is the granddaughter of Geoffrey J. Burge of Sebastopol and Dominic M. Ries of Guerneville.

The bridegroom's parents are deceased, and he is the brother of Horace W. Long Jr. of Rohnert Park and Charles Long of New Carrolton, Md.

He was graduated from Petaluma High School and is employed by Rossi Motors Inc. in San Rafael.

HELEN HELP US!

A Column For Pre-Teens On "Goofy" And Spoiled Little Brothers

DEAR HELEN:

It seems like you never have much in from the little kids — but lots about teen-agers and love and all that dumb stuff. Why don't you have a column once in a while for us? — 10-YEAR OLD

DEAR TEN:

Good idea. Here goes:

DEAR HELEN:

I have a big problem. Maybe it sounds silly, but my brother got a Disney story book. On the front is a picture of Goofy. My aunt asked what kind of animal he is. Someone said a cow because his girl friend is a cow. My dad said he is a horse. The rest of us said, "dog."

Please tell me which. The arguing is giving me a headache. Okay? Thank you. MUST KNOW

DEAR M.K.:

We-e-e-ll, Goofy can't be a horse because horses are hardly ever pictured as "goofy." There's no such thing as a male cow, and he doesn't look like a bull, so he's gotta be a dog. Okay?

I was tempted to call up and ask the "Fact Finder" at our local paper but thought better. A columnist has to think of her image, you know, and I just about blew it two weeks ago when I begged the home address of Bobby Sherman — for a 12-year-old girl who wanted me to forward her letter to him, but somehow I don't think the Fact Finder believed me. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm kind of young to be writing (I'm 11), but I have a question. You see we have school dances so I asked a girl. She said she needed a few days to think about it so I dropped her, but I'd like to know what to do in the future — UNKNOWING

DEAR UN:

Wait before you drop. Girls have a terrible time making up their minds — as you'll find out more and more as time goes on. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm twice the age of my little brother who is five, and he's ten times the trouble I am. You wouldn't believe how bad he is. He calls me names and teases me till I can't stand it. I can't hit him because he can really kick. The silent treatment won't work. I'm miserable.

Then if he does something wrong — for instance, when he put his omelet in a tissue and hit it and we found it three days later and it smelled awful — my Mom and Dad just told him never do it again. They hardly ever scold him. But I hit him for a good reason and Dad hit me real hard and said, "He's just a baby and doesn't know any better," but he does know. He's just spoiled rotten.

Helen, please help before I go out of my mind. — TIRED OF A WILD CHILD

DEAR TIRED:

I guess it doesn't help much to say your letter might have been written by almost every ten-year-old sister of an age-five brother. He is at a point where only parents could love him (so they probably overdo it). He will grow out of this stage, but brace yourself for another bad one at age-11 — when he starts teasing you about your boy friends. Meanwhile, loving patience is better than fists, though harder to achieve. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am very lucky. I have a nice mother, father, sister and brother, two dogs and three cats. I wish I could help others. Could you give me the name of a good society for animals and tell me a good amount of money for a nine-year-old to give? — FUTURE ANIMAL WORLD-WIDE WORRIER

DEAR FAWWW:

How about the Humane Society in your town? (You can find the address in the phone book.) The amount? Whatever you can spare but, better yet, why not find a good home for one stray cat or dog? Maybe you can talk a friend's parents into taking a pet. — H.

PERSONAL TO "BOY SHY CLAM" (of Novato:

If you'll send me a stamped self-addressed envelope, I'll do my best to help. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Being A Woman Was A Career Obstacle

an audience. There is a small percentage of women who always want something new. This can't happen in a small town becuase there isn't a large enough percentage of these women.

"Women's Wear Daily is by and large reporting what they are wearing. You have to know how to read it. Even if it's slapdash reporting," she said, they are showing the trends.

There has never been a conflict between her family life and career, Miss Judelle said. Her son, Richard Mittleman, who lives in Terra Linda, could always reach his mother by phone when he was young and later "he didn't need me."

"I used to feel sorry for him because I thought other mothers were always at home baking cookies and chocolate cakes for their kids. Then one day he said, 'Gee, I feel sorry for so and so, his mother doesn't know anything!'"

"The biggest obstacle I've had in my business career is being a woman. I have often had a job three men have flopped on before me. I've had to compete with men who have a wife at home to take care of things. I had to go home after a day of work and be a wife," she said.

"My ideal world is where the one who likes to cook cooks and the one who likes to write writes and you divide up all the other jobs."

"I HAVE absolutely been refused certain positions because I was a woman and that was during the war when there was the greatest shortage of men. there were jobs I was highly recommended for. The greatest man I worked for believed that anybody who could do the job and do it well was the one to work for him."

Miss Judelle likes to do research and analysis and interviews on merchandising because "research gives you a view of what so many people are thinking. By working for the National Retail Merchants Association you can contact many people in key positions all over the country."

She has just finished a book for the NRMA called "The Fashion Buyers Job" for the girl who already has a job as a buyer but needs to know some things she couldn's learn in the classrooms.

The country's best school for fashion merchandisers is the Fashion Insitute of Technology in New York which operates with the cooperation of the fashion industry and unions, she says. Much of it is "within the industry" training. She co-authored "Inside The Fashion Business' for a course they offer.

She also created the first course offered by the Tobe-Coburn School For Fashion Careers on fashion merchandising.

Her "Fashion Merchandising" book just released by McGraw-Hill took one year of actual writing, she estimates, "not counting all the interruptions for other activities." She signed the contract in 1966 and turned the manuscript into the publishers in August 1968.

"Meanwhile fashion is changing," she said. A male editor questioned a section where she said fashion is what is shocking.

She was describing the long skirts with slits up the front, and the editor asked, "How can they be shocking?" "When you see a leg showing from a long skirt it looks like it belongs in the bedroom," Miss Judelle answered.

After living in New York City all of her life and being involved with the fashion world the Marin climate and peaceful Peacock Gap environment makes her lazy, she says.

Because permanent press garments stay fresh looking, it's tempting to delay laundering. Avoid this such delaying. Body oil stains may build up and be difficult to remove.

Less Calories And More Milk Needed In Later Life

CHICAGO (UPI)—As your years increase, decrease your calories, says the director of the Hines Veterans Administration Hospital.

Dr. Lee H. Schlesinger says a recent report he has received indicates overeating is one of the serious problems of aging.

The report, based on the VA's nationwide research on aging and care of geriatric patients, showed that 50 per cent of the men over 65 and 47 per cent of the women surveyed were more than 10 per cent over their optimum weight.

SCHLESINGER SAID Dr. Kurt Wolff, director of professional education and research at the VA Hospital at Coatesville, Pa., describes problems of the aged in his book "The Emotional Rehabilitation of the Geriatric Patient."

It is recommended that older persons mix dry skim milk or dry yeast into their foods to reduce caloric intake and fat, and increase protein consumption.

"Milk is probably the best food for later life," Wolff says. "Among the plant proteins, the best is soybeans."

Wolff says brewer's yeast is "one of the richest natural sources of both protein and water-soluble vitamins" and should be taken before meals to combat overweight.

"IT ALSO can be used to lessen the need for insulin by diabetics . . . (and) help prevent constipation; but it may cause trouble for those afflicted with gout," he says.

Schlesinger says doctors are paying more attention to care of the aged. The percentage of the U.S. population over age 65 has doubled in this century from 4.1 per cent in 1900 to 9.5 per cent in 1968 (from three million persons to 19 million).

One more note—albeit a familiar one—women have a life expectancy of 73.8 years against 66.7 for men, and the female life expectancy is still increasing faster than the male.

The Van Nuys Democrat was an opening speaker at the two-day symposium conducted by the Assembly Science and Technology Advisory Council, a 16-member group composed of some of the state's top population researchers.

Moretti said the state needs "a balance" between growth and resources. He expressed hope the symposium will result in recommendations for action.

Testimony In Calley Case Ends

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—Testimony in the murder court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. ended today after Col. Oran K. Henderson took the stand and disclosed that higher commands at My Lai were concerned over civilian deaths even while the operation was in progress.

Henderson, who commanded the brigade that bossed the My Lai assault task force, was the 104th and final witness.

He testified that the commander of the division over him, Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, ordered a report on the number of civilian casualties a little over two hours after the helicopter-borne mission began on March 16, 1968.

Calley, 27, is charged with premeditated murder of 102 women, children and old men while leading an American infantry platoon at My Lai.

One of the most important and most publicized—and perhaps the longest—court-martials in U.S. history ended testimony at 10:55 a.m. EST on the 46th court day. The testimony concluded one day short of four months after jury picking began on Nov. 12.

Henderson and Capt. Ernest L. Medina, who commanded the company that made the sweep, were called as jury witnesses, and Medina testified Wednesday that he had concealed the true figures on civilian deaths that day out of patriotic duty and devotion to the Army.

The judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, told the six-officer jury that when it begins deliberations after summations and his charge, it may request additional testimony "if some question comes up."

Kennedy recessed court until Sunday afternoon.

MUSIC REVIEW

Ozawa Returns; True To Form

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Seiji Ozawa's power to paint both delicately imaginative and wildly emotional pictures in sound was fully revealed in last night's San Francisco Symphony Concert at the Opera House.

The audience reacted in two ways — some by walking out before the last number or in the middle, but the majority by remaining to give him and the orchestra a standing, shouting ovation.

No two works could have better illustrated these two extremes in expression than the opening number, "The Birds" by Respighi, and the closing suite from Bartok's "The Miraculous Mandarin."

Light but high quality music, "The Birds" received the kind of performance that gives the imagination wings. In the first part, "The Dove," the oboe took flight on one of the most exquisite and beautifully played solo melodies I have heard on that instrument. In the second part, "The Hen," one could almost see fussy chickens scratching in the barnyard as the bassoon brought to mind a raucous rooster.

The nightingale and cuckoo, too, were colorfully evoked in the third and fourth parts of this piece that was a triumph for the woodwinds, though the violins were songful, too.

In explosive contrast to that idylic pastoral scene, the suite from the stage piece "The Miraculous Mandarin" was like a descent into hell. A scandal and banned from performance for many years both because of its violent music and theme centered in a mandarin's passion for a prostitute and his murder by thugs, it is a brilliantly dramatic work featuring brass and percussion, and Ozawa's demonic interpretation was hair-raising.

The San Francisco Symphony's first performance of the shocker was a never-to-be-forgotten experience.

Between the Respighi and Bartok and in great contrast to both came the sublime grandeur of the Beethoven "Emperor" Concerto featuring the young Argentine-born pianist Bruno Leonardo Gelber in his San Francisco Symphony debut. Lame from polio, he was a deeply sympathetic figure as he walked slowly to the piano, where he proved no part of the affliction had touched his keen musical intelligence nor the power and control of his hands.

So much virtuoso pianism is heard nowadays — and he certainly did not lack that — that it was more interesting to note his exceptional ability to make the slow movement a thing of beauty. Every note of the famous adagio melody was so lovingly polished that is was like hearing it sung by a glorious voice. He too received an ovation.

Instead of starting the concert according to the program Ozawa — still wearing a neck brace — surprised the audience with the announcement that he wished to play the prelude of Faure's "Pelleas et Melisande" in memoriam to the recently deceased Howard Skinner, San Francisco Opera business manager who had previously been manager of the symphony.

He said Skinner had helped him, and this was some of Skinner's favorite music. It was a touching gesture and moving performance.

KIT FOX MEETS THE PRESS

This San Joaquin Valley kit fox met the press yesterday at the kickoff of a new organization called Living Creatures Associates in San Francisco. The organization is dedicated to "press relations on behalf of all life forms," according to Sterling Bunnell, the man holding the kit fox which he said faces extinction within five years "unless we do something." Bunnell wants journalists to join with "people who can speak for the various species" to promote co-existence.

'Virgin Mary Used' Sparks Altercation

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Patricia Buckley Bozell, a member of the conservative Buckley family, rushed onto the stage at Catholic University Wednesday and tried to slap a militant feminist speaker, Ti-Grace Atkinson.

The Washington Post said that Mrs. Bozell then ran out of Maloney Hall, knelt on the sidewalk, said a rosary, stood up and shouted: "To hell with Catholic University."

Mrs. Bozell is the sister of columnist William F. Buckley Jr., and Sen. James Buckley, Conservative-N.Y.; and the wife of Brent Bozell, Washington editor of the conservative Catholic magazine, Triumph.

University President Clarence C. Walton had banned Miss Atkinson from speaking on grounds she had blasphemed the doctrine of the Virgin Mary. But the student government took the issue to court, and U. S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. ruled that Miss Atkinson had a constitutional right to speak.

At the moment Mrs. Bozell, 43 and the mother of 10, dashed onto the stage, Miss Atkinson was saying that her thesis depended on the virgin birth, and that Mary was therefore more "used" than she would have been had she participated in a sexual conception.

"I can't let her say that," Mrs. Bozell shouted as she ran forward. Miss Atkinson raised her hand and warded off the blow.

"Until I saw her face, I thought that she was running forward to kiss me," Miss Atkinson said. "That happens sometimes."

Restoring Of Lee As U.S. Citizen Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI)--Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., has introduced a resolution to restore, posthumously, Gen. Robert E. Lee's citizenship. To back the move Byrd said the national archives recently revealed that Lee took an oath of allegiance to the union in 1865, five years before he died.

The 14th Amendment to the Constitution requires a two-thirds vote of Congress to restore citizenship to any Army officer who rebels against the United States. "I feel that Congress should act now to restore the full rights of citizenship to one of the greatest Americans of all time," Byrd said.

Gypsy's Fancy Rolls, Nude Painting Sold

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A wooden commode cover painted with swans and flowers went for $75 and a Rolls-Royce Silvercloud auto brought in $8,250 Wednesday night in the auctioning of the estate of the late Gypsy Rose Lee.

The 1956 brown and black auto used by Miss Lee in her European and American tours was purchased by Russell Harris of Los Angeles. He outbid Jane Withers, a former child actress who now appears extensively on television commercials.

However, Miss Withers, a long time friend of the famous stripper, successfully bid on 15 other items, including the commode cover which was engraved with the initials GRL.

Miss Rose's son, Eric Kirkland Preminger, who was adopted by film producer Otto Preminger Wednesday commissioned the sale by Sotherby-Parke-Bernet auctioneers. Miss Rose died April 26, 1970.

The famous painting of Miss Rose by Marcel Vertes titled "Gypsy Typing" was purchased for $1,100 by Palmyra Motor of Palmyra, N.Y. The painting depicted Miss Rose in the nude wearing only a hat and gloves sitting at a typewriter while writing her book "The G-String Murders."

A total of 261 items went on the auction block bringing in $38,895 for the two day sale.

Two steamer trunks with her initials went for $200 and a sewing dummy was purchased for $75.

A harp which was given to Miss Lee by the backers of "Three Penny Opera" after it folded because they could not pay her was sold for $770.

A set of nine hotel keys from across the country went for $50 and a pair of diamond earrings brought $600.

Preminger Formally Adopts Son

NEW YORK (UPI)—Otto Preminger's 26-year-old son by the late Gypsy Rose Lee was formerly adopted by the movie producer Wednesday and officially changed his name to Preminger.

The son, who had called himself Erik Kirkland after Miss Lee's former husband, Alexander Kirkland, said his mother told him Preminger was his father when he was 17 but asked him "to keep it a secret."

The older Preminger said he adopted the boy even though Miss Lee had never asked him to legally recognize his fatherhood. He called Miss Lee, the famous stripper who died last year at the age of 56, an "independent and proud woman" who refused to marry him or accept his help.

"I always loved Erik as my son ... and now he has my name," Preminger said.

Erik works for his father as a script editor and casting director.

Army Veteran Charges Viet Prisoners Tortured

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI)—A veteran Army colonel charged today some Army officials were trying to cover up the torture and murder of Vietnamese prisoners.

Lt. Gol. Anthony B. Herbert, who has been in the Army for 22 years, told United Press International he intended to file charges Friday or Monday with the Judge Advocate General's office at 3rd Army headquarters here.

"I didn't want to do this," Herbert said , "but if nothing is done by April 3, nothing will be done."

Herbert said he understood the statute of limitations on initiating formal action against those covering up alleged crimes would end at that time.

The veteran soldier, who served in Vietnam in 1968 and 1969, said he knew of cases in which suspected Viet Cong were tortured at the 173rd Airborne Brigade's military intelligence compound at Bong Son in South Vietnam.

He said the alleged incidents included "the water treatment" and wiring prisoners to a field telephone so that it would shock them when the phone was cranked.

He said high officers in the brigade knew the incidents took place.

San Rafael High 'Town Hall' Session

A "town hall" meeting on San Rafael High School will be held at 8 p.m. today in the high school cafeteria, sponsored by theParent-Teacher Association.

SONY's color system, TRINITRON is entirely different from conventional color picture tubes. How did we do it? Basically we simplified the system and got a better picture. A newly designed single color gun was combined with a color defining mechanism called an APERTURE GRILLE to deliver almost twice the brightness of conventional color TV.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, March 11, the 70th day of 1971

The moon is full. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Pisces.

On this day in history:

In 1888 more than 200 persons died as a violent snowstorm crippled New York City over a four-day period.

In 1930 William Howard Taft became the first president of the United States to be buried in the National Cemetery at Arlington, Va.

In 1959 the Senate approved Hawaii as the 50th state.

In 1970 famed mystery novelist Erle Stanley Gardner died at the age of 80.

A thought for today: American novelist Christopher Morley said, "He is too experienced a parent ever to make positive promises."

Final Auditions Set For Play

Those wishing to audition are asked to prepare a scene or monologue in the Irish dialect for teen-age and adult parts open. Irish country dance groups and musicians are also being asked to participate.

Rehearsals for the play are scheduled Saturdays and Sundays through April and May at the Mount Tamalpais theater.

Even In Tournament Play, The Experts Tend To Use Caution

When the national tournament begins in Atlanta tomorrow you may be reading about tournament coups and how the stars ignored safety to play a hand for every possible trick. Don't go off with the opinion that tournament players are a bunch of hot rods. They know when to play safe, just as rubber bridge players do.

NATIONAL TOURNEY

When today's hand was played in a national tournament last year, the experts who got to four spades were pleased with the contract. There were only 23 high card points in the North-South hands, and it was reasonable to suppose that some of the players who held those hands would stop short of game. Moreover, some declarers might get a heart opening lead instead of the friendly club lead.

The upshot was that these thoughtful tournament players decided to play safe for the contract instead of trying for overtricks. This is, of course, exactly what a good rubber bridge player would so.

EARLY START

South must make an early start by covering the jack of clubs with dummy's queen. It would be dangerous to let West hold the first trick since he might then think of switching to a heart.

East wins the first club and leads another club. South ruffs and should lead the king of spades, followed by a low spade for a finesse with dummy's jack.

If this safety finesse lost, East would be able to take only one heart trick. If East failed to lead hearts, South could run the diamonds to discard a heart from dummy and could later ruff two hearts in the dummy.

JACK OF SPADES

When the jack of spades actually wins, declarer can draw another trump and run the diamonds to make sure of 10 tricks. Many fine tournament players would consider ruffing the rest of dummy's clubs before drawing the last trump, and this risky line of play would bring in an overtrick as the cards lie.

DAILY QUESTION

You have opened with 1- no-trump, and partner has responded two hearts.

It is up to you again, holding:

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Partner expects you to pass unless you have a fine fit for his suit as well as 17 or 18 points in high cards.

Exempt From Minority Report

HONOLULU (UPI)—Hawaii employers have again been declared exampt from filing an annual federal report on minority employment which is required of businesses in the 49 other states.

The reason, says the Hawaii Employers Council, is that there are so many varied racial groups in Hawaii that no one in the Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has been able to devise a form to include all of them.

Penney Investor Told To Switch

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own 600 shares of J. C. Penney, bought around $45-$50 per share. With the 2-for-1 split, my position was doubled; but since then stock has not shown much growth. I am now retired and need income. Should I sell for a higher-yielding issue? — C.H.

A. Over the past two years Penney's sales and earnings pace has slowed somewhat from previous levels. Nevertheless, growth has been sustained. For fiscal 1970-71, earnings have thus far held up fairly well, especially in view of the sluggish retail climate.

Nine-month results were aided by the high level of volume which the firm derives from soft goods, where demand continued strong. Company also benefitted, particularly in the third period, from the decline in interest rates and reductions in administrative and general expenses.

Prospects for fiscal 1971-72 are enhanced by the expected upturn in the economy and consumer spending. However, Penney shares, currently selling at a rich 29x estimated results, may have partially discounted this. For income purposes, sell a portion of your commitment for purchase of a high-yielding stock or bond.

Q. I am 72 years old and have about $10,000 to invest in stocks. I would like to buy some sound issues which offer a good dividend return. Someone has told me to buy Great Western United. What do you advise? — J. B.

A. As an income issue, Great Western United is not suited to your needs. At present levels, stock yields only 3.3 per cent. Boston Edison, Fairmont Foods and Peoples Drug are three conservative stocks which offer a generous return plus a certain amount of appreciation potential.

By dividing your capital among these high-grade securities, you will realize an average 5.4 per cent return. Also, because each firm pays their dividend in different quarters, you will receive a dividend disbursement every month of the year. All of these companies have paid dividends for 40 years or more and each appears adequately protected now.

Housing Council Wants Inflation Lid

LOS ANGELES (BW) — The Council of Housing Producers has called upon all building materials suppliers, labor, financial institutions and builders to make every effort possible to maintain present cost levels.

In a resolution passed by the board of directors, the Council, and organization of 12 of America's largest home builders, also unanimously supported the efforts that President Nixon has taken to date to curtail inflation, but cautioned that the trend is still continuing.

Ampex Making TV System For Police Records

REDWOOD CITY (BW) — Los Angeles County has awarded a second contract to Ampex Corp. for equipment and engineering that will prepare a previously ordered television records system to be extended for use by any law enforcement and justice agency in the county.

The new $2.1 million contract is in addition to an order announced April 22, 1969. Under the first order, Ampex is manufacturing a $5.6 million video-file system which the county sheriff's department will use to automate the handling of more than 350,000 law enforcement records on file in the Hall of Justice. Installation is expected to begin this summer.

The second contract calls for additional equipment and modification work to make the system more flexible for sheriff's department use and to provide the foundation for broadening the system to serve the Los Angeles Police Department and other city police departments in the county and region.

Profits Down

CONCORD, Calif. (BW) — Systron-Donner Corp. has reported sales of $13,700,000 and earnings of $405,000 in the six months ended Jan. 31. Comparable figures for the same period last year were $16,240,000 and $754,000.

Market Surrenders Early Gain

NEW YORK (UPI) —Stocks were mixed in heavy turnover near the close Thursday after surrendering most of an early gain.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index showed a gain of 0.17 at 99.47, and declines narrowly topped advances, 691 to 686, shortly before the final bell.

Closing prices included AT&T 48 3-4 off 1-4; Chrysler 27 1-8 off 1-4; DuPont 139 1-4 up 2 1-4; General Electric 107 3-4 off 7-8; General Motors 83 1-8 up 1-4; Southern Pacific 41 1-8 up 1; Standard of Jersey 76 1-4 up 12, and U.S. Steel 32 up 1-2.

Primarily responsible for the market's early surge was Chase Manhattan Bank's halfpoint reduction in the prime interest rate. It brought the rate charged most creditworthy customers to 5 1-4 per cent, the tenth cut in the key lending rate in a little less than a year.

Airline Plans 4-Day Week

SAN DIEGO (BW) — Pacific Southwest Airlines (PSA) has announced that plans are currently being finalized for the adoption of a four-day work week for the majority of its employees.

In announcing the unique new program, PSA President J. Floyd Andrews stated that the San Diego-based airline will become the first major corporation in the border city and the first airline in the United States to adopt the new four-on and three-off work week concept.

"Studies conducted among those companies who have previously initiated the four-day work week concept have observed that both the employees and the companies benefit — with resulting decreases in production costs, improved customer services and higher production output. Participating companies have also noted reduced turnover and lower tardiness," Andrews said.

Rinehart Press Plans To Move Editorial Plant To Corte Madera

A new firm moving to Corte Madera about the first of next month is the Rinehart Press, a division of Holt, Rinehart and Winston, a major New York publishing firm and subsidiary of Columbia Broadcasting System.

This will be an editorial and distribution office headed by Richard Raihall of Mill Valley, who has been with the company seven years. Rinehart Press publishes college text books and the Corte Madera opening will represent a move from Brisbane on the San Francisco peninsula, where the company has been since last September.

The firm is taking approximately 3,000 square feet in a new professional building now under construction at 5643 Paradise Drive. The building, owned by Kenco Development Co. of Sausalito and Ernest Crowley of Mill Valley, will have an additional 3,000 square feet for lease.

Rinehart Press will have five persons on its editorial staff here, plus other office personnel. According to Raihall it will do about $2.5 million in business this year. This is expected to move up to about $10 million by 1976 when the editorial staff should be expanded to about 15 persons. Most of the present and future employees are expected to live in Marin.

CORRECTION: San Rafael mortician Harry M. Williams has been appointed to serve another four years on the San Rafael Fire Commission (not the Marin County Parks and Recreation Committee as recently stated). He has been a member for 24 years.

JON W. NIGGEMAN of Kentfield has joined the San Francisco office of American Re-Insurance Co. as an underwriting trainee. He was previously with Wells Fargo Bank.

A COMBINATION OF ANNIVERSARIES will be celebrated tomorrow night by the Schultz building interests of Greenbrae at a dinner at Dominic's restaurant in San Rafael.

Primarily it will honor eight of the Schultz associates with 20 years service and longer — Benjamin Smith, Harlan and Virgil Cossins, Cal and Donald Johnson, Louis Cabella, Glen Jones and Woodrow Comstock.

But it also marks the 60th anniversary in the building field for Niels Schultz, who started out in San Francisco with homes, flats and apartments and then moved into general contracting and large projects throughout the state. And it is also a 25th celebration for Schultz and his sons Niels Jr. and Alvin forming their father and sons team and acquiring the Greenbrae Ranch in Marin, which has since been developed in single and multiple family dwellings and commercial and professional uses.

HOWARD'S 76 UNION STATION at 801 Tamalpais Drive, Corte Madera will be the site for a car clinic of the Bay Area Thunderbird Owners club on Sunday, March 28.

TWO NEW LOCAL NEWSLETTERS are now being issued. One is by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, called Chamber Chatter. The chamber, by the way, will soon put out its revised Marin County manufacturers directory.

Another is Eula Boardman's News Note, which covers a wide range of subjects from food and wine to people and places. Address is P. O. Box 2790, San Rafael.

SAN RAFAEL real estate broker B. D. Schulz will start his spring adult education class in real estate next Tuesday in Room 210 of Sir Francis Drake High School, San Anselmo. It will be a four-week course with a two-hour lecture weekly from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The course will cover buying, selling, listing, financing and forms.

Capacitor Industry Expects Doubling

NEW YORK (UPI)—The capacitor industry, which makes a component for computers, will more than double in the '70s, according to an industry spokesman. By 1980, says Howard Rothenstein, president of Miconics Industries, Inc., sales of capacitors should pass the billion dollar mark, compared with approximately $500 million in 1970.

"Extensive use of capacitors in fourth generation computers, as well as earlier models, virtually assures this growth," Rothenstein said.

DRUGS IN THE CLASSROOM: Delinquency Panaceas

By ARNOLD ARNOLD
(Fourth of Six Articles.)

Dr. Arnold Hutschnecker is a New York psychotherapist who served as a consultant to the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence. He received his early training in Germany in 1939 and he believes that children, as young as 6, 7 and 8, can be medically diagnosed for a predisposition to delinquency and crime.

In 1969 he wrote a letter to President Nixon, suggesting national, compulsory early childhood delinquency diagnoses, supported by special day-care, after-school and rehabilitation centers, where children found to possess character flaws that supposedly predisposed them to delinquency and crime would receive drug and other remedial treatment. Yet there is no shred of evidence in the legitimate medical literature to suggest that such a diagnosis is possible or that drug or other cures exist to treat these symptoms.

Prompted by Dr. Hutschnecker, the White House proposed such a program to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare early in 1970. It was quickly dropped as a result of advice from HEW and protest from concerned neurologists, psychiatrists and other medical authorities.

THIS JUST one example that illustrates how much confusion can be sown by hasty, ill-advised, pseudo-scientific opinions, based on a misreading of research or on nothing more than a hope for easy answers to difficult problems.

Juvenile delinquency has been linked erroneously to minimal brain damage and to hyperkinesis. There is a lively but inconclusive debate among scientists and criminologists whether genetic signposts exist that indicate criminal tendencies. But this is a far cry from connecting juvenile delinquency to brain dysfunction, hyperkinesis and genetic flaws, or recommending drug cures for any of these conditions.

The words "juvenile delinquency" cover a multitude of behavior, ranging from isolated childhood pranks to habitual criminality in children. As far as is known now, innate character traits and the environment interact in every child and they are inseperably intertwined. These circumstances combine at times to produce undesirable or criminal behavior in some children. Attempts to treat one aspect without consideration of the other may placate public concerns for a time. But they don't solve the problem.

Even if the genetic and physiological causes of criminality could be diagnosed and treated with accuracy, and if children really did respond to drug treatment prescribed to alter behavior or character, they would still have to be removed from home and community conditions that help breed delinquency. Presently there is no scientific evidence that the first is possible, and no program exists that attempts the latter. Therefore, the idea that drug-mediated behavior control might reduce juvenile delinquency is a pipe dream.

SUPPOSED METHODS for predicting or preventing juvenile delinquency have great appeal to courts and schools who deal but fail to cope with these problems of children. Methods of prediction based on one or the other of the two contributing factors, instead of on both, are bound to be futile.

One of the by-products of such superficial panaceas is that truly important, contributing influences to children's learning and behavior failures tend to be swept under the rug. For example, the TV industry has long promoted the Glueck Juvenile Delinquency Prediction Tables, claiming that they hold the media harmless of any disturbing effect on children. This, of course, is a fraudulent claim since Doctors Sheldon and Eleanor Glueck have not considered or investigated the effect of TV on children. Theories like these let parents, teachers, schools, juvenile courts, the media, and the kids themselves entirely off the hook. If the diagnosis sounds impressive and the "cure" requires only drug taking "protective custody" of the offenders, then everyone is relieved of the responsibility.

PARENTAL INSTINCTS are sometimes much more reliable than pseudo-scientific hunches. Wherever massive drug mediated behavior programs have taken hold, in California, in Alaska, in Hawaii, in Arkansas, in Rhode Island, in Nebraska, in New York, in Indiana and elsewhere, parents, physicians and psychiatrists have taken exception to treating children in such an irresponsible manner. Those who do are sometimes subjected to pressure from school and medical authorities. Claims exist that some children may be given Ritalin and amphetamines without their parents' knowledge and consent. The National Institute of Mental Health, among other agencies, condemns such practices.

The U.S. Office of Child Development conducted a two-day symposium on this problem in mid-January. The report of these meetings stresses that the wide use of drugs to alter behavior is to be discouraged, since only a small percentage of MBD children react in the manner claimed by the pharmaceutical literature.

The "Valley of the Dolls" approach to children's behavioral and learning problems is only a foretaste of things to come. What is likely to happen when the current research in drug-assisted memory and learning produces chemicals that may allow perfectly normal children to improve their performance and test scores? Dr. Jose Delgado at Yale University, on the basis of experiments with monkeys, promises that children's behavior may eventually be controllable through implanting electrodes in their brains.

State College Reform Plan Has Not Worked

Some 150,000 students are enrolled at 15 California state college campuses, strung from San Diego to Arcata in Humboldt County.

All must be governed by a 21-member California State Colleges Board of Trustees. It includes the governor, lieutenant governor, Assembly speaker, state superintendent of public instruction, and the state colleges chancellor (who thus is placed in the dual role of employee and governor). The other 16 members are appointed by the governor to eight year terms.

The four elected officials serve on various other boards as part of their official duties. They can devote but limited time and attention to the state colleges.

The 16 appointed members, paid only per diem for meeting attendance, scarcely can be expected to be familiar with all 15 campuses.

This puts the chancellor in a commanding position on a board of which he actually is an employee.

PRIOR TO 1960, each state college had its own board. The statewide board was created by the Donahoe Higher Education Act in that year. It was intended to eliminate duplication and competition among the colleges.

It quickly became obvious that it didn't work. The statewide board was too remote.

In an attempt to correct this, the legislature the following year applied a "Band-Aid." It authorized the California State Colleges Board of Trustees to appoint an advisory board for each state college except California Polytechnic College. Members of each of these boards would have to reside in the area served by the college.

These advisory boards, however, were given no authority. They were merely to "consult and advise with the president of the college with respect to the improvement and development of the college." And to show how little was expected of them, the law provided that they should meet "at least once each year."

THE YEARS HAVE amply demonstrated that the "reform of California higher education" in the Donahoe Act was not reform at all, but the substitution of non-control for unsatisfactory control.

State Supt. Wilson C. Riles has advocated a single higher education board to oversee state colleges and university. This would start to get at the problem.

To bring true accountability to the state colleges, however, such a board should be elected, on a geographical basis. And each state college should have its own board with considerable powers in governance of its particular college, subject to the overall direction of the state board.

We don't need another "Band-Aid." We need true reform of higher education governance, to bring that much-talked-about necessity: accountability.

Future Nightmare: Trapped By Autos

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A fellow we know has a recurrent nightmare about the future of America.

In it, he sees the nation spanned from coast to coast by a single gigantic highway 40 lanes wide.

The highway is clogged bumper to bumper with autos, trucks, buses and motorcycles. Traffic is barely moving and he senses it soon will grind to a complete halt. The people trapped in the jam cannot escape on foot, because both sides of the highway are lined by high, unbroken mountains of junked cars.

At this point, he awakens in a cold sweat, and tries to assure himself that it can't actually happen.

His apprehensions may be a dab far-out, but they are not entirely without foundation. No one can look at contemporary America without seeing that our lives are being taken over and dominated by wheeled vehicles powered by internal combustion engines.

Amateur ecologists have been delivering jeremiads lately about there being too many people in America. But it is in motor vehicles, not people, that the greatest danger of overpopulation lies.

The human population is increasing at a rate that will cause it to double in 80 years. But the automobile population is doubling every 17 years.

There are now about 87 million passenger cars registered in the United States. Economist Jacqueline R. Kasun has calculated that each of these vehicles consumes an average of 700 gallons of motor fuels per year, and belches one full ton of pollutants into the air.

Moreover, each car travels an average of 10,000 miles per year, and requires $17,000 worth of roadways, not including parking space.

If auto production and sales continue at the level that has prevailed in recent years, Dr. Kasun says, the United States will have upwards of 170 million vehicles choking its roadways by 1987. These vehicles will burn 120 billion gallons of motor fuel and emit 170 million tons of gaseous and solid pollutants a year.

But even this is not all. Cars are being junked at a rate of about 12 million per year. Some are cut up for scrap but many are simply abandoned. If that keeps up, we'll have umpteen million rusting hulks sitting around in 1987, in addition to 170 million functioning cars.

We're not talking about extreme possibilities that might conceivably occur, but about what WILL happen if we keep on doing what we're doing.

The final corruption of American civilization by the automobile might be averted by drastic actions, such as prohibiting use of private vehicles in downtown areas of big cities and other especially congested areas; vastly improving mass transit facilities; rationing gasoline; or imposing very heavy taxes on automobiles.

"It is my considered belief, however, that nothing much will be done," Dr. Kasun says. "I am therefore looking for an island, somewhere in the Pacific perhaps, where automobiles are prohibited, and where I can retire and live comfortably on the income from my General Motors investments."

Reader Doesn't Like 'Simple Plan'

At a time when public support should be so important to you, I am amazed to see you demean and impugn the intelligence of your readers by so frivolous a flight in fantasy as the "Simple Plan . . ." (March 6).

Mill Valley Suds Disappear Faster

The old American tradition is no better typified than when we consider the relative merits of the good old washing suds.

This time it's not a question of whether your suds wash better than the other fellow's, rather it's a question as to whether your suds disappear as rapidly as your neighbor's when their task is completed.

The Mill Valley City Council in recently acclaiming the superiority of their own homemade suds, which they claim disappear without doing the harm that their neighbors' suds are known to do, should be congratulated other than censored for upholding again the cherished American tradition for having the best suds in their own home.

Child's Spending Should Be Supervised

I was shocked to read that a 13-year-old had paid $5 for a bag of "stuff" which he though to be marijuana, but turned out to be parsley. Shocked — not by the fact that a junior high school student was buying drugs (and being cheated) — but rather that he had $5 to spend so freely.

Parents are concerned about drug abuse, and yet, they are literally giving their children the means to indulge and experiment. Drug pushers do not give their merchandise away; and how many children under 16 earn their own spending money?

The purpose of an allowance is to teach the child to handle money and to give him a sense of independence. The books says that a parent should not tell a child how to spend his allowance. Perhaps this "book" theory should be tempered and challenged by common sense and adult judgement. What are your child's needs? How does your child spend the money he gets? I suggest keeping the kllowance (unaccountable money) to a minimum while offering to pay for other expenses (admission costs, magazines, records, gifts) as the occasion arises. Make him ask and tell you the cost, and make sure that the money is used for that purpose. In other words, supervised and guided spending — with emphasis on the "supervised".

I will not claim that the drug problem would not exist if parents were stingy or asked for an accounting of their child's spending; but I do think it would be decreased if youthful buyers could not acquire money effortlessly from affluent or overly-generous parents.

Waldie Rebutted On Canal Issue

Early last month, Contra Costa County Congressman Jerome R. Waldie asked the California Water Commission to support postponement of construction of the Delta Peripheral Canal . . . The California Water Resources Association believes your readers should know:

1. Mr. Waldie has conceded in the past his real goal in opposing the Peripheral Canal is to "bury" the State Water Project of which the canal is an indispensable part.

2. Mr. Waldie's historic opposition to water projects in general is ironical in the light of delta history . . .

3. Mr. Waldie last year introduced legislation in Congress to bar dams on major North Coast rivers . . .

4. If Mr. Waldie's faulty reasoning that water projects are anti-environmental had been the vogue a few years ago, there would have been no Hetch Hetchy Project, so vital to San Francisco; no Central Valley Project which gave California the richest agricultural economy in the nation . . .

Sixteen million Californians, who will need the Peripheral Canal for adequate supplies of high quality water, will certainly reject Mr. Waldie's arguments if they are given the facts.

Time For Congress To Act On High Cost Of Campaigns

(Reprinted from Louisville Courier-Journal)

THE INCREASINGLY critical problem of political campaign financing will get a lot of attention in Congress this year, and it is even possible that some sort of reform will result from the series of bills introduced on the subject.

Indeed, the last Congress did pass a measure that would have limited campaign spending on radio and television. But President Nixon vetoed the bill on the ground that it discriminated against the broadcast media.

In the new Congress, bills already have been submitted taking different approaches to what is a very complex problem. Some proposals would set dollar limitations on candidate spending in all forms of communication; others would tighten the present sieve-like law on reporting and disclosure of campaign contributions, without setting spending limits. Still another approach is to provide government subsidy for a portion of campaign costs, while giving tax credits as incentives for small political contributions. . . .

Any controls on campaign spending should be applied in such a way as to minimize the disparities between wealthy or well-financed candidates and those without personal wealth or strong financial backing. The lack of such controls, and the rising costs of running for political office, have magnified these disparities with the result that many well-qualified potential candidates are either unable to make the race or run with heavy dependence on a few outside contributors who want something in return.

It is unlikely that all the facets and ramifications of political campaign financing will be dealt with by Congress this year. Part of the problem, after all, cannot be handled in Washington since the states must come to grips with the financing of state and local elections as well . . .

Congress can set the pattern and this is the year to do it, when there are no federal elections. Congress should impose some restraints on campaign spending and see that they are enforced. It should enact a comprehensive, clear disclosure law.

No Answer To India's Great Problem; Population

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When Indian Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi's new Congress party took a cow nursing a calf as a party symbol, her opposition in the old Congress party cried foul. It was too close to the yoked bullocks by which the party had been identified for years before its split in late 1969.

When, last Dec. 27, she unexpectedly called for national elections in March, her opposition cried foul again.

THERE IS NO middle ground when it comes to the 53-year-old daughter of independent India's first prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru.

To her followers, she is the only one who understands the problems of India.

Both agree that she is the most sensitive of India's politicians to the moods of Indian voters.

And it was not with any thought of losing that she suddenly reversed herself and called for midterm elections instead of waiting for the scheduled date in 1972.

UNDER NEHRU and throughout its years in power, the Congress party has stood on a platform of socialism. But the party needed the contributions of the rich industrialists and landowners and with Nehru's passing, its goals became more blurred and many of its officials more corrupt.

In 1969 Mrs. Gandhi broke with the old party or "syndicate" as its leaders are known. But for a majority in the 523-seat parliament she had to depend on the Moscow-oriented Communists and regional parties.

She told audiences along her campaign trail that she is not communist but that "I want to bring in socialism."

She won the support of small businessmen and farmers with her nationalization of 14 major banks and she is exploiting a promise to abolish the privy purses and privileges of the Indian princes, a highly emotional issue.

But she also is meeting formidable opposition from the princes, Hindu traditionalists, and landowners who wield great influence among India's 275 million voters, many of whom vote as they are told rather than on social issues.

NEITHER NEHRU nor his daughter, nor those who oppose her now, have come up with the answer to the vast problems which are India's. They can be summed up in a phrase, overpopulation.

One person in every eight in the world is an Indian.

India's population increases at the rate of around 13 million a year.

In 10 years, Indian unemployment has quadrupled, from 3.5 million to 16 million.

Before one five-year plan ends, targets for the next already have been overcome by the population increase.

In the countryside, the landless battle the landlords.

In the city, the unemployed battle the industrialists. Among the unemployed are many thousands with skills, including engineers and lawyers.

Booby Trap Case Instructions Bring The Judge Some Mail

The case of a Marin man who rigged a booby trap to protect his garage made the wire services and brought a few letters to Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court.

The man, Don Luis Ceballos, 32, of San Rafael, was found guilty last month in Judge Gardiner's court of assault with a deadly weapon.

He is still awaiting sentencing.

Ceballos had attached a target pistol to a post in the garage of his former home in San Anselmo and connected the pistol with a wire to the door of the garage.

Two youthful burglars opened the garage door last May 15, and the pistol fired. A bullet lodged in the throat of one of the boys, who were both cited to juvenile authorities on suspicion of burglary.

DURING THE TRIAL of Ceballos, Judge Gardiner instructed the jury that Ceballos was not privileged to do by means of a device that which he could not do in person.

It was that instruction, apparently, that drew the disfavor of a couple of letter writers.

A woman wrote from Omaha, Neb., that she was "afraid the time is coming fast when costly judges and juries will break our judicial system. Then it will be every man for himself (look out hoodlums) and may the honest man rightfully protect his possessions without being prosecuted."

A man from Sunnyvale attached a return address label with an American flag on it when he wrote Judge Gardiner: "It appears as though we who obey the laws of the land are at the mercy of the criminal as well as the prosecutors who are supposed to protect us against thieves, murderers, rapists and arsonists.

"It was always my thought and belief," the letter continued, "that a man's home was his castle and inviolate. And yet in a decision which you obviously instructed the jury to hand down, we find that we cannot do harm to anyone who is guilty of forcible entry of our premises."

Presumably the letter writers also made their feelings known to the Iowa Supreme Court which, the day before the Marin jury's verdict, upheld a $30,000 damage award against a farm couple who had set a trap gun in a vacant house which wounded a prowler.

AMONG STORIES that didn't pan out at the Hall of Justice last week was the one about the deputy district attorney laboriously looking through his collection of evidence in a marijuana case for three insects. Rumor had it that he didn't know a "roach" was the tailend of a marijuana cigarette.

Not true, the deputy said later when asked about the validity of the story.

Then there was the report of the sheriff's deputies who tried to talk over an annoying buzzing sound in the sheriff's office. Only when the noise got to be too irritating did they begin to wonder what it was and dash for a municipal courtroom where, it turned out, a security alarm had accidentally been triggered.

Not true, the sheriff's office said later when asked about the validity of the story.

SEC Moving To Prohibit Cashing In On Secrecy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Securities and Exchange Commission announced yesterday it will adopt regulations to prohibit mutual funds and other big institutional investors from cashing in on secret information concerning possible corporate mergers and takeovers.

In an eight-volume 3,400-page report on institutional investors, the SEC also said it planned to impose rules to prohibit institutions from receiving special price inducements to buy or sell stock in connection with takeover bids.

The report indicated that some funds had profited unjustly at the expense of other investors.

The report, ordered by Congress in 1967, was sent to the Senate and House following three years of study.

Institutional investors—mutual funds, pension funds, bank trust departments, insurance companies and others—controlled about 26 per cent of all outstanding stocks in 1968, the report said.

However, the institutions controlled 39.4 per cent of all stock traded on the New York Stock Exchange, indicating a substantial interest in the nation's biggest corporations. In 1900, institutions controlled less than 7 per cent of all stocks.

The commission said additional regulation was needed to control activities of institutions in connection with efforts of one company to take control of another through open market stock purchases and tender offers. Such takeover efforts are often opposed by a target company.

"Some institutions have received both preferential economic benefits and preferential informational benefits in connection with transfer efforts," the SEC said.

The commission said it would adopt rules "to prevent powerful institutions from being treated more favorably than individual investors" with respect to the price of stock traded as a result of takeover attempts.

The matter involving secret information is more complex, the commission said. A company planning a takeover often tips off an institution, enabling the institution to buy stock in the target company in anticipation of an increase in the stock's price once the takeover bid is disclosed to the public.

It is illegal under present law for corporate insiders to make stock market profits on the basis of secret information. However, the SEC noted that information involved in takeovers usually came from a company attempting the takeover and was not, strictly speaking, insider information of the target firm. Often the target company does not even realize the takeover is planned.

Greatest Fight Of All Time: World War III On Closed-Circuit

WASHINGTON — Mr. Harold Hopsack, the Hollywood agent, and Frederick Roarington, the well-known sports promoter, have just announced that they have tied up the closed circuit television rights to World War III.

Mr. Hopsack told reporters at a press conference, "This has got to be the greatest fight of all time, and we think that there are millions and millions of people all over the world who would be willing to pay 15, 20 or even 30 bucks to see this historical event."

Mr. Roarington said, "We are paying each of the participants $250 billion. In order to meet our expenses and make a reasonable profit, we have had to demand complete exclusivity for the rights to World War III. This means that no one will be able to see or hear it on their regular TV channels, even on a delayed basis. There also will not be any radio broadcasting of the fight except where it has been authorized by Musical Variety Enterprises, the company which will license and sell the engagement."

"DOES THIS MEAN that our GIs will not be able to see or hear World War III?" a reporter asked.

"We are working on arrangements now for the armed forces network to pick it up, but we cannot permit broadcasting in areas where the rights have already been sold to commercial promoters. Our first responsibility is to our clients."

"What do you think a fight like this could gross? a reporter said.

"We estimate that with the excitement that World War III has engendered, we could make $3 trillion, not counting the printed programs and the commercials we hope to sell between the battles.

"We have already committed the largest halls and arenas, plus race tracks and hotel ballrooms in every major city in the world, to carry the event. We also plan to make a film of it which we will distribute in theaters one year after the war is over. Our contract with the participants gives us carte blanche to sell any and all of the rights in any manner we choose."

"WILL THE WINNER get a percentage besides the $250 billion?"

"No, this is a flat fee arrangement. Neither side expected to get anything like that sum for World War III, and if they can come out of something like that with $250 billion guaranteed, no one has cause to complain," Mr. Roarington said.

"Musical Variety Enterprises," Mr. Hopsack said, "will pay all the expenses for the closed circuit TV installations, so the only expense to the participants is out-of-pocket expenses during the fight."

"Will there be press seats?" someone asked.

"Of course the press has been provided for," Mr. Roarington said. "We're counting on you guys to promote this event like no event has been promoted before. And believe me, you will have plenty to write about. World War III comes along only once in a lifetime."

A REPORTER SAID, "It's true that this is probably the greatest box office event of all time, but isn't there a possibility that some of the theaters will be destroyed during World War III?"

"We've thought about that," Mr. Hopsack said, "and we will refund the money to anyone caught in a theater which has a direct hit."

"Are you making any plans for a rematch?" someone asked.

"Of course there will be a rematch. We have too much invested in this to have just one war."

Maddox Burns Atlanta Paper

ATLANTA (UPI)—Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, angered by criticism of his Senate leadership in the Atlanta Constitution, called the newspaper a "fish-wrapper" Wednesday and burned copies of it on the Senate floor.

"Some of you are going along with them," he lectured the Senators. "Some of you are believing their lies and letting them divide you."

The Constitution, in a front page story, said the Senate was a "shambles" under the leadership of Maddox, who presides over the body as lieutenant governor. The story said some Senators were upset over the time Maddox spent posing for photographs with visitors while legislation piled up.

Old Square Park Idea Draws Veto

The Downtown San Rafael Merchants Committee strongly opposed yesterday a suggestion that the old Courthouse Square be turned into a park, according to Chairman Walter E. Zurcher.

Zurcher said that San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini met with the committee, an arm of the Chamber of Commerce, and made the suggestion of a park on the square with the newer building there to be used as a recreation center.

The merchants strongly support an "imaginative" development like Ghirardelli Square or the Strawberry Shopping Center, Zurcher said.

He added that the "real answer" to the problem of the abandoned courthouse "lies with the Board of Supervisors." He suggested that they will "have to lower the price" or "trade the courthouse for something."

Zurcher said that his committee intends to keep pushing for action on the courthouse.

(An option to buy the square for $767,000 was dropped in November by three San Rafael businessmen, Wishard A. Brown, Ernest N. Kettenhofen and Robert A. Roumiguierre. There has been no action since then.)

In another discussion yesterday, the committee was told by Mayor Bettini that Fourth Street and Fifth Avenue may be made into one-way streets by April or May.

He told the merchants that the city council will hold a hearing soon on a modified proposal to make the streets one-way. An earlier plan was dropped last year by the council because of high cost.

The committee today also made plans for a seminar on how to prevent forgery, thefts and bad checks which will be conducted by the San Rafael Police Department at 5:45 p.m. March 30 in the city hall.

Old Photos Of Sausalito Fire Station Wanted

The Sausalito Fire Department is seeking old photographs of the city's early fire stations, firemen and equipment for an historical display for May 6 ceremonies dedicating Sausalito's newly-remodeled fire station.

Capt. Ralph K. Pedersen said the department would like to find as many pictures as possible dating from Sausalito's early days through the 1930s.

In addition, the captain is seeking names of the city's early volunteer department, since the department does not have a complete list.

Persons wishing to contribute photos or information on volunteers are asked to contact Chief Charle E. Masten at the city's main fire station, 20 Caledonia Street.

Pedersen promised the pictures will be handled with care and returned to their owners.

'Cop's Cop' To Run For Mayor

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Frank L. Rizzo, former police commissioner, won the Democratic City Committee endorsement Saturday to run for mayor in the May 18 primary.

Rizzo, nationally known as a "cop's cop", resigned as chief Feb. 2 to run for mayor of the nation's fourth largest city, saying "I've put too much of my life into this city to let it go to pot."

Thacher Longstreth, selected Thursday by the Republican policy committee, chose as his campaign theme: "Let's get together and make Philadelphia better."

Rizzo, a self-educated man, dropped out of high school. Longstreth was graduated from Princeton.

Not Leaving Much Room For Error

Shaun Wiltshire of San Rafael's Wiltshire Towers, whose double-decker London bus is familiar around the Bay Area mostly for transporting football fans to Oakland Raider games, is wearing a funny expression these days after receiving instructions for his bus's participation in next Sunday's San Francisco St. Patrick's Parade.

Shaun's red transit, which will be loaded with his best customers, who in turn will probably be loaded with his best booze, has been assigned No. 60 in the parade.

"And," he grinned, scratching his head, "with typical Irish logic the parade director has advised me that No. 60 follows No. 59 and is just ahead of No. 61. Now, how do you like THAT for explicit instructions? I guess they think I can't count."

Incidentally, I had a nightmare last night: I dreamed I went to a St. Patrick's Day Parade in my Erin Go Bragh.

I THINK Carl J. "Red" Brown, assistant football coach at Drake High School, must be the most school-spirited professor in Marvelous Marin. His new license plates read: "DRAKE 1."

COLLEGE OF MARIN'S basketball team finished the season with a 25-5 won-lost record, a performance that earned the Tars 11th ranking in the final regular season ratings announced by the Junior College Athletic Bureau of California. Long Beach City College was top-rated with a 24-4 mark.

JOE DECKER, the former Petaluma High School ace now pitching for the Chicago Cubs and lovable Leo Durocher, was losing pitcher last Friday when the S. F. Giants downed the Cubbies.

Decker, by the way, now lists his home as San Rafael because that is where his mother lives.

RADIO KTIM, which is carrying all live broadcasts of Oakland Athletics' games this season on its FM outlet, will carry weekend and holiday games on both AM and FM, according to Golden Throated Hugh Turner.

COLLEGE OF MARIN Alumni Association's golf tournament and dinner is all set for April 30 at the Meadow Club near Fairfax, according to Association President Tom Elliot of Tiburon.

Fee is $20 per head for golf and banquet or just $10 for the chow. Old grads interested in participating can make reservations through Elliot or Joe Gereghty of Kentfield. There'll be flights for experienced golfers and another flight for you old duffers.

Dr. Harry Hensler of San Anselmo, team doctor at Marin from 1933-42 and 1946-56, will be honorary chairman.

At Least McLain Is Ahead Of '70 Pace

By United Press International

The most that can be said for Denny McLain's comeback this spring is that the Washington Senators' $100,000 pitcher is about 3 1-2 months ahead of his 1970 pace.

That's not saying much, however, inasmuch as McLain was suspended for the first half of the 1970 season and didn't pitch competitively for the Detroit Tigers until July.

McLain, acquired in a controversial eight-player deal during the winter, made his second appearance of the spring Wednesday and was tagged for four runs in the fifth inning of the Baltimore Orioles' 14-2 romp over the Senators. McLain now has pitched a total of nine exhibition innings this spring, yielding 12 hits and five runs.

A two-run double by Bobby Grich and a two-run single by Brooks Robinson were the big blows of the Orioles' rally against McLain. Rookie Don Baylor hit a two-run triple in a four-run eighth and Jim Hutto ripped a grand slam homer in a five-run ninth as the Orioles turned the game into a rout.

On other fronts: Bob Robertson drove in five runs with back-to-back homers in the fourth and fifth innings to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, who have lost five straight games ... Home runs by Matty Alou and Joe Hague enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to beat the Detroit Tigers, 7-5. Al Kaline and Willie Horton homered for the Tigers off Steve Carlton.

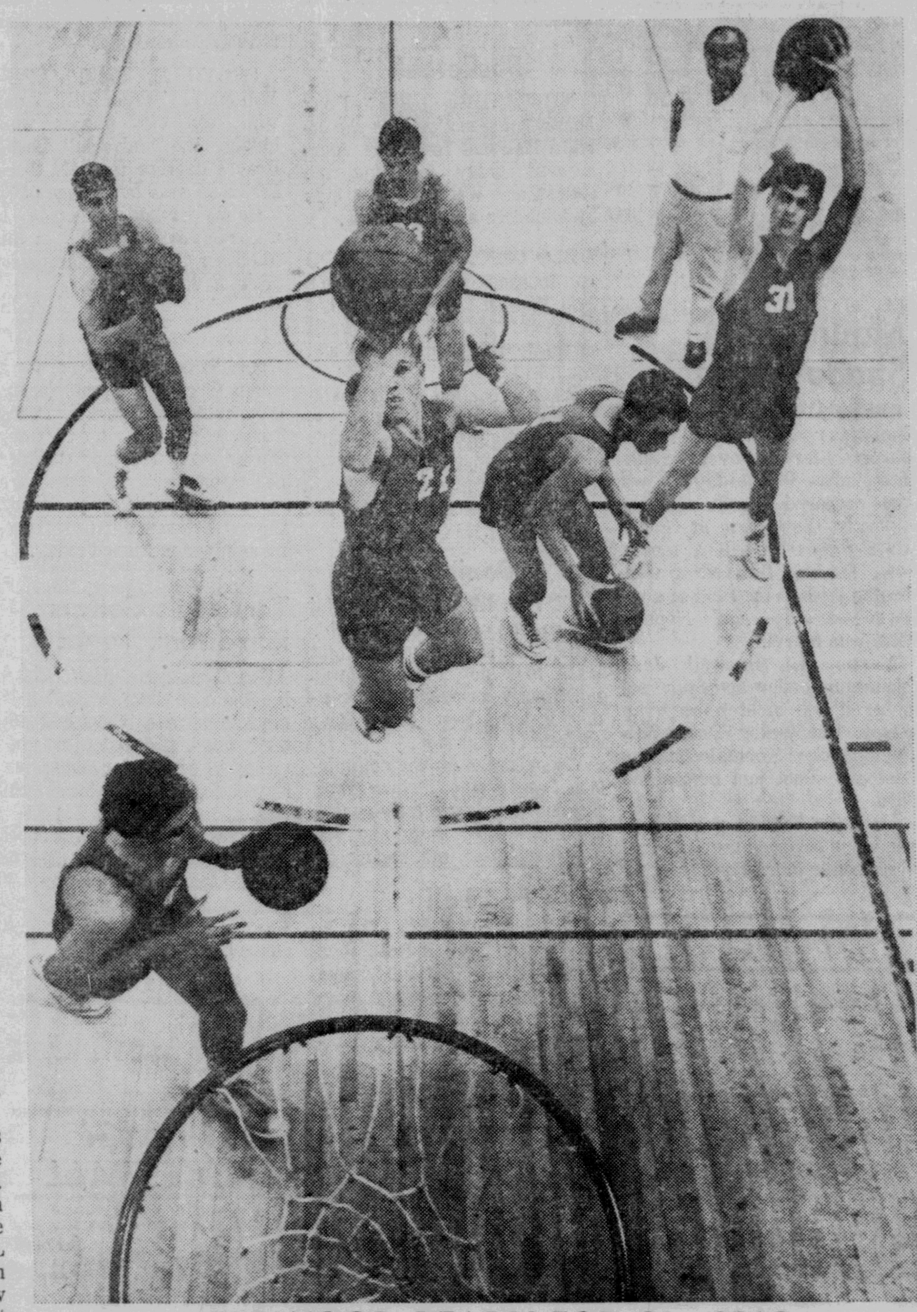
Denis Menke's two-run seventh-inning double off Dean Chance gave the Houston Astros a 4-3 decision over the New York Mets.

Harmon Killebrew hit his third homer in five games and went 3-for-3 to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 5-2 triumph over the New York Yankees. Jake Gibbs and Tony Solaita homered for the Yankees ... Rookie Jim Breazeale singled in the winning run in the seventh inning in the Atlanta Braves' 6-4 win over the Montreal Expos. Steve Barber and Cecil Upshaw pitched hitless ball over the final six innings for the Braves.

Wes Parker's grand slam homer in a 10-run seventh inning paced the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 13-2 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds, who suffered their fifth straight loss of the spring.

Tommy Harper's double and rookie Bob Coluccio's two-run homer were the big blows for the Milwaukee Brewers, who shut out the San Diego Padres, 4-0. Marty Pattin, who went four innings, Wayne Twitchell and Jim Slaton held the Padres to six hits ... Harper, who held out after having his best season in the majors last season, was making his first appearance of the spring.

Bruins Too Much For Seals



OAKLAND (UPI) —The Boston Bruins tried desperately to make the Oakland Coliseum-Arena a sort of shrine dedicated to the memory of Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr but they failed ... barely.

Esposito scored his 58th goal of the season to tie Bobby Hull's alltime National Hockey League record and Orr broke his own NHL mark for goals by defensemen by scoring his 33rd and 34th against the California Seals in an 8-1 rout Wednesday night.

Yet, the Bruins wanted Esposito to get No. 59 before 10,411 fans who sounded about evenly divided in their team sympathies.

Esposito, though tired, was left on the ice for long spells in the final period. During the last three minutes, his teammates continually fed him. Esposito hit the post once and another time, with goalie Chris Worthy on his knees, he shot the puck into Worthy's pads.

The 29-year-old Bruins center moved his point total to 125, one shy of his NHL record set in 1968-69. In addition to his two goals, Orr picked up an assist to give him 119 points.

That left Orr two assists short of his own and the league's record of 87 assists. The flashy Boston defenseman tallied his 33rd goal in the opening period to tie his NHL mark for goals by defensemen and then established a new mark 56 seconds after the start of the final period by hitting the inside of the net on a feed from Ed Westfall.

Dennis Hextall scored California's lone goal on a breakaway at 2:45 of the second period to tie the score 1-1. But the flood gates opened and Boston bombarbed goalies Gary Smith and Worthy for seven straight lamplighters.

Boston won five of the six games against the Seals this season, losing 2-1 to California at the Boston Garden in a stunner Nov. 15. In the six games, the Bruins rolled up 33 goals to eight for the Seals.

California's next game is Sunday afternoon at the Coliseum-Arena against the Detroit Red Wings.

San Rafael Wins; Two Teams Lose

Three San Rafael High School pitchers combined to one-hit Poly High of San Francisco and bring the Bulldogs a 3-1 preseason baseball victory at Big Rec in San Francisco yesterday, but two other Marin County Athletic League teams lost.

The Redwood Giants bowed to El Cerrito, 6-1 in El Cerrito, and the Novato Hornets dropped an 8-5 decision to Napa, in Napa.

Dirk Gansloser singled home Dave Urquhart with a run in the third inning that put San Rafael ahead to stay, but the Bulldogs added a pair of insurance tallies in the last inning, when Urquhart and Steve Klarkowski unloaded triples.

John Klingler, Ray Griffen and Steve Rohrs limited the Parrots to a single run in the bottom of the seventh, and Klingler, who went the first three innings, got credit for the win.

Shortstop Scott Berry slammed a double and a pair of singles that added up to just about the entire Redwood attack as the Larkspur team suffered its second setback in two days. The Giants led briefly after scoring their only run in the third, but El Cerrito came back with two in the bottom of the inning to go ahead for good.

Novato's Waterloo came in the fourth inning, when Napa parlayed three hits, five walks, three errors and two hit batsmen into eight runs. The Hornets scored three in the fourth and two in the fifth, but were shut out the rest of the way.

Bill Busher paced Novato with three hits, including a double and a triple, and John Kidder added a double.

No-Hit Pitchers Zapped By Giants

PHOENIX (UPI) —Two no-hit pitchers have been zapped by the San Francisco Giants.

The Giants collected 10 hits Wednesday in beating the California Angels 14-1 behind the seven-hit pitching of Rich Robertson and nonroster rookie Steve Stone.

Treated unruly by the Giant batters were Clyde Wright who tossed a no-hitter against Oakland last summer and Ray Washburn who set down the Giants without a hit in September 1968 when he was with St. Louis.

The Giants collected eight unearned runs off Wright. Washburn, cut loose by Cincinnati and trying to make the Angels as a nonroster player, worked one and two-thirds innings and gave up three runs.

Today the Giants tackled the Milwaukee Brewers of the American League. It was the first meeting of the exhibition season between the clubs.

One of the Giants' hits against the Angels was a double by Willie McCovey. It was the first hit of the spring after 12 times at bat for the slugging first baseman.

Robertson, Garry Maddox and George Foster slammed triples for the Giants while Bob Heise hit an inside-the-park home run.

Robertson allowed three hits over the first five innings. Stone lost the potential shutout in the ninth when Billy Cowan led off with a home run.

Finley's A;s Experiment Backfires

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) —Charles O. Finley's three-ball walk experiment boomeranged against the Oakland Athletics.

Exhibiting better control, six pitchers for the Lotte Orions of Tokyo combined to beat the A's 11-6 Wednesday for their first Cactus League victory. The Japanese hurlers walked only three men while five A's pitchers walked 16.

Today the A's entertained the California Angels for the first time this spring at Rendezvous Park.

Dwain Anderson, Frank Fernandez and Angel Mangual each smashed homers with the bases empty for Oakland. It was the second roundtripper in two days for Anderson who is trying to land a spot on the varsity as an infielder.

All 11 Orion hits were singles, including three by Arturo Lopez, a Puerto Rican who played briefly with the New York Yankees. He drove in two runs for the Orions.

Errors and walks contributed to the A's downfall. The A's miscued four times, including two by shortstop Jimmy Driscoll, while the Orions made only one insignificant error.

Righthander Chris Floethe, a 20-year-old rookie, was the losing pitcher. He walked seven and gave up four hits in two and one-third innings. Motohito Sato was the winning pitcher.

REDWOOD READY FOR CLASSIC

Coach Dick Hart (upper right) watches as his Redwood High School Giants put finishing touches on preparation for tonight's opening game against Castlemont of Oakland in the Tournament of Champions Basketball Classic at Oakland Coliseum Arena. Redwood, making its third straight appearance in the T of C, is champion of the Marin County Athletic League while Castlemont is representing the Oakland Athletic League. Redwood players in photograph are Mike Conner (21), shooting from the key; Sam Farb, upper right; Scott Trobbe, upper center; Dave Tikker, upper right; Tim Hennessey, dribbling at right; and Steve McGee, lower left.

Nate Talks 'Ulcers' In Warriors' Drive

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "It's enough to give a guy ulcers," says tall center Nate Thurmond.

"We're still 2 1-2 on top, so let them catch us," says Thurmond's coach Al Attles.

They both were talking about the suddenly tight race which has developed among San Francisco, Seattle and San Diego for the remaining playoff spot in the Pacific Division of the National Basketball Association.

The Warriors once had a comfortable cushion in the runnerup spot behind division champ Los Angeles but it dwindled considerably as the Warriors lost 13 of their last 18 games. All Warrior eyes will be on the Boston at San Diego and Detroit at Seattle games tonight.

Wins by either San Diego or Seattle, or both, would cut the margin between them and San Francisco to two games.

The Warriors have only six games remaining, including two with Seattle. The Sonics come to the Cow Palace Friday night for the Warriors next game.

The Warriors have announced they are accepting ticket applications for the playoffs. They must be purchased in blocks of three.

It appears the playoff games at home for the Warriors will be at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena because the Cow Palace has been booked at that time.

SAYS SQUAW VALLEY MAN:

'Our Ski Lifts Are Safe'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Alex Cushing, president of Squaw Valley, has defended the safety of his ski lifts and termed recent criticism by former mountain manager Hans Burkhart as "completely false."

He announced that Richard Reuter had been named chief of maintenance at Squaw Valley.

Burkhart resigned the post Feb. 28 with a blast at the condition of the ski lifts and an assertion that Cushing had received only $60,000 of a promised $500,000 for improvements.

Cushing asserted Wednesday that "certain financial irregularities were found in Burkhart's books and we have just filed a civil suit against him."

Burkhart, kept outside the news conference by security guards, said he planned to "shortly file a counter suit against Cushing for slander and $7,700 in back wages."

Reuter was maintenance chief before Burkhart, but was hospitalized after a lift accident threw him to the ground last December.

Several other persons were injured Feb. 5 when the Emigrant Ski Lift threw several persons to the ground.

Cushing said the latter accident had been shown to have been caused by "the structural failure of four bolts ... a state inspector had inspected this lift just three weeks before the accident and found nothing wrong."

Cushing said that with the return of Reuter, the area would again use volunteer national ski patrolmen during the weekends to augment the professional patrol of about 20 men.

He said the Emigrant Ski Lift has been repaired and modified and is now permitted to operate and he announced that Frank Alberti, Seattle, the ski lift inspector for the National Ski Area Association, had been asked to make a special inspection and report on safety conditions at Squaw Valley, site of the 1960 winter olympics.

Ashe Wins, Remains In Australian Field

SYDNEY (UPI) — Arthur Ashe of Gum Spring, Va., breathed some life back into the Dunlop Australian Open at White City Thursday when he beat South African Cliff Drysdale 7-6, 7-6, 2-6, 6-2 to move into the semi-finals.

Ashe halted the dramatic fall of seeded and drawcard players when he beat Drysdale in a two hours match.

The sponsoring company, who will have an expensive bill of around $145,600 have made no secret of the fact that they now want a Ken Rosewall-Arthur Ashe final to boost attendances.

The $56,000 tournament lost a lot of its appeal for local tennis followers when Rod Laver, John Newcombe and today Tony Roche were bundled out in the round before the quarterfinals.

Drysdale recovered early today to beat Roche and qualify for the night match against Ashe.

A Rosewall-Ashe final could easily materialize as Rosewall appeared to be in good enough form to beat Dutchman Tom Okker in Friday's semifinal.

Ashe now will play the winner of Englishman Mark Cox and American Bob Lutz in his semifinal.

The Ashe-Drysdale match tonight certainly did not inspire the crowd of 2,500 but it kept interest in the tournament.

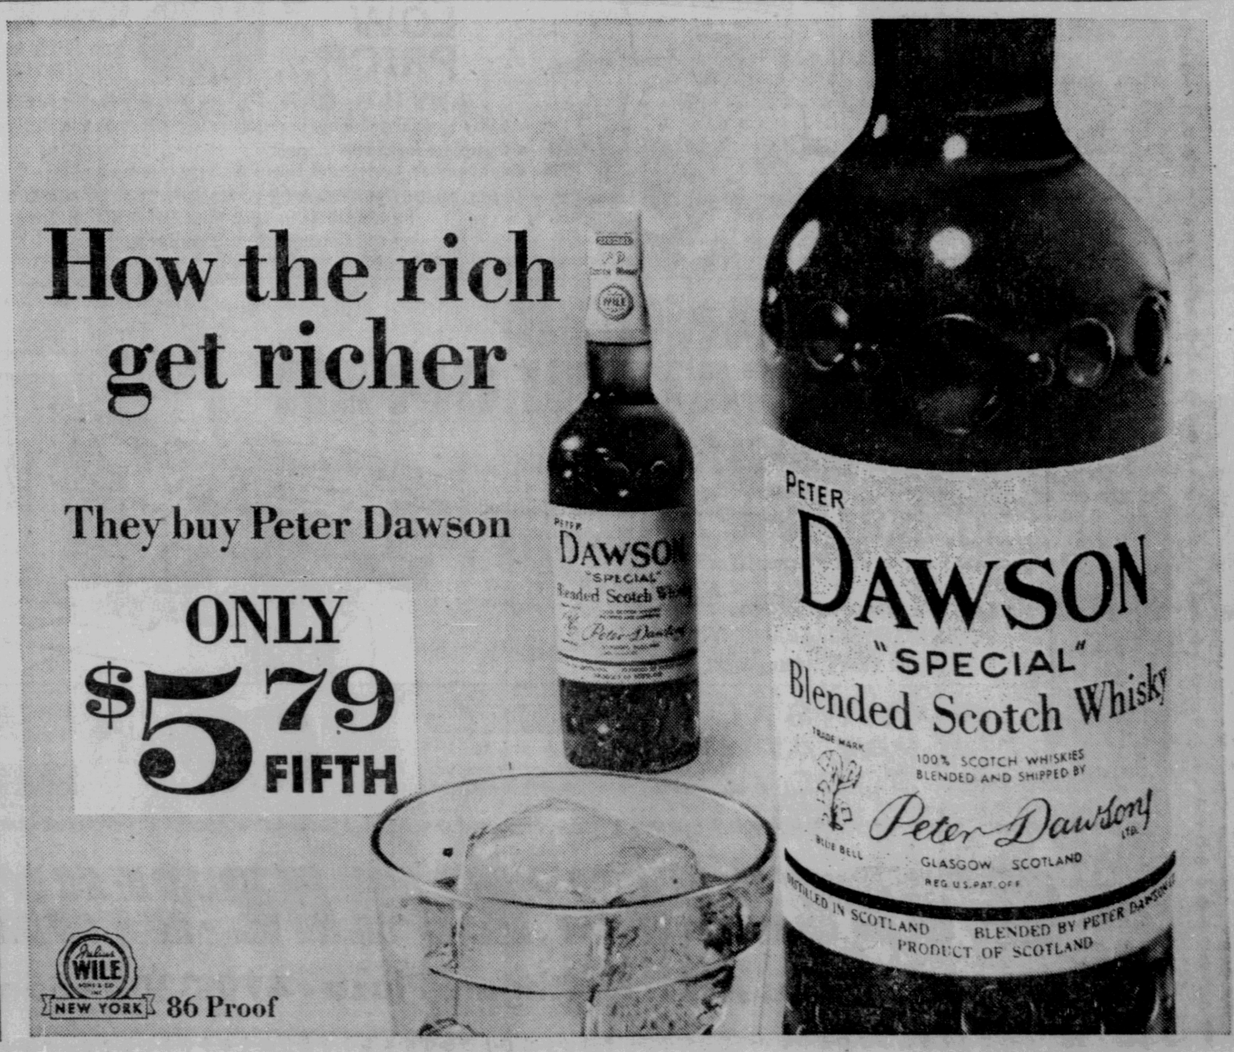
It was a hit and miss affair on the dew covered White City center court which did not allow for speed around the court and long volleys.

Although Drysdale pushed Ashe to tie breaker sets early, the American always looked a likely winner.

In the women's singles quarterfinal Grand Slam winner Margaret Court had little difficulty in beating another Australian Helen Gourlay 6-0, 6-4 to enter the semifinals.

Mrs. Court will now play Lesley Hunt of Australia in one semifinal while Evonne Goolagong of Australia will meet Scottish lass Winnie Shaw in the other semifinal. Earlier today Miss Shaw beat local player Norma Marsh 6-0,

(Editors note: Apparently San Rafael's Sharon Walsh lost her match, although results were not available. Last UPI report said she had won in the second round, but quarterfinal results from Australia were incomplete.)



THE SKI SCENE

It's Ski Patrol To The Rescue

By CHARLIE COANE
(Final column of the season.)

It all began in the 1930s as a brainstorm of Charles "Minny" Dole and a few friends.

Now there are some 22,000 members of the National Ski Patrol spread among the country's approximately 750 ski areas.

"The organization is strictly a volunteer operation," said Tom Osborne, Far West Divisional Ski Proficiency Advisor who supervises testing and training of patrolmen. The patrolman is easy to spot on the slopes with his rust-colored parka with a cross emblazoned on it. His primary function is that of a first aider. He must be able to treat injuries, such as a broken leg, quickly and efficiently and be capable of transporting an injured skier to qualified medical help.

The right to wear the rust-colored parka is not had for the asking.

"On the contrary," said Osborne, "a prospective patrolman must first have an advanced first aid card from the American Red Cross. Next he, or she, should contact a particular ski area patrol or one of the eight metropolitan patrols in the Bay Area. A metropolitan patrol member is able to patrol at any area."

The next step is to take the introductory ski patrol or one of the eight metropolitan patrols in the Bay Area. A metropolitan patrol member is able to patrol at any area."

The next step is to take the introductory ski patrol course: rules, history, winter first aid, avalanche dangers. Then comes final testing of first aid techniques (written and practical), skiing ability in all types of conditions and handling of equipment. Finally an endurance test on skis is given. After you pass all these things, you are then a qualified basic ski patrolman. A refresher course is mandatory each year.

As a metropolitan patrolman, your next move is to go to an area about 8 o'clock some morning and volunteer to serve that day. Unless that area is already overloaded with patrolmen, you'll be assigned to patrol a certain lift or section of the ski area. In the afternoon, you'll probably get another spot. After a while, a patrolman will usually stick to one or two favorite areas where he's assured a spot. True, he skis for free, but you can bet he earns his rides. Being the first one up the mountain in the morning and the last one off in the afternoon is not uncommon.

In his first aid pack the patrolman carries everything from avalanche cord to a snake-bite kit — that's right, a snake-bite kit. Bandages, dressings, splits, knife etc. are standard equipment.

A basic patrolman can become a senior patrolman, and the top of the line is the honorary title of national patrolma. This is achieved upon special recommendation of a region. The National Ski Patrol should not be confused with registered area professional patrolman — a paid, full-time job.

Funds for the NSP volunteer service come from certain fund raising activities and donations.

Let's hope you'll never need the services of the National Ski Patrol, but if you do, you can be sure they're trained to know what to do.

Marin Catholic Wins In Non-League Tennis

Playing without their two top singles players, Bill Kinser and Kevin Waltz, the Marin Catholic High School tennis team yesterday nipped Cardinal Newman High at Santa Rosa in a non-league tennis match, 3-2.

Kinser and Waltz were busy in another school activity, but their teammates came through for the victory in their first match of the season. Winners for Marin were John Beritzhoff and Tom Jasek in singles and the doubles team of George DeUrioste and Tony Trembley.

Mountain Shadow Wins

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI)— Mountain Shadow outdueled favored Star Pool over the final few yards Wednesday to win the featured North Oakland Optimist Club Purse at Golden Gate Fields by half a length.

B. D. Ball finished a well-beaten third in the field of eight three-year-olds and Nephew Tom was fourth.

Verne H. Winchell Jr.'s Mountain Shadow and Star Pool entered the stretch on even terms. But jockey Duke Wellington inched Mountain Shadow past Star Pool just before the tape.

Mountain Shadow paid $10 to win while covering the mile and a sixteenth in 1.44 2-5.

Frazier Joins Ranks Of Myth Destroyers

NEW YORK — The heavyweight champion of the world, his face like a broken bottle, sat with an ice pack on a swollen eye, licked his clotted blood off his lips, and contemplated what he had done.

He was now at one with Gene Tunney, Sandy Saddler, Jess Willard — the other myth-destroyers of our time.

THE PUBLIC seldom forgives them. They are the athletic equivalent of John Wilkes Booth, Benedict Arnold, Aaron Burr and The Duke of Wellington.

People thought they hated Dempsey till they saw him, blinded, battered, groping his way to center ring against a confident Tunney, pausing to listen for the sound of breathing because that was the only way he would know which direction Tunney went. That, and the thud of fists on his eye, and the sudden sharp pain in his kidneys.

People think that, in boxing, happiness is a thing called "Joe," who dreamt of the day when the Champ would be just a guy called Joe, may have third thoughts. It must be remembered some people rejoiced at the first Louis-Schmeling fight. But vengeance is a mean-spirited emotion at best. It sours in the stomach like wine turned to vinegar. Vengeance based on bigotry is the stale, bile liquor from the vineyards of ignorance, the bitter brew of old, defeated men. The young, the noble, the wise, and even the foolish reject it as a call to things that never really were, only appeared to be.

THIS IS NOT to say Joe Frazier should be banished to Shark Island or have his passport picked up. He is a simple, stoic man, who suffers for his money and his meals, much like his slave ancestors, he has no capacity for messianic ego trips, his charisma is an honest day's work for an honest day's wages. "I don't read," he says. " I CAN read. I just don't. My wife and my daughters, they read. They tell me."

Joe rides motorcycles, eats pork, considers himself just another Protestant American. He sees no visions, dances to no celestial lyres, but rather to the guitar rock of his own group of peers. He does not see himself on a white charger and plumed helmet. He is no Cyrano. He talks in prose. Boxing is just another better-paying slaughterhouse job. He could lose with a shrug. Or, win with one. "I fight for money," he says simply. For pride? Maybe. But for no other abstraction like God, country, Yale, or the ages. He beats people as impersonally as a guy beating carpets. His imagination is not overheated. He is fearless. You figure he would climb the Empire State Building and swat airplanes if the price were right. The only uncharacteristic thing he did in Madison Square Garden the other night was drop his arms and taunt Ali to hit him. It was a throwback to the "My-old-man-can-lick-your-old-man" days of the ghetto.

ALI IS AN ENCHANTED boy by comparison. In a sense, he never grew up. He believes in his fantasies. He is Peter Pan and Capt. Hook all rolled into one. He is at once irritating and disarming. He is as mystical as a gypsy caravan. You have the feeling he will turn into a butterfly — or a swan — any minute. In action, he was beautiful, a virtuoso. A fight was a concert, a choreography, a rhapsody. He lifted it out of the brutal, the banal, out of the primordial ooze, and gave it grace and form. Not for him the witless aggression, the crass eye-trading, the trench slogging of armies in the night.

Where did this gifted half-fawn, half-man go? Who was this imposter Monday night, making his fight like a guy standing in wet concrete? What happened to the poetry, the dance? Who stopped the music?

"Society!" cry the liberals. "A just wrath!" cry the conservatives.

"JOE FRAZIER," says a small, still voice. There's always a Joe Frazier. His name is Willard Tunney, Marciano or Sadler. "There's always someone better than you are," warns the oldest dictum of the prize ring. You are never a fully rounded pug 'til you find this out. Greb was better than Tunney for one night. Langford was better than Jack Johnson, if you believe those who knew them both. One who did was Jack Johnson. Schmeling was better than Louis in June of 1936.

But men will gather in saloons a hundred years from today and they will talk of the brute force of Marciano, the tigerish savagery of Dempsey, the blur that was Joe Louis' punches, the laughing skill of Johnson. And they will talk of the abstraction that was Clay or Ali, as a shining moment in Fistiana, a man who GLOWED.

Joe Frazier? Joe Frazier makes his fight like the German air force. He sends punches out in squadrons taking to the air in saturation bombing. Losses may be heavy, but the few that get through will sap the enemy. For Joe, the eyes, ears, nose and blood are expendable. "Let me go straighten my face," he said matter-of-factly after the fight the other night, holding the broken shards of flesh into place. "I'm not always this ugly."

HE MAY HAVE punched his way into ostracism. He may have knocked Ali into the arms of America at last. He may have stilled more than the boasting; he may have stilled an art form.

"I thought he would come to me and apologize," complained Joe after the fight. In the minds of many, it is Joe Frazier who should do the apologizing.

GIANT PROSPECTS

Pitching, Infield Keys To Success

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—A rebuilt pitching staff and a new double play combination are the keys to success for the San Francisco Giants in 1971.

"Every thing we do this year will depend on our pitching and defense up the middle," says Charlie Fox as he starts his first full year as Giant skipper.

And with pitching and defense foremost on his mind, the emphasis has been with the youngsters in the San Francisco camp this spring.

"If we want to move up," says Fox, "the kids are going to have to show the way. While that may sound like a big order, it really isn't because some of these kids I'm talking about are capable of doing it."

Then Fox ticks off names such as Steve Stone, Frank Reberger, Rich Robertson, Ron Bryant, Skip Pitlock, Chris Speier, Chris Arnold, Bernie Williams and George Foster. All except Speier, Arnold and Stone are known to Giant fans but it's the three newcomers Fox is looking to for the greatest help.

A return to form by Marichal is the first order of business and if spring training is an indicator, the Giants have nothing to worry about because Juan, who suffered from poor health last year, is throwing hard again, and effectively.

Perry, a 23-game winner last year, can be expected to do as well again. At least the Giants expect him to.

From there Fox has question marks.

Pitlock, the only lefthander in the group, split 10 decisions last year after being called up from Phoenix. If he makes normal progress then the Giants will have their first plus.

They are looking for two more pluses from Reberger and Stone. Reberger was 7-8 with a 5.57 earned run average in 1970, a year he was shifted from the bullpen to a starting job and back again. Fox wants him to be a starter this year.

Stone is a stocky righthander trying to make it from double AA and everyone in the Giant organization thinks he can make the jump.

"All he has done is impress me," says Fox. "This kid strikes out people, and I like that."

Don McMahon, who celebrated his 41st birthday in January, is the No. 1 reliever. Mike Davison, who complements McMahon because he's a lefty, and Jerry Johnson, are the other relievers certain of jobs. Bryant, a lefthander, and Robertson, a righthander, look like the long relievers and spot starters.

Fox thinks pitching could become his club's strong suit before the season is out.

"All these fellows can pitch," he says. "Now, all they have to do is show me, and I think they will."

Hal Lanier played shortstop and Tito Fuentes handled second base last year. The combo wasn't regarded as one of the best in baseball, so Fox is moving this spring to make some changes, if he can.

Speier and Arnold played together at Amarillo last year and spent the winter in Southern California practicing making double plays. That latter fact has not been lost on Fox and in training camp he is giving them a chance to make the club.

"Speier has great range, quick hands and a strong arm," says Fox. "Now if he can hit he will be a big asset to us."

Speier hit .283 at Amarillo and Arnold batted .273. As of the moment, Speier looks like a cinch to open at short while the jury is out on Arnold.

Fox isn't sure of who will play where because Lanier and Fuentes still are very much in the picture, but it looks like a case of they will play only if the kids fail to make the grade.

Outside of that combination the Giants will go with the same bunch which scored more runs than the Reds last year—Dick Dietz behind the plate, Willie McCovey at first, Alan Gallagher at third, Ken Henderson in left, Willie Mays in center and Bobby Bonds in right.

Frank Johnson, last year's "super sub," will be back as the team's No. 1 handyman, leaving room for Foster and Williams, both young and promising, as the spare outfielders.

"If our pitching turns out as I expect it to and we work out something at second and short," says Fox cautiously, "I think we can be in the race. The Reds are the team to beat, but neither the Dodgers nor the Astros will be pushovers. Our race should be a real good one."

Novato Defeated In Track Opener

The Novato High School Hornets opened their 1971 track and field season yesterday by getting clobbered by both Lincoln and Galileo high schools of San Francisco in a three way meet at Lincoln.

The Hornets partly salvaged the afternoon by winning the Class B meet, but in the varsity competition they scored only 21 points, to 40 for Gailileo and 117 for Lincoln. The Marin County Athletic League Club did not take a first place.

Skip McNeil won both the 440 and the discus to pace Novato's Class B team to a one point victory over Galileo. The Hornets had 76, the Lions 75 and Lincoln 34.

Let's Knock The Nonsense Out Of GLASS-BELTED TIRES!

Every company makes a fiber glass polyester tire. Every company makes more than one. Their best being good - the others not as good.
Many companies have copyrighted names for the tires, such as Poly-glas - Sup-R-Belt - Dura-glas - Dyna-glas - Perm-A-Glas and so on and on. NOW NOTE - regardless of their name or the manufacturers - if they are a 2+2 belted tire and the companies top one, they are all pretty much the same in quality and therefore performance. If they are a step below the firm's best then they will perform that much less.
Fiberglas Tires are not as good as the top Radial tires, in fact they came into existence when the American Mfg. failed on his first attempt at making radials in 67 and 68. Some firms make fabulous claims for their glass belted tires. In buying, keep in mind what I stated above PLUS THIS FACT - of the over 3000 brands you have to choose from in domestic tires - THEY ARE ALL MADE BY ONE OF ONLY ELEVEN MANUFACTURERS. I make this point to show that glas tire for glas tire, they're all pretty much the same - as long as you compare like for like, whether the tire is Goodyear, Firestone, Atlas, Shell Oil, Union Oil, Sears, Wards - regardless of the vast price difference, your problem? Knowing what is like to like. AND THAT FOLKS IS THE TRUTH.

Dixie Teachers Ask For 10% Pay Raises

Dixie Teachers Association last night asked district trustees for pay raises averaging 10 to 11 per cent for the 1971-72 school year. The cost was estimated at $284,860.

The board members, with little comment, referred the request to their Citizens Finance Advisory Group and to district administrators for evaluation, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

The adviscry group will hold an informal meeting Wednesday to discuss the salary proposals and other suggestions made by Campbell, the superintendent said today.

Trustees spent much of last night's meeting listening to reports from the financial advisors. Group chairman Duncan Davidson predicted district expenditures of $4,136,000 for 1971-72, exclusive of any salary changes. Expected revenue surplus will be $221,000, and the reserve carry-over is expected to be $375,000, Davidson told the board.

Dixie spends more than the state average for direct instruction services such as teaching, but teachers' pay is relatively low — particularly for beginning teachers, the board was told. The small property tax base meant that with the highest school district tax rate in Marin, Dixie ranked 15 among the 17 districts in Marin on per-pupil expenditures, the board was told.

Dixie School District Trustees Also:

CALENDAR — Approved the school calendar for 1971-72, with classes to begin Sept. 13 and end June 15, the same as San Rafael schools, but including a total of 178 school days.

PERSONNEL — Hired teacher Linda Mottini at $2,864 for the remainder of the school year, for Miller Creek School; Ralph Milner as district maintenance mechanic at $2,600 for the rest of the year; Daniel DeKay as part-time custodian at Vallecito School for $480 for the rest of the year and Denise Walker as part-time clerk at Dixie School, $519.

EXPERIMENT — Referred back to Campbell, the request of speech therapist Elaine Koel for one day's paid leave each week to research and test new ideas in district classrooms.

CANDIDATES — Welcomed to the meeting all seven candidates for the two trustee seats open at the April 20 election.

REGULATIONS — After considerable discussion of proposed new classroom regulations asked by American Federation of Teachers, Dixie Chapter Local 1077, took no action. The requests for such things as a blackboard in each room were felt to be mainly administrative matters rather than board issues, Campbell reported.

Group Needs Furnishings

The Committee for Prisoner Humanity and Justice needs desks, work tables, typewriters, a filing cabinet and other furnishing and supplies for its new office at 1029 Fourth Street, Room 37, San Rafael, according to attorney Salle Soladay, one of the group's founders.

Money is particularly welcome, according to Mrs. Soladay, who said committee members are paying the office rent from their own pockets.

The organization, founded in November, already has an active membership of more than 100 persons throughout the Bay Area, she said.

Town Meeters To Study Plan

The Larkspur Town Meeting committee, which has set May 1 for the city's second such gathering, will meet March 18 at 8 p.m. at city hall to continue work on a meeting agenda.

According to Joan Sestak, chairman of the committee, the May meeting will concentrate primarily on revamping of the city's general plan and related matters.

Town Meeting members have been involved with studying the general plan, the downtown plan and the park and recreation master plan since the last meeting in November, she said.

Those studies and related action by city government will form the nucleus of the next meeting, she said.

Annexation Interests San Rafael

The City of San Rafael is seriously interested in annexing the residential area of Terra Linda, which is now an island surrounded by city boundaries.

This disclosure came last night from San Rafael City Mgr. James McCown and Planning Director Herbert K. Hotchner at a meeting of the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission.

Both McCown and Hotchner said that this is a change in attitude of San Rafael, which in the past has not taken the initiative in seeking annexation.

"The attitude has gradually changed," said McCown. "If the area is annexed and the services combined, we believe we can provide at least equal services if not better at less cost.

About 10 years ago, Terra Linda residents voted down an annexation to San Rafael, and since then, the city has not officially discussed annexation.

At present, San Rafael has the Northgate Shopping Center and the Northgate Industrial Park on the east side of Highway 101. The residential area from Freitas Parkway north to Las Colindas Avenue is an island of unincorporated area. That island is served by the Terra Linda Recreation-Park District and the Terra Linda Community Services District.

McCown, speaking on behalf of Mayor C. Paul Bettini, asked LAFC to postpone action on proposed merger of the Terra Linda Recreation-Park District and the Terra Linda Community Services District so that San Rafael can study the possibility of annexing the area.

Agency commissioners voted unanimously to put over the merger question for two months, until May 12.

McCown and Hotchner emphasized that San Rafael is in no way interested in forcing annexation but is willing to consider annexing if the residents in Terra Linda want to join the city.

John F. Barrows, executive officer of LAFC said this morning he is "pleased with the development."

"It has been costly for residents to provide services for their area," said Barrows. "I believe that the services which San Rafael can provide would be better than the combination of services now provided by the county and by the Terra Linda districts."

The Marin Local Agency Formation Commission also:

ANNEXATIONS — Approved the annexation of 13 acres at Eucalyptus Avenue and Center Road and of 14 acres at Novato Boulevard and Eucalyptus Avenue to the City of Novato.

PACHECO HILLS — Approved the annexation of 35 acres to the east of Marin Valley Mobile Country Club to the City of Novato. However, the area must be annexed to the Novato Fire District before annexation to the city.

TRUMBULL ANNEX — Approved the annexation of 44 acres at the end of Trumbull Avenue to the Novato Sanitary District on condition the area is first annexed to the City of Novato. This is an expansion of the Marin Highlands Development.

DE-ANNEXATION — Voted 4-to-1 to let Robert A. Abeling of 1625 Indian Valley Road take his half-acre property out of the City of Novato.

Acrimonious Debate By Reed Disputants

Gordon C. Wright, chairman of the Reed School District board and the target of a recall drive, said today the move to oust him is "dirty politics" and charged he and his family have been defamed.

"The recall committee has used defamatory statements to obtain signatures on the recall petition," said Wright, who appeared on KTIM radio's "Marin Sounding Board" program.

His contention was refuted by Richard L. Goff, member of the recall committee, who said all statements on the recall petition are true.

The petition, signed by 1,629 Reed voters, blames Wright for fostering dissent and distrust in the district. The recall election has been set for April 20.

Goff and Kenneth Rosenthal, another recall worker, said Wright's removal is necessary to restore a breakdown in communications between the board and teachers, administrators and parents.

Wright in turn charged the recall committee is "the same group of malcontents which has been harrassing our board since the day we came into office."

Wright said he and trustees Kenneth Wells and James S. Richwagen were elected in 1969 because "the community was dissatisfied with the way the district was being run."

He characterized those favoring recall as persons who had "run the district for a decade" and were disappointed at being turned out of power.

Rosenthal, however, said the recall is not a "power play, not a conspiracy and not the gathering of malcontents and a militant minority," as Wright has charged.

In response to a question called in by a listener, who asked why 80 per cent of the board of the Reed Parent-Teacher Club has signed the recall petition, Wright said the members of the old Save Reed Committee, which opposed the three trustees elected in 1969, now belong to the parent-teacher club," Wright said.

Rosenthal, however, said it was natural for those most interested in the district to favor the recall. "There's nothing wrong with this," he said.

Robert Hayes, a supporter of Wright, charged that those on the recall committee "have yet to advance any constructive idea to improve the district. All they have done is attack the board."

Not so, said Rosenthal. "We've tried many times to offer constructive suggestions, but the board didn't listen."

The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast by tape recording at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

No Air Force Deal For Water Rates

The Air Force, which has been gunning for special consideration since the Marin Municipal Water District raised its rates by 25 per cent last July, was shot down again yesterday.

The water district board deadlocked 2-2, thus killing a request by the Air Force for consolidation of the contracts for Hamilton Air Force Base and the radar station at Mount Tamalpais. (President Robert G. Anderson was on vacation.)

General Mgr. William R. Seeger had recommended granting the consolidation request, but Director Eugene A. Miller feared it would set a precedent. Other customers with more than one hookup — school districts for example — might then ask for equal treatment, he said.

Ray W. Foreaker Jr. joined him in spiking the Air Force request.

Seeger's recommendation to consolidate the billing and charge the Air Force for the equivalent of a 10-inch meter would have cost the district $250 a year because the service would have been equivalent to that through an 11-inch line— a size the district does not have.

"I don't think the $250 will hurt as much as President Nixon," Seeger said, noting that the Air Force has been scrapping for every penny.

The 25 per cent hike to finance the $11.5 million bond issue will cost the Air Force up to $7,500 a year. It bought $28,000 to $30,000 worth of water last year, Seeger said.

During the battle, the rate increase has been submitted to headquarters in Washington, D.C., three times and been returned each time for more information and justification, Seeger said.

B. G. Grant, administrative engineer, said in a memorandum to Seeger that he met March 4 with nine Air Force officials, including one from the Aerospace Defense Command in Colorado, to discuss rates.

He said the Air Force again requested special rates, especially for the radar station which takes water directly from Lake Lagunitas.

The request was turned down as was a move to consolidate service of all federal installations in the county, Grant said.

Seeger said such consolidation is common practice in other areas.

Marin Municipal Water Board also:

NEW TANK — Awarded a $7,290 contract to Sauer Forest Products of Healdsburg for replacement of a 100,000 gallon redwood water tank in Mill Valley.

PUMP HOUSE — Hired Steve Zappetini and Sons of San Rafael to build and erect the Smith Saddle booster pump house for $3,879 almost $300 above the estimated cost.

RELOCATION — Approved calling for bids on relocation of water lines in Ross to accomodate Phase III-B of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project. Estimated cost is $15,139. The water district will pay $367; Marin County the rest.

COMPRESSORS — Agreed to buy two air compressors to destratify water at Nicasio Lake from West Coast Distributors of San Francisco for $3,102, or $300 above the estimate.

FREQUENCY METER — Voted to purchase for $2,715 a meter that would guard against radio broadcasts by the district straying from the assigned frequency.

WATERSHED STUDY — Agreed to a $3,000 contract with two University of California professors who are to make a preliminary study of environmental problems and planning needs of the district's watershed.

PIPELINE EXTENSION — Agreed to build a $4,108 pipeline extension to service four homes at the end of Twain Harte Lane, San Rafael, that now have low water pressure. The property owners are to pay $1,500 for materials; the water district is to pay the rest.

AUDITOR — Put over to March 24 hiring Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company of San Francisco as district auditor to find out the hourly rate the firm charges. Total annual cost is not to exceed $4,500.

WEDDING — Granted permission for Melvin Meyer of San Francisco to be married on the northeast shore of Bon Tempe Lake Sunday.

HIRE — Hired Bernard Stewart at $2.85 per hour to run an office machine part-time. He was the second hired of 11 new employees needed to implement the $11.5 million bond issue passed in November.

Tam Sale For Park Gets Nod

Directors of the Tamalpais Community Services District has tentatively approved purchase of the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club hall at 203 Marin Avenue, Board Chairman Glenn Lambacher reported.

Lambacher said the district agreed Tuesday to buy the building from the club for $13,388 then lease it back to the club for $133.88 a month. The improvement club will use the purchase moneyto pay off a loan on 11.5 acres of land it owns on Tennessee Valley Road, she said, then donate the property to the serivces district for a park.

The Tamalpais Community Services District also:

TREE PLANTING — Scheduled a public tree planting party on Shoreline Highway at Laurel Avenue for 9:30 a.m. Saturday. The 36 eucalyptus and pine trees to be planted have been purchased by the district and will be watered and maintained by the county, he reported.

VALLEY PLAN — Learned that the district's parks and recreation committee will work with the county in preliminary planning for a Tamalpais Valley master plan which the county will begin studying in June. Harvey Bragdon, chief of current planning for Marin County, will discuss the proposed master plan at 8 p.m. April 1 in the improvement club hall.

AGREEMENT — Signed a joint powers agreement to participate in the Marin Municipal Water District's study of sewage disposal in Southern Marin

Move To Forestall Sewage Ban

The Marin Municipal Water District board, recently initiated into the sewer business, prepared yesterday to meet its first crisis in that field.

Acting as the board of Improvement District A, it hired a consultant to find a plan that will forestall action against Mill Valley by the San Francisco Bay Area Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The water quality board last month set strict new requirements on sewage discharges by the City of Mill Valley and Richardson Bay Sanitary District that could be enforced with ban on all new construction.

Mill Valley asked the improvement district to represent it before the regional board, but the affected sanitary district decided to fight its own battle, Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger said.

He predicted that by hiring a consultant to show it is making an honest effort Mill Valley will avoid a building ban. He was not so sure about the prospects for Richardson Bay Sanitary District.

The contractor hired for $4,000 to bail Mill Valley out of its sewage problem is Yoder-Trotter-Orlob and Associates of Walnut Creek.

Half of the consulting engineers' work, which Seeger said will be beneficial to the whole improvement district, will be financed by the district.

The board made the remaining $2,000 of work contingent on Mill Valley's willingness to pay for it. Seeger said the money will be spent to engineer interim treatment facilities for the city while the improvement district develops a master plan for disposal of Southern Marin sewage.

Jean Barnard, a Mill Valley councilman, said her city will probably put up the $2,000. "I don't think we have any choice," she said. "The only thing is some of our constituents wish there were a building ban."

On the other hand she also noted that developers have panicked and begun submitting plans before they would have otherwise.

Since the water quality control board has announced it will set a hearing March 25 on whether to issue an order barring treated sewage that doesn't meet its standard, the consultant has only two weeks to work with, Seeger said.

However, Seeger said the work can be done in that time.

Seeger said the goal is a cease-and-desist order that will give the improvement district time to find the most effective means of water disposal for Southern Marin.

Improvement District A, which includes all of Southern Marin except Tiburon Sanitary District and Belvedere, was formed last year under pressure from the Regional Water Quality Control Board to end all dumping in Richardson and San Francisco bays.

Dixie Candidates' Night Scheduled

All seven contestants for two trustee seats open on the Dixie School District board will appear at a candidates' night at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the multipurpose room of Santa Marguerita School, according to Mrs. Stewart Lindauer, chairman of the school's Parent-Teachers Association.

District voters will choose successors in the April 20 election for Trustees Earl H. Koehler and Melvin R. Sidham. Neither trustee is seeking reelection.

Injured In Cotati

Hazel Brody Tomlinson, 26, of Santa Rosa, was treated at Petaluma General Hospital for head and knee cuts suffered in a two-car accident at 11:45 p.m. yesterday at Old Redwood Highway and East Cotati Avenue, Cotati. Police lacked details of the accident.

DO IT YOURSELF CORNER

TIP OF THE WEEK: Lumber prices are often quoted by the board foot. To figure the number of board feet in a piece of lumber, first determine its square feet. This is the width in feet times the length in feet. Then multiply the square feet by the thickness in inches. However, if a board is less than one inch thick, multiply by one.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Results Are Still Out On Smoking During A Pregnancy

Almost all drugs taken by the pregnant mother cross (via the placental) from her circulation to that of the fetus. The majority of these agents neither benefit nor harm the baby. A few chemicals have adverse effects but reactions take place only when the products are used during the first three months, when the fetus is developing. Thalidomide is the most notorious example of this situation. If the mother is a morphine addict, the baby usually becomes addicted while in the uterus. Following birth, the drug supply is cut off and unless the newborn receives gradually-reduced doses of morphine, he is likely to develop severe withdrawal symptoms.

NICOTINE ALSO passes into the fetal circulation via the placenta. This occurs every time the pregnant woman smokes. As a rule, the habit does not harm the infant although it may temprarily increase the fetal heart beat. A report in Medical Tribune may alter our thinking along these lines. British physicians found that the babies born to mothers who smoked more than 10 cigarettes a day during pregnancy had a greater chance of developing convulsions than infants of nonsmoking women.

THIS EVIDENCE is based on an English study of 17,000 babies born in a one week period in 1958. Eighty-nine per cent of these children were reexamined seven years later and the results are still being processed. The investigators plan an additional examination when the children reach the age of 12.

ACCORDING TO the report, 18 per cent of the mothers who smoked 10 or more cigarettes a day had children who developed convulsions in the first seven years of life. This was in contrast to the 13 per cent who did not smoke. The actual number of epileptic children in the first group was 93, some whom were severely afflicted.

NEEDS MORE COVERS

H. R. writes: Is it a sign of poor health to require more covers than other people do at night?

REPLY

Some persons who are always cold have a thyroid deficiency; others are underweight, under par, or anemic. Many healthy individuals appear to have a lower thermostat than others and always complain of the room being cold and the need for warmer clothes. Electric (or wool) blankets and flannel pajamas are made to order for these people.

ECTOPIC PREGNANCY

Mrs. E. G. writes: Is it possible for a woman to have a baby after an ectopic pregnancy?

REPLY

Yes. Ectopic refers to conception outside the uterus — usually in a tube. As a rule, this tube is destroyed by the pregnancy but the other will continue to function.

SPASTIC GULLET

D. E. writes: What can be done for a spastic esophagus?

REPLY

Avoid rough and irritating foods. In addition, drugs, such as belladonna or ProBanthine relax the esophagus. Sips of warm water also help. In some instances, the tightened area must be mechanically stretched.

GAGS WHEN BRUSHING

D. O. C. writes: Why do I gag when I brush my teeth?

REPLY

You probably have an overly sensitive gag reflex.

Nixon Asks Major Overhaul Of Courts

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) —President Nixon called for a major streamlining of the nation's court operations today, likening the current chaotic system to "trying to brush back a flood with a broom."

He endorsed establishment of a National Center for State Courts to conduct research and exchange information on procedural problems.

He also recommended use of "parajudges" —trained administrators working under the supervision of attorneys —to help relieve judges of some of their administrative burdens.

"A system of criminal justice that can guarantee neither a speedy trial nor a safe community cannot excuse its failure by pointing to an elaborate system of safeguards for the accused," Nixon said in a speech prepared for the National Conference on the Judiciary.

"Justice dictates not only that the innocent man go free, but that the guilty be punished for his crime," the President added.

Nixon again called for reform of the nation's prisons which he said too long have been "warehouses for human rubbish" which merely furnish inmates "an advanced course in crime."

Nixon addressed the group at the conference center here following an hour helicopter flight from Washington.

His audience at the four-day conference consisted of 600 judges, lawyers and law enforcement officials from practically every state and level of government.

The President cited crowded court dockets as one of the major obstacles problems in the judicial process.

"justice delayed is not only justice denied," he said. "It is also justice circumvented, justice mocked and the system of justice undermined."

He noted that accused persons in criminal cases in Great Britain are brought to trial within 60 days after arrest, and most appeals are decided within three months after they are filed. In this country, however, the delay between arrest and trial is more than five months in New York and Philadelphia, more than six months in Ohio, and six to nine months in Chicago, he observed.

The average time for processing appeals is 18 months, he said.

"Interminable delay in civil cases; unconscionable delays in criminal cases; inconsistent and unfair bail impositions; a steadily growing backlog of work that threatens to make the delays worse tomorrow than they are today—all this concerns everyone who wants to see justice done," Nixon said.

"Overcrowded penal institutions; unremitting pressure on judges and prosecutors to process cases by plea bargaining; . . . the clogging of court calendars with inappropriate or relatively unimportant matters—all this sends everyone in this system of justice home at night feeling as if they have been trying to brush back a flood with a broom."

The President said the problem has been compounded by the fact that the nation has turned increasingly to the courts to cure deep-seated ills of society and as a result the courts have "burdens unknown to the legal system a generation ago."

Limiting reform to more judges, more police and more lawyers operating in the same system will simply produce "more backlogs, more delays, more litigation, more jails and more criminals," Nixon declared.

"What is needed now is genuine reform—the kind of change that requires imagination and daring—that demands a focus on ultimate goals."

Bill To Restrict Liquor Sales

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Hoping to reduce traffic accidents caused by drunken drivers, Sen. John L. Harmer yesterday introduced a bill to restrict liquor store sale hours to between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The Glendale Republican said a study by a special task force found that many drivers who had been drinking prior to major accidents had purchased a bottle at a liquor store within an hour of the crash.

Harmer said if the state can "shut off the supply," there is a good chance "we could ameliorate the probability of accidents."

The lawmaker said the off-sale liquor industry received his proposal in a "mild way," although he didn't say whether it would support the measure.

Currently, package liquor stores can open at 6 a.m. and remain open until 2 a.m.

Reagan Loss Over Cuts In Medi-Cal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has suffered his first major defeat of the legislative session over the same issue which earlier won him his biggest victory—Medi-Cal.

Rejecting administration money arguments, the Assembly Wednesday passed to the Senate a bill rescinding many of Reagan's controversial Medi-Cal cuts.

The vote was 54-22. It came after a day of hurriedly-called Republican caucuses, fruitless negotiations with the administration and angry tempers.

A bi-partisan coalition of 14 Republicans and 40 Democrats provided the necessary two-thirds vote for the bill, authored by GOP Assemblyman Gordon W. Duffy of Hanford. All the no votes were Republicans.

The dramatic 54th and deciding vote was cast by Republican Assemblyman W. Don MacGillivray of Santa Barbara.

"I think it's a good bill," McGillivray told newsmen afterward. "Why should I be worried about what the governor's thoughts are on it?"

The bill would restore some Medi-Cal benefits for foster and crippled children and mental patients. School children on Medi-Cal once again could obtain free eyeglasses. More prescription drugs would be available for patients. Nursing home fees, now $12.60 per day, would return to $14.

Also, counties would be guaranteed that their costs would not increase because of the state cuts.

It was over the county guarantee—along with easing of the prescription drug restrictions—that negotiations broke down between Reagan and Duffy. Sources said Reagan's aides insisted a lid should be placed on the amount of money the state would reimburse the counties for Medi-Cal expenditures.

Duffy said he would try to work out a compromise with Reagan before pushing the bill in the Senate. The administration has threatened a veto if agreement cannot be reached.

Reagan announced the Medi-Cal rollbacks in December to avoid a $140 million deficit. He won a crucial legislative victory on Feb. 22 when assembly Republicans killed a Democratic bill to restore all services.

Duffy estimated his measure to restore some benefits would cost $30 million during the remainder of this fiscal year, which ends June 30. Reagan has proposed a broad welfare and Medi-Cal "reform" program he hopes will take effect during the next fiscal year.

Duffy's cost estimate was disputed by Assembly Republican leader Robert T. Monagan of Tracy, who contended the figure could hit $80 million.

"There is no way this money is going to be available," Monagan argued during floor debate. "I don't want to be on record as adding to the already strained financial burden of the state."

But Duffy countered "there are children that are being hurt" and counties threatened with property tax increases.

Medi-Cal provides free health care services for 2.4 million low-income Californians, most of whom are on welfare.

In a plea for Republicans to join Democrats in opposing Reagan, assembly speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, told his colleagues:

"We go around beating our chests about being independent. We don't have to line up after 'the man' every single time. This bill deals with people's health and the kind of medical care they receive. For once, let's do what we know we have to do."

It was the first time this session Democrats have overcome Reagan's opposition and passed a bill requiring a two-thirds vote. Their new majority is a slim 43-37.

The bill was the creation of a bi-partisan committee chaired by Duffy and appointed by Moretti.

When floor debate first began Wednesday, Duffy wanted to send the bill back to committee request. But Democrats balked. Then a tentative agreement between Reagan and Duffy fell apart.

At one point during the five hours of jockeying, administration lobbyists warned Duffy he could not get the bill passed without Reagan's support. Duffy said he could.

Contractors, Environment Compared

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —Life on earth can be improved but man's efforts must be compatible with the processes of nature, Bureau of Reclamation Commissioner Ellis L. Armstrong told the National Convention of the Associated General Contractors yesterday.

"We must make certain that our projects meet every standard in the President's efforts to improve the quality of the environment" he said.

"We must manage our natural resources and our man-made environment to make certain they are compatible."

Armstrong said in a speech that the reclamation bureau was placing greater dependence on an interdisciplinary approach to planning and construction "which will make us more perceptive of all the interrelated impacts of our work and more viable in fulfilling the needs of the 70s."

He also reviewed the status of major planned projects such as the Central Arizona Project, and Auburn Dam in California and the Crystal Dam on Colorado.

He said it is too early to tell the effect of the President's suspension of the Davis-Bacon Act requirements on federal construction and expressed hope it would help control inflation. He said rising prices, if not curbed, will mean appropriations will not cover added costs.

Armstrong said the bureau's construction budget proposed for 1972 will total nearly $267 million. He called it one of the largest budgets we have had dollarwise but noted a lot of work is underway and available funds must be spread around thinner than is desirable.

Armstrong said the nation is losing ground in construction of electric generating facilities.

"Brownouts," he said, "have resulted from the inability of the utilities and the environmentalists, or at least some of the most vocal of the latter group, to find a middle road on where to locate the plants, how to route transmission lines and how to minimize air and water pollution."

He also said siting for nuclear plants had been blocked by fear of nuclear pollution and accidental explosion.

"It also has been an uphill battle for the industry to construct thermal generating stations utilizing conventional fuel because of growing concern over air and water pollution. The concern is not wholly unjustified."

Museums Shut; Strike Spreads

ROME (UPI) — Museums stayed shut today, gasoline pumps closed again and bakers called another strike for Friday.

Museum and library attendants throughout the country were in the fourth day of a nationwide strike for higher pay and larger staffs. Some of them demonstrated outside the Education Ministry Wednesday.

Rome gasoline distributors began the week's second 24-hour strike Wednesday night, demanding higher pay and a simultaneous lunch break. Under present arrangements, attendants take lunch breaks in two shifts.

Flying Around, Top To Bottom

GENEVA (UPI) —Georges Buttex plans to fly around the world the hard way —over the top and under the bottom.

He plans to do it in a small, 350-horsepower single-engine plane crammed with cannisters containing thousands of gallons of fuel. Takeoff time is set for exactly 8 p.m. next Dec. 10 from Geneva's International Airport.

Precisely 240 hours or 10 days later, if all goes well, Buttex will put down again on the same runway, having written a new chapter in aviation —the first man to have flown around the world by way of the North and South Poles, a flight of 24,000 miles.

Georges Buttex is Swiss, 49 years old, married and with four children. He has the permanently crinkled eyes of a professional pilot and the soft, calm voice of most flying instructors.

"About three years ago I was looking at a book of flying records and I saw that people have flown around the world before but only around the equator," he said. "So I thought, why not up one side, over the North Pole, down the other side, over the South Pole and back up again to the starting point.

"One look at the weather charts soon told me the reason. If you fly around the equator the weather is more or less constant. But over the top and bottom you meet every possible condition.

"In fact, the South Pole is permanently swept by gales going up to 100 knots and the only time a light plane could make the passage is during 10 days in December.

"So," Bottex said simply, "I decided to try it."

From Geneva, he will head north and two hours later will be astride the Greenwich Meridian which he will follow for the next 10 days. There will be 180 hours of flying and 60 hours on the ground for refuelling and completing formalities to establish records. The first stop will be Amchitka in the Aleutian islands. Then Nadi in the Fijis; Christchurch, New Zealand; William's Base, South Pole; Amundsen-Scott Base, South Pole; Accra, Ghana. Then Geneva.

Buttex will actually take over the controls only on takeoff and landing or if something goes wrong. The real pilot will be a miniature computer installed on board. Altitude, climate and meteorological data already have been computerized by electronic engineers and forms the "memory" of the computer flight commander. This way Buttex will be able to sleep —in itself an accomplishment in the small cockpit and requiring an astronaut's psychological training —and thus establish speed records otherwise impossible.

Average speed for the flight will be 150 m.p.h.

BOULDER, COLO.

Works At Being Quiet Town

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — This may be the quietest town of its size in the United States and retired Air Force Lt. Col. Tom Martin has a lot to do with that quietness.

Martin, originally from Longview, Tex., is "Boulder noise control officer." He took the job in this 60,000-person university town nestled in the foothills of the Colorado Rockies a year ago.

His job is to enforce what he believes is one of the most enlightened yet realistic noise control ordinances in the United States and all on a basic program budget in 1970 of $11,000. That includes his salary, equipment, part time help —everything.

Boulder, home of the University of Colorado, the National Center for Atmospheric Research, and many other scientific operations is noted for its concern with the environment.

But Martin believes the town's noise control program could easily be applied to any town, and he says he is concerned that the experience he and others have gathered won't be getting the attention it deserves in President Nixon's noise standards under the Environmental Safety Act.

How it started was that a group of approximately 2,300 petitioned for —and got —a "Mayor's Committee on Noise." The committee began by setting out to establish a rational noise limit, measured in decibels. Various decibel levels were tested on members of the petition group and, Martin said, the tests "actually demonstrated to those signing what the actual irritation level for humans is . . . "

Martin defines the level finally established, 80 decibels, as "the point where you can no longer carry on a conversation without raising your voice."

Then the City Council drew up a simple, one-page ordinance and hired Martin to enforce it.

They got a bargain.

Martin said court summonses issued to violators of the noise limit must be carefully documented with measurements taken at a 25-foot distance and charted on a graph. There was no such equipment available when Martin started, so he designed and built his own.

During 1970 (the ordinance took effect Feb. 20), Martin issued 625 warning citations and 35 court summonses to noise violators.

He explained that the 80 decibel limit contains one variance —for trucks. "Even a well-mufflered truck can't maintain the 80 decibel level, so trucks over 10,000 pounds are allowed up to 88 decibels, but restricted to main thoroughfares during the evening and night."

Why all the concern over a few decibels of noise one way or the other?

Martin, well versed in his second career, reels off the statistics in reply:

—"Anything over 80 decibels penetrates your mind, causing you to immediately lose four seconds concentration, and four seconds before you can get back . . . "

—"It hurts older people the most, because their inner ears have grown more rigid and can't 'knock out' noise . . . they're actually in physical pain."

—"Noise, even as low as 78 decibels, could kill a heart patient, because noise 'shock effect' (like someone pointing a gun at you) speeds up breathing ... constricts capillaries . . . your heart is getting less blood."

—"At around 83 decibels, you're going to have 50 per cent more cholesterol in your blood stream than mine, which is just shortening your life . . . "

Martin can go on, and has, in lectures before thousands in Boulder, including students whom he finds very receptive to his facts and cooperative in muffling "hot" cars and motorcycles.

Older Drivers Told: Drive Less At Night

NEW YORK (UPI)—A firm specializing in insurance for the older driver suggests such persons cut down on nighttime driving, doing as little of same as possible.

"An older driver's eyes tend to be slower in reacting to changes in light than a younger person, and as nighttime driving requires a constant adjustment to oncoming headlights, night driving presents a problem for many older drivers," said Robert Pollack, executive vice president of the firm, Colonial Penn Insurance Co.

Lavish Scheme To Build London Globe

LONDON (UPI) —Since that June day in 1613 when William Shakespeare's theater burned down, London has survived for 358 years without a replica of the Globe Theater. Now comes the American.

Sam Wanamaker, the American actor and moviemaker, is trying to build a Shakespearean Disneyland-on-the-Thames; whose heart would be a precise copy of Shakespeare's Globe.

Wanamaker wants to take over a huge chunk of central London — a riverside stretch three-quarters of a mile long — and put up yesterday.

A Globe theater—open to the sky as Shakespeare's was but with a plastic roof in the rather likely event of rain—is just the start. Wanamaker also wants:

—To reassemble "an authentic 17th Century street" containing "restaurants, pubs, coffee shops, exhibitions and craft shops."

— To reconstruct totally-ruined Winchester Palace for use as "a concert room for music of the Purcell period."

—A major hotel on the bank of the Thames.

—A center for scholarly Shakespeare studies.

—To convert railway bridge arches "into a museum devoted to the history of prisons, Dickensian London and to the 19th Century labor movement."

—To create studio space for artists being tossed out of a huge area they currently occupy around London's docks.

—Eventually to include "hotels, houses, shops, apartment buildings, open spaces, playgrounds, office buildings, a trade center and another theater, should the demand warrant it, for performances of the works of Shakespeare's great contemporaries."

All this is, perhaps, not so wild a dream.

Wanamaker has enlisted impressive support. He has a board of trustees which reads like Who's Who. Government authorities back his idea. Businesses are behind it. His "Globe Playhouse Trust" is a going non-profit concern.

But most of the land is locked in 125-year leases owned by Liang, a huge property development company. It wants to put up not only a replica Globe but towering office buildings.

Wanamaker is now working to reconcile his plan with Liang's. It seems likely that something will be worked out.

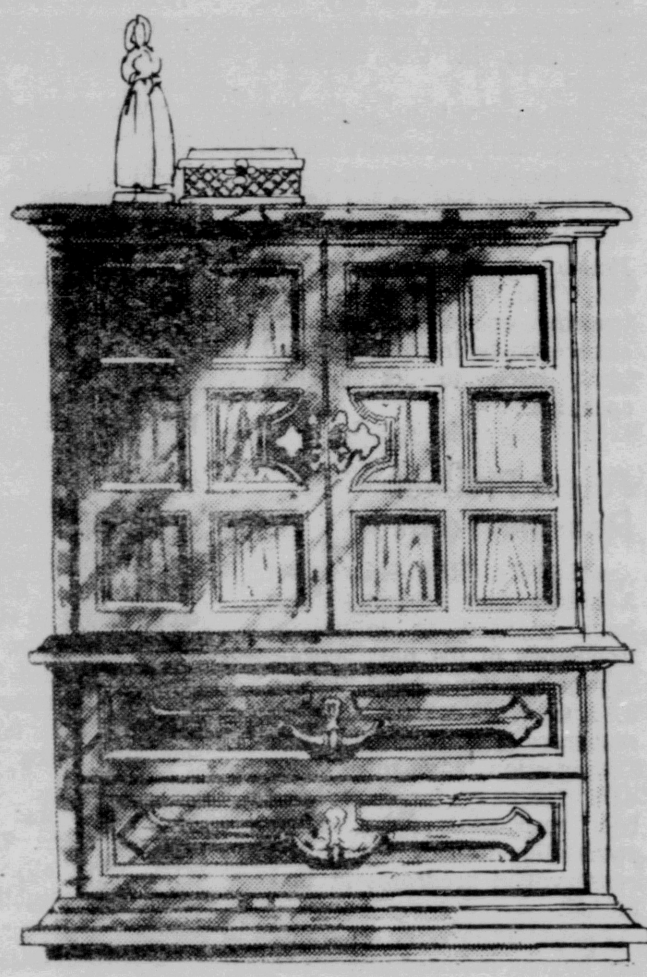
Tonight . . . WHILE MARIN SLEEPS



Employees of Casa Marin will be busily engaged in placing 13-HOUR SALE price tags on many, many home furnishings throughout our store. Why? Because the tremendous volume of business usually anticipated at this season has not come in — to date. A lag in traffic, with its resulting loss in movement of goods, cannot be tolerated for many days.

Fresh, new merchandise arrives almost daily and with these arrivals comes the problem of locating such items in the store . . . and in the warehouse. Now, to move out some $20,000 worth of overstock in one day takes some real doing. And the only way that we know to accomplish same is with a hotter-than-hot, door-busting sale. Consequently, we are offering TOMORROW (Friday) $115,400 worth of quality home furnishings for only $87,275 . . . every single item at a substantial saving to you.

This certainly will be the BIGGEST ONE-DAY SAVINGS OPPORTUNITY OF THE YEAR. So don't be late. Casa Marin opens at 9 A.M. tomorrow morning. No matter what furnishings you need or want for your home, you'll find them . . . and at almost unbelievable low, low prices.

SAKE MAKING PLANT

Honolulu Only Place Outside Of The Orient

HONOLULU (UPI)—Because a Japanese without his sake is an unhappy Japanese, Honolulu is the site of the only concern outside the Orient that makes Japan's favorite brew.

And the brewery here is the only one anywhere that produces sake (pronounced Sah-kee) the year around. It bears the intriguing name of Honolulu Sake Brewery and Ice Co., and there's a story to that, too.

The brewery was founded in 1908 to supply sake to the thousands of sugar plantation workers imported from Japan as cheap labor.

"With the meager wages these workers earned, there was barely enough money left to indulge in the privilege of drinking sake," said assistant brewmaster Emil A. Nomura. "And sake from Japan was expensive, because of import duties and things."

The brewery was completely refrigerated, necessary in Hawaii's tropical climate because the fermentation-mold process is easily spoiled by heat. This also made it possible to produce sake all year long, instead of only in winter months as is the tradition in Japan.

The company did so well that it sold hundreds of thousands of gallons of the beverage—until Prohibition. Then a little ingenuity saved the day, and produced today's mating of ice and sake in the corporate name.

With a ready-built, giant-sized refrigerator, the owners turned down the thermostat and turned the building into an ice house.

When repeal came, the Honolulu Sake Brewery and Ice Co., Ltd., brought in new brewing equipment and five sake experts from Japan and went back to its original operation.

But not for long. World War II brought a ban on the use of rice—sake's principal ingredient—for anything but food. So once again the firm switched products.

"We couldn't use rice for making sake, so we started making shoyu (soy sauce)," said company President Shinsaburo S. Sumida.

Nowadays the firm, which resumed sake production in 1948, sells about 100,000 gallons of sake a year (it still makes shoyu, and also vinegar). Two-thirds is sold in Hawaii, and the rest goes to California for distribution across the United States.

The firm's master brewer, Takao Nihei, has been honored by the Brewmasters Association of Japan for a number of technical achievements in the brewing process.

Before World War II, there were seven sake breweries in Hawaii, but now only the Honolulu Sake Brewery remains. Why?

Said Sumida: "There's no market now. The Japanese here, especially the younger ones, drink highballs instead."

Forest Product Demand To Soar

ATLANTA (UPI)—More than 3 billion tree seedlings have been planted in industrial woodlands in the past decade, says a forestry expert. Vernon J. Knight, director of natural resources for Kimberly-Clark Corporation, says more than 6,000 company foresters have been responsible for spending some $70 million a year on conservation programs in that period.

Intensified forestry programs are helping industry prepare to meet a "soaring demand for forest products expected by the end of this century," according to Knight. Of the 510 million acres of commercial woodlands in the United States, about 65 million acres are held by industrial firms, he said.

Dangerous Homes

ROME (UPI)—Accidents in the home kill 7,500 persons and injure 1 million in Italy every year, according to official statistics. This compares with 10,000 killed in traffic accidents and 4,000 in accidents at working places.

Scientists See Breakthrough On Mars Data In Summer Pass

HILO, Hawaii (UPI)—Scientists at the world's highest observatory are undertaking a special year-long project to probe the mysteries of Mars.

On Aug. 10, Mars makes its closest approach to the earth in 15 years, and the Mauna Kea Observatory atop a 13,796-foot mountain will offer the best viewing platform in the Northern Hemisphere.

Dr. William M. Sinton, director of the observatory, is in charge of the Mars program and, with a team of astronomers, is keeping a close watch on the water vapor and carbon dioxide in the Red Planet's thin atmosphere throughout the year of study.

Sinton hopes the monitoring of water vapor will provide clues to the planet's weather patterns and that the carbon dioxide studies will throw some new light on the topography of Mars, the fourth planet from the sun and the next outside Earth.

The scientists are particularly interested in Mars' polar ice caps and their seasonal melting patterns. And, although the planet has been mapped over the years, doubts have arisen as to whether areas assumed to be mountains really are.

Water vapor and carbon dioxide are measured by spectroscopy, a method in which the image of light from a telescope is placed onto a device which then breaks the light into a rainbow-like spectrum. The spectrum is then photographed and analyzed.

"By June, Mars will be close enough for us to undertake the different kinds of observations necessary to look for rare gases in the planet's atmosphere," Sinton said. "We just don't know what we'll find."

Sinton said the observatory on the island of Hawaii which houses an 88-inch telescope, is ideal for viewing the unusual apposition of Earth and Mars because Mars will be low in the southern horizon for the more northerly latitudes, and thus more distorted.

Sinton said "Mauna Kea's height places the observatory above 80 per cent or more of the water vapor in the Earth's atmosphere, another distorting factor, and the clearer atmosphere provided by the location results in high quality viewing."

The Prince And The Naked Lady

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles was in the audience at "Heloise and Abelard" but unlike a lot of his countrymen he came to see the play and not the scene in which delectable Diana Rigg appeared in the nude.

For it is now becoming apparent that in the heir to the throne Britain has the most enthusiastic royal patron of the arts since his own great-great-great grandfather, Prince Albert, consort of Queen Victoria, a century ago.

Prince Charles goes to most good plays, musical happenings, serious films and the ballet. His private life includes many friends who are actors, musicians, painters and the like.

The 21-year-old son of Queen Elizabeth is even better qualified than Prince Albert for promoting the arts. He plays the cello and trumpet, collects classical records and likes to sing and act as often as possible.

When he went to Gordonstoun School he was a member of both the choir and the orchestra and took part in a number of public concerts in Scottish towns. At Cambridge University he was an active member of the Footlights Club which stages topical revues and played in several, with roles ranging from a garbageman to a curate.

He chose to have an orchestral concert conducted by Yehudi Menuhin for his 21st birthday party and has since paid a visit to the famous violinist's school for gifted young musicians at Stoke d'Abernon.

Queen Mother Elizabeth, herself a music lover, is delighted to have her grandson to escort her to concerts nowadays. They attended one together at the Royal Festival Hall in aid of charity. Charles also has been to private recitals and was at Covent Garden to watch the Royal Ballet dance "Sleeping Beauty."

As Prince of Wales, Prince Charles takes official interest in the affairs of the Welsh National Opera Company and they recently gave a gala performance in his honor in Cardiff. He opened a new theater in Leeds with some frank observations about modern drama in his speech. He was the first royal guest at the annual luncheon of the Performing Right Society at which its composer members presented him with a specially written work for the cello.

Rome Is Going Bankrupt Regardless Of History

ROME (UPI)—Rome has seven ancient hills named Capitoline, Palatine, Aventine, Quirinale, Viminal, Caelius and Esquiline. The tallest is Esquiline at 195 feet.

The city also has a modern day mountain—named debt. It now stands at 1.5 trillion lire ($2.4 billion) and is growing at a rate of 460 million lire ($732,480) a day.

If Rome was a business, it would declare bankruptcy.

But as capital of Italy, center of Roman Catholicism and one of history's most honored cities, Rome cannot go broke. She just goes on, living in rags on handouts and hopes.

The city owes state and commercial banks 540 billion lire ($864 million) and four of every five lire Rome collects in revenue goes to bankers.

Every city agency is in debt up to its ears. The city bus company Atac alone is 50 billion lire ($80 million) in the red on its 1970 operations.

The Royal Prerogatives Prevail

LONDON (UPI) —If it weren't for the vigilance of the House of Lords Queen Elizabeth wouldn't have a whale, a porpoise or a dolphin to her name today.

The suspicious elders of the upper house of Parliament massed behind her majesty with their votes as their ancestors once did in defense of earlier monarchs with broadsword and battle axe.

And if the Queen happens to want whale steak for the deep freeze at Buckingham Palace all she has to do when the next one is caught or strands itself ashore is pass the word to send it on.

Of course this will never happen, as Prime Minister Edward Heath's government thought the noble lords would understand when it introduced a bill to wipe out obsolete laws dating back 800 years and giving the throne a number of outdated privileges.

But no one in Britain tangles with tradition with impunity. And in spite of a witty plea by Lord Hailsham, the lord chancellor, to help modernize the statute books, the Earl of Cranbrook argued against taking away the Queen's right to first refusal of the seagoing mammals.

There was the government on one side and Cranbrook and tradition on the other and the vote was no contest. The Tory administration suffered a 53 to 30 defeat on that particular amendment, not that anybody in the outside world noticed in the furor over the bankruptcy at Rolls Royce announced the same day.

Actually Cranbrook wanted information on the capture of whales, porpoises and dolphins sent to a central point so any museum in need of a specimen could stake a quick claim. He thought the present arrangement as good as any substitute the Tories could come up with —and besides, it was hallowed by time.

Both the Queen and the heir to the throne, the Prince of Wales, had informed the government they would place their prerogatives at the disposal of Parliament for the purposes of the "Wild Creatures and Forest Laws Bill," knowing well that it isn't easy to break old customs.

For some years Queen Elizabeth's courtiers have been doing very little about collecting what are known as "feudal tenures." These are objects or duties owed the throne in return for the right to occupy certain estates. For example the Dukes of Marlborough and Wellington still have to present small flags to the Queen on the anniversaries of the battles won by their illustrious forebears at Blenheim in 1704 and Waterloo in 1815.

The Lord Mayor of London should pay six horseshoes with nails every year as rent for land where a forge was set up in St. Clement's Parish in 1235. And the Marquis of Savernake is undoubtedly ready to blow a horn if the Queen enters Savernake Forest.

But it is unlikely the Manor of Aylesbury will ever be called upon to supply straw for the Queen's bed, rushes for her bedchamber floor and three eels and two geese.

Escapist Weekends Are Urged

Toronto Telegram News Serivce

LONDON — Their lives made miserable by strike after strike, their pride hurt by the collapse of the prestigious Rolls-Royce Co., and their pockets hit by spiralling inflation, Britons are being urged to "get away from it all" and seek the Mediterranean sun.

As a price war between the country's package-tour operators has shot up, so the cost of an escapist long weekend has come spiralling down.

For instance, one firm is telling Britons to forget the postal strike and come and spend a long weekend on the Spanish island of Majorca for $25. This includes jet flight, hotel room and breakfast.

For an extra $5 all the meals are thrown in.

Britain's biggest package-tour operator, Clarkson, is offering some eye-opening bargains to customers who can get away for four or five days during the winter.

For $52, the company will put you on a modern jet, fly you all the way to Tunisia, and give you four days at a hotel in the North African country.

When it is remembered that the normal return fare by scheduled airline to Tunisia is $200, the size of the bargain becomes immediately apparent.

For five days in Majorca (with flight, hotel room, and all meals included) Clarksons only asks a mere $37.

The extras are the money you spend on drinks, bullfights and souvenirs.

Horison, another company that has joined the competition, has offered eight days at Majorca for a return fare of $37 — which covers half your food costs.

The minimum return fair to Majorca by scheduled airline costs $76.

So it is clear that the claim of the tour operator that "these are the most fantastic prices in the history of holidays abroad" is not a wild exaggeration.

Hundreds of Britons are taking advantage of these package-tour terms, for it is obviously much cheaper traveling this way than it is going independently.

The companies are able to offer such cheap holidays by chartering fleets of modern jet airlines on a year-to-year basis.

They guarantee to fill hotels all the year around and in turn get highly favorable terms, as this enables hotel owners to keep their doors open and staff employed even in the off-season.

Working on a high-turn-over, low-profit basis, the package companies are growing rapidly.

One company makes a mere $5 profit on each two-week holiday it sells, but finds it nonetheless a highly profitable business.

As a special inducement, children under 12 are given holidays at half the adult price at certain times of the year.

A family with two children can, for instance, have two weeks in Greece at Easter for a total outlay of under $500.

Travel Agent Sees Luxury Rides The Biggest Market For Trains

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI)— Luxury rail travel is alive and well in Alameda.

Richard R. Reynolds believes so strongly in the future of the passenger train that he has bought six railway cars, several with famous histories, and uses them in his travel agent business. And business is good.

"People want to travel by train and it's just a matter of providing them with good accommodations and food," said Reynolds of Great Western Tours.

"I won't say they want to travel regularly by train but there is a tremendous market for tours."

Reynolds has patterned his operations after the Pullman Co., for generations synonymous with elegant service.

"At Great Western we are continuing the tradition of the Pullman Company by operating our own small fleet of sleeping, dining and lounge cars on our tours. With our own handpicked employes, we can control all service on the train," he said.

Great Western has its own staff of porters, chefs and waiters on call for its many rail jaunts.

"One chef cooked for President Roosevelt," Reynolds said with pride.

Reynolds, whose offices are in San Francisco, keeps his cars at a railroad yard near here. "We attach our equipment to existing trains or have the railroad furnish a locomotive," he explained.

The cars include the former Gulf, Mobile and Ohio Pullman car named Samuel King Tigrett, after a pioneering railroad executive.

The Tigrett was on the famed "Midnight Special," immortalized in a song written about a convict watching the train go by his jail cell each day.

Another car, which Reynolds now calls "The Sierra Madre," was built in 1923 for the 20th Century Limited that ran between Chicago and New York. It has a buffet lounge with six bedrooms and a small kitchen.

"We have another that was built in 1914 and belonged to the private car pool that Pullman ran," Reynolds said.

"Walter Chrysler once leased it and Paderewski, the pianist and premier of Poland, leased it several times."

Nader Is Totally Dedicated

Toronto Telegram News Service

NEW YORK — Wine, women and money are the three temptations to which men often succumb.

But Ralph Nader, scourge of American industry, is interested in none of these things. Ralph is totally dedicated to his work.

The only women in his life are his two sisters, Laura, 40, and Claire, 42. Like their famous brother, both are professional successes who think nothing of working a 20-hour day.

Claire, who has never married, is a social scientist at the Oak Ridge National Laboratories in Tennessee. Laura, married to a research physicist and the mother of three children, is a professor of anthropology at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Dark-haired Laura, a good-natured woman with inquiring brown eyes, is always ready for an earnest chat on her favorite subjects — "and I guess that covers a pretty wide field," she laughs.

"Lately, I've become very involved with the status of women. That status definitely needs upgrading, but of course it won't be accomplished by telling all women to become professionals.

"I still believe, though, that women outside the professional sphere fail to utilize their own power. This power is their leisure time, but they don't use it.

"They seem to lack respect for themselves and consequently for each other. If they did regard themselves as responsible, capable individuals, they too would be active and creative in politics, ecology, peace movements and consumer affairs.

"In my family you could be anything you wanted to be. It didn't matter whether you were a boy or a girl, that is, beyond a certain point. If you wanted to do something or become someone you did it, and the family helped all they could."

Laura's three children were born during university holidays, although the first, in 1964, arrived just two weeks before her mother was due back at work.

"There's no maternity leave for faculty members," Laura said, "so for the first month or so I would nurse the baby, run to the university to give a lecture, and then run back home again. It didn't hurt her.

"You know, what we should do in this country is stop talking about childrearing as if women were widows. Child-rearing is the responsibility of both parents — not just women.

"And since most women are housewives, we should upgrade the job of housekeeper. American housewives have one of the hardest jobs in the world, simply because of their isolation."

The Nader family is a close-knit one and Laura talks affectionately about her "baby" brother.

JUGGERNAUT — A Novato fireman sweeps up glass scattered wildly when this automobile hurtled through the front window of the Bank of Marin branch at 1400 Grant Avenue. The invading car injured eight out of 10 bank employees gathered in the conference room shortly before the bank was to open at 10 a.m. today. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

Eight Hurt As Car Hits Novato Bank

Group Is Showered By Glass

By DAVID DIETZ

A late model station wagon careened out of control in downtown Novato early today and roared through a plate glass window into a bank conference room, injuring eight employees.

Ten employees of the Bank of Marin at 1400 Grant Avenue were in the small staff room shortly before 10 a.m. when the car, which apparently had swerved to miss another auto, entered with a roar and in a shower of broken glass.

"It was just like an explosion," a bank employee said.

Bank officials said a training film was being shown tellers and secretaries in the darkened room when the auto burst through the window.

The car rammed into the cluster of bank personnel. Chairs and tables were upended. A large table was forced by the auto into a wall separating the conference room from the main part of the bank, buckling it.

The bank had not opened for business at the time of the crash and the tellers' area was deserted except for two other employees.

All the injured were taken to Novato General Hospital as at least two ambulances rushed to the scene. Two of those hurt, tellers Betty McAskill of 219 San Felipe Way, wife of former Novato Mayor Halley McAskill, and Shirley Swihart, 39, of 2360 Center Road, Novato, were admitted. Their condition was not available immediately.

The other injured were released from the hospital after treatment for bruises and fractures. They are Susan Simontacci, 22, of 1224 Kaehler Street, Novato, a secretary, treated for a bruised arm; Vella Deanne, 26, of 36 Lauren Avenue, Novato, treated for a fractured forearm; Peggy Boke, 23, of 805 Diablo Avenue, Novato, treated for multiple bruises; Melva Jones, 43, of 118 Sunnyhill Drive, Petaluma, an employee of the bank's San Rafael branch who was showing the film, treated for multiple bruises; Mary Ellen Agnew, 38, of 1360 Monte Maria, Novato, Multiple bruises, and teller Ione Lee, 51, 130 Trish Drive, Novato, injuries not given.

Witnesses said the auto, driven by Lucille McAlister, 46, manager of Sportsman Lodge on Highway 101 in Novato, emerged from a parking lot and was southbound on Fourth Street toward the intersection of Grant when it appeared to swerve to miss another car.

Police, still investigating the accident, said the driver may have touched the accelerator instead of the brake or the gas pedal may have stuck, sending the car out of control. The auto swerved wildly and smashed through the plate glass window on the Fourth side of the bank.

The scene in the room appeared as if a "bomb had

Span Board Fails In Terminal Site

Golden Gate Bridge District directors failed again today to resolve their six-months' dispute over where to put the Central Marin ferry terminal.

The two competing sites are the Hutchison Quarry property in Larkspur and the Domenic Muzzi property on Corte Madera's waterfront.

The directors, stymied by an 8-8 vote on acceptance of the Larkspur site, unanimously declared both sites acceptable and left the two property owners free to compete for the terminal land sale.

Meeting as a committee of the whole, directors also unanimously approved a plan for a $331.5 million start on a bus, rapid transit and ferry system. The plan, drafted by the district staff, is to be submitted to the state Legislature by April 3.

Advertising for a fleet of 152 buses has been held up for almost eight months pending a decision on the facility location.

The ferry terminal compromise motion by E. J. Guidotti of Sonoma County authorized the district's attorney to negotiate written options on the two properties and to report the best deal back to the board.

The motion also invited Kaiser engineers to make an offer to perform an economic study of the acquisition and development costs of the two properties. District Engineer Robert E. Shields estimated that the study would take up to two months.

Today's ferry terminal stalemate came despite recommendations by their staff and Marin's three board members favoring the proposed Larkspur site.

Both the directors and the staff argued that the Larkspur site offered better land and water access, had the advantage of already being filled, and could qualify for federal funds to dredge the channel.

The compromise was voted after more than two hours of debate and a 6-10 vote that seemingly refused acceptance of the Corte Madera site.

Director Stephen C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco led the minority favoring Corte Madera, but was unable to swing the needed votes despite his continual lobbying of directors during the meeting.

Leonoudakis argued for the Corte Madera site on the grounds that only it had enough adjacent land also to accommodate the district's bus maintenance facility.

Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum won committee approval of his proposal to hire an ecological consultant from the Bay Conservation and Development Commission. The consultant, he said, should evaluate the environmental impact of both ferry terminal sites to "avoid a lot of trouble later."

FRIDAY NIGHT OPENINGS AND A BIG SALE

A "Moonlight Sale" tomorrow by downtown San Rafael merchants will inaugurate regular Friday night openings of stores, Walter E. Zurcher of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce has announced.

Some stores have stayed open on Wednesdays, some on Fridays and some both nights. However, the Downtown San Rafael Merchants Committee of the chamber, has won endorsement of merchants for the Friday night openings, said Zurcher, committee chairman.

Friday will now be the official opening night but some stores may wish to remain open other nights also, he said.

More merchants are cooperating in this sale than in any previous sale, Zurcher said. A special "Moonlight Sale" tabloid accompanies today's Independent-Journal.

Whitney Young, Civil Rights Leader, Dies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whitney M. Young, Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, died today in Lagos, Nigeria, the State Department announced. He was 49.

A column about the Negro revolution titled "To Be Equal" by Young was published in the editorial pages of the Independent-Journal in the fall of 1964.

Officials said the moderate civil rights leader suffered a heart attack while swimming at a beach. He was in Lagos to attend a meeting of a discussion group sponsored by the African-American Association.

The association, sponsored by the Ford Foundation, brings together prominent African and American leaders for discussions.

Official sources said former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, also attending the meeting, was with Young at the beach when he died.

Young became executive director of the Urban League Oct. 1, 1961.

He was born in Kentucky and graduated from Kentucky State College in 1941. He did graduate work at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Minnesota.

Forecasters said there was a 70 per cent chance the showers would continue tonight, and 90 per cent chance of rain tomorrow.

Explosion Kills Pair

CAMPBELL (UPI) — The nose of a 40-millimeter antiaircraft shell exploded Wednesday, killing two young brothers who had been playing with it. Another youngster was critically injured.

Police Sergeant Ron Eddlemon said one youngster apparently tapped the trigger mechanism against a cement post, setting off an explosion that killed one youngster immediately and fatally injured another.

Those killed were Randy Owens, 10, and his brother, David, 9, the sons of John Owens.

Jonathan Martin, 7, the son of Mrs. Joyce Marlowe, suffered first and second degree burns on his hands, chest, face and eyes.

Airport Bus Drivers Out

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Maintenance employes and drivers of buses which carry 4,000 to 5,000 travelers daily between San Francisco and its airport went on strike today.

The airport bus strike at 6 a.m. occurred on the final day of the national convention of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons in San Francisco.

Smog Officials Sharply Split On Industry's Clean-Up Costs

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials split sharply yesterday over claims by industry that new smog controls may prove unjustified because of their high cost.

The Bay Area League of Industrial Associations has claimed that the new controls will cost at least $200 million, if not much more, just in capital costs. Annual operating costs will average 10 per cent of the capital costs, $20 million or more, according to the league's estimate.

The new controls were adopted by Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors in November, but the issue — which will bear on upcoming proposals for even tougher controls — erupted again yesterday in the executive committee of the regional board's advisory council.

William B. McCormick of San Francisco, an architect, urged the council to make its decisions without considering a cost-benefit ratio. Such a ratio, he argued, should be left to the "political judgment" of the regional board.

Industry has "huge accounting departments," McCormick declared, "and if you get sucked into that game, that's the basis the regulations will be decided on. You'll get so lost in the figures game that you can't win."

Differing with McCormick was Joseph D. Coons of San Rafael, a consulting engineer. Coons insisted that the regional board has "got to be concerned to some extent with costs." He suggested that future recommendations by the council be linked to precise cost-benefit ratios so that the board would know how much control it would get for each dollar of new control equipment.

The district's chief administrative office, D. J. Callaghan, pointed out that industry will face continued new regulations, regardless of any cost-benefit ratios. Ever tighter state limits on air contaminants, he said, "means we're down to that area where we're squeezing, squeezing."

The executive committee reached no decision on the issue.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

'Lady' Marshalls

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Several lady sky marshals, packing pistols and trained in karate and judo, soon will be taking their places beside the men assigned to guard against airplane hijackings in the United States, it was learned today.

U.S. Customs Bureau sources confirmed that "several ladies" had been accepted for the program and will soon start the arduous four-week training course at Ft. Belvoir, Va. They will learn expert marksmenship and agility in hand-to-hand combat.

Whether they actually will be used aboard planes has yet to be determined, the sources said.

The sky marshal force is almost at its authorized strength of 2,000. Lt. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis Jr., director of civil aviation security at the Federal Aviation Administration, said recently there would be 1,400 marshals in the air at all times once the program is completed.

Harper's Crisis

NEW YORK (UPI)—The managing editor and four contributing editors of Harper's magazine resigned Wednesday in a financial dispute with the magazine's owners. Harper's editor Willie Morris resigned last week.

Publisher William S. Blair, who announced the resignations, said a new managing editor would be appointed "in due course."

The resignations were submitted by managing editor Robert Kotlowitz and contributing editors David Halberstam, Larry L. King, John Corry and Marshall Frady following a Tuesday night meeting with John Cowles, chairman of the magazine's board.

The dispute at Harper's, one of the oldest and most respected monthly literary magazines in the country, was apparently over financial problems. The magazine reportedly has been losing circulation and Morris in his resignation said it was a dispute between "money people and literary people."

Continue Strike

MOSCOW (UPI)—A dwindling group of protesting Jews today returned to a Soviet parliamentary building for the second day of a hunger strike for the right to leave Russia for Israel. Police did not interfere.

Jewish sources said 16 of the 110 Jews who occupied the reception hall of the Supreme Soviet (parliament) Wednesday returned there today. They said the others continued their fast but did not go to the reception hall across the street from the Kremlin.

The 110 Jews who began the strike Wednesday were driven from the darkened hall last night by squads of uniformed and plainclothes police. Today officers stood at the door and barred foreign journalists. They did not interfere with the 16 strikers inside.

Big Four Call

By United Press International

Egypt called today for the Big Four powers to use their incluence to get Israel to agree to withdraw from all Arab territories captured during the 1967 Middle East war.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said this request was conveyed to the representatives of Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union in Cairo and New York.

The newspaper said the Big Four should concentrate on getting Israel's written commitment to withdraw rather than discussing peace guarantees or a renewal of the cease-fire at this time.

There has been no fighting along the Suez Canal despite the end of the formal cease-fire Sunday night.

Professor Urges Study Of Indians

NEW YORK (UPI)—Once ignored, the American Indian is now a proper subject of study, according to Dr. Lloyd Melis, professor of special education at Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis.

"And, as is the case with many other minority groups, the more we know about the Indian, the more we can understand his basic needs which must be met to bring him into the mainstream of contemporary life," Melis said.

Agreement On Lending Act

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) said today it was provisionally accepting a consent order under which Bell & Howell Co., Chicago, agreed not to violate the Truth in Lending Act.

The agreement followed an FTC complaint charging a Bell & Howell division, the Robert Maxwell Co., with failing to list credit terms in its advertisements for motion picture equipment.

Attack On Heroin

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said today the Nixon administration would rather maintain military ties with countries that illegally supply heroin to the United States than solve America's drug problem.

Church introduced an amendment to the foreign aid bill which would cut off aid to countries that did not try to control their drug traffic.

He cited Turkey as being the biggest supplier of heroin to the United States and as having the most lax rules against its drug exports.

In a speech prepared for the Senate, Church said, "the executive branch apparently continues to place greater weight on Turkey's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization alliance than it does on the drug epidemic preying upon our own youngsters."

Bulk Mail Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Winton M. Blount announced today a nearly $1 billion project for the Army Corps of Engineers to build 33 bulk mail handling facilities across the nation.

Blount also told the House Post Office Committee the present one-year residency requirement for appointment as postmaster in major cities will be eliminated.

He said he hopes the building program of 21 major facilities and 12 "satellite" units will be completed before June 30, 1975.

PUC Is Under Attack Over Rate Increases

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Public Utilities Commission is under fire for allegedly softening its consumer protection philosophy since Gov. Ronald Reagan began appointing its members.

The attack came Wednesday from the California Journal which said there was "clear evidence' that the PUC's posture on handling rate increase requests was changing in favor of the utilities.

The Journal, a monthly digest of state government and politics, reported that in 1969 and 1970 the commission granted 70 per cent of all rate hike applications.

These included, the publication said, $96 million in gas rates, $46.5 million in electric rates, $3 million in water rates and $18.5 million in communication rates.

Surprise Demotions Bounce School Bosses Back To Class

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Back-to-back-classroom demotions of school administrators—whose numbers have long been growing—have unexpectedly developed in California this week on a mass basis.

San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, San Diego and some smaller communities all have moved since Monday to drastically cut back their higher paid officials.

In San Francisco, 125 persons were given formal notice of demotion. They included assistant superintendents, principals, deans and citywide directors of sundry projects and departments.

At the same time Berkeley reassigned 106 middle-level administrators. Oakland planned reassignment of 30 and San Diego 52.

In San Francisco, shock among the administrators prompted talk of their joining the Teamsters Union. Administrator associations threatened lawsuits.

San Francisco, having a unique seniority system for administrators, faced a domino effect in which downtown administrators will bounce principals back to assistant principals, and assistants back to the classroom.

In each city, the reason for the demotions was an impending deficit in the face of a taxpayer revolt and cutbacks in federal-state aid. The San Francisco demotions were intended to save $1.5 million.

What inspired so many cities to act at the same time was a state law requiring notification of demoted administrators by March 15.

The San Francisco situation was complicated by a decision not to demote racial minority administrators.

3 Soldiers Executed By Irish Terrorists

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Six gunmen police believe to be members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) "executed" three British soldiers Wednesday night after drinking beer with them in a Belfast pub. IRA spokesmen today denied their organization had anything to do with the killings.

The three soldiers, two of them teen-age brothers, were shot in the back of the head — the normal method used by the IRA to execute its enemies. The triple killing brought to six the number of British soldiers slain this year. The troops are being used to try to bring law and order to Northern Ireland's battling Protestant majority and Roman Catholic minority.

What happened was pieced together from a number of reports.

The three soldiers —Fusilier John McCaig, 17, his brother Joseph, 18, both from Ayr, Scotland, and Fusilier Donald McCaughey, 23, from Glasgow —took advantage of a quiet night to go out for a drink. Wearing civilian clothes, they choose the quiet area of Ligoniel, a suburb about four miles from the city center.

They stopped at the Glen Inn pub on Ligoniel Road and had a pint of beer. The pub was crowded and they became involved in a conversation with six men. Shortly afterwards they left with the men, supposedly bound for the Squires Hill Tavern just down the road.

Six shots were fired, with each soldier getting at least one bullet in the back of the head. The bodies were piled atop one another in a ditch littered with beer bottles and the gunmen fled in a yellow car. Shortly afterwards, two schoolchildren saw the bodies and summoned a man, who called police.

An Army spokesman said "it is callous and cold-blooded murder. They just gunned the three troopers down and left them here in a heap, one atop the other." Another officer, clenching his fist in anger, said "they were deliberately murdered. It was an ambush. The men were lured to their deaths and then shot. Obviously, they never had a chance."

Both army and police sources said they were convinced the killings were carried out by the IRA.

The IRA, which is outlawed in the Irish Republic to the south as well as in this British province, has as its chief aim the driving out of British authority and the uniting of Northern Ireland with the Republic, by force if necessary.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

'Inside Track' For Space Shuttle Bid

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke says the Reagan administration's "personal contacts" in Washington give this state a boost over others in winning the federal space shuttle program for Southern California.

independent committee promoting California as the launching and landing site for the project, told a news conference Wednesday California's lobby effort will be "based on facts and not emotional or political pressure."

He said the state administration has "personal contacts" in the White House and Congress, adding, "We feel we can open the right doors to make sure these presentations are made at the right level."

The lieutenant governor discussed the space shuttle program with newsmen after a couple of citizens working to secure the project for California met with Gov. Ronald Reagan for an hour. Reinecke declared the governor was "totally committed" to the effort.

He and James A. Cook, executive director of the newly formed private California Space Shuttle Task Force, brushed aside fears that California might have joined the race for the program too late and with insufficient funds.

Other competing states, such as New Mexico and Florida, have spent tax funds in the lobbying effort to attract the estimated $10 billion program to their states, Cook said.

Cook, noting that California's prime sites are Edwards and Vandenberg Air Force bases, estimated the program would employ up to 85,000 Californians during its 10-year development period.

The two men said the effort to convince Washington that California is the correct site would be financed by contributions from the aerospace industry itself and involved no direct public funds.

PORT OBJECTION

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— San Francisco port commissioners have voted unanimously to oppose Assembly bills which would limit the height of waterfront buildings and require housing for the poor.

Both the bills objected to in a resolution Wednesday were introduced by Sen. John Burton, D-San Francisco.

One would prohibit any structure more than 200 feet high on the waterfront. The other would require that not less than 30 per cent of any housing constructed on port-owned land be for low-income groups.

The Port Commission's resolution declared they would "usurp ... functions which more properly belong to the orderly planning procedures of the city of San Francisco ... functions which should not be dictated by the Legislature of the State of California."

'NO FAULT' HIT

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation setting up "no fault" automobile insurance in California has been introduced with trial lawyers complaining it would "rob innocent victims."

The measure by Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, would establish a program similar to one in Massachusetts.

Under the bill, all medical expenses and property loss resulting from an accident are paid by the injured person's own insurance company.

But the California Trial Lawyers Association opposed the program saying it would "rob innocent victims of their rights against wrongdoers."

CTLA President William H. Lally said the insurance would "neither produce any long-range reductions in average overall rates nor will it reduce congestion on court calendars."

OFF-HOURS FEE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —It will cost up to $2 more to obtain a marriage license outside the normal business hours under terms of a bill by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose.

McAlister Wednesday introduced a bill authorizing county boards of supervisors to set an extra fee, not to exceed $2, for issuance of a marriage license outside of the county clerk's normal business hours of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The extra money would be in addition to the regular $6 fee.

MISS IRELAND — Dominican College freshman Jane Marie McCabe of San Francisco, chosen as Miss Ireland of California by the Irish Society of San Francisco, will be Miss Shamrock in the St. Patrick's Day parade Sunday. She will go to Ireland this summer to compete for the title of Rose of Tralee.

$9,000 In Boyle Park Work Urged

The Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission has decided to request the city council to approve more than $9,000 in capital improvements for facilities at Boyle Park.

Parks and Recreation Director Don L. Dimitratos said the commission Monday asked the council to appropriate $7,000 to resurface three tennis courts and $2,000 to install play equipment, such as slides and swings.

Also requested were funds to repair erosion in the park, caused by Warner Creek, Dimitratos said. The requests will be considered by the council during discussions of the 1971-72 budget.

Commissioners also decided that separate bond issues to build a swimming pool and two more tennis courts at Boyle Park should be put to voters, instead of a combined issue.

Dimitratos said commissioners agreed to meet Saturday at 1 p.m. in the recreation center parking lot to examine sites for the proposed pool. Mentioned are sites at the middle school, the city's small craft harbor and Boyle Park.

struck," according to a witness.

Said Mrs. Jones: "I had just started talking. I didn't see it coming. Chairs and tables were thrown all over us."

Bank manager Glenn Tovani, also in the room, said, "I was sitting there and the next thing I knew, a car was in my lap."

Tovani and the 10th person in the room, William Thompson, from the personnel office of the San Rafael branch, escaped injury.

"It was just like an explosion," said assistant cashier Kenneth B. Howard, who was in the main part of the bank. "At first I thought the roof had caved in."

After calling police, Howard dashed across the street to the Novato Medical Clinic at 1324 Grant Avenue and alerted a nurse, Joan Bremner.

"There was glass everywhere," Mrs. Bremner said. "Two women were lying on a table. Another woman was walking around in a daze. I took her to the rest room and sat her down. There were two men in the room walking around in a daze."

The injured were accompanied in the ambulances to the hospital by doctors and nurses from the nearby clinic.

Bank of Marin dispatched other employees from its Petaluma and San Rafael offices in order to keep the Novato branch operating.

Former Chief Of Hospital To New Post

I-J Special Report

— SACRAMENTO — Arthur G. Burns, the last manager of San Rafael General Hospital, is serving as administrator of the Sacramento Medical Foundation Blood Bank.

It is the 10th executive job in the health field for the 54-year-old former hospital administrator.

Burns became administrator of the San Rafael hospital in 1963, but the facility closed three years later. He then headed the hospital's foundation while it looked for a new site, but left in 1967.

He had been executive director of the Hospital Planning Council for Sacramento, Yolo and Placer counties before taking the blood bank post.

Crash Leads To Hepatitis Immunizations

A noon-hour, two-car collision in Fairfax yesterday hospitalized a San Rafael motorist and resulted in policemen, firemen and others who helped the driver receiving immunization shots against infectious hepatitis, Fairfax police said today.

The injured man was Michael Harris, 20, of 44 Loch Ness Lane, San Rafael. Marin General Hospital said he was in good condition today, with a concussion and a scraped knee.

His auto and one driven by Michelle Dathe of Fairfax collided head-on on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard while Harris was making a left turn onto Pacheco Avenue.

Police said Harris appeared to be ill, and they later learned he was suffering from hepatitis. Two officers, two firemen and ambulance attendents were given,immunizations, police said.

Police Dog Finds Suspect

Everett Carl Albro, 50, of no known address, was arrested at 1 a.m. today in Petaluma on suspicion of burglary.

Police said they received a report of a burglar inside Friedman Brothers Hardware, 17 East Washington Street. Arko, the department police dog, accompanied officers intc the building and reportedly cornered Albro. Officers said he had $17 in change that had been taken from the counter.

Albro was booked into the jail for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Hub Council, School Board Sets Session

A joint meeting of the San Anselmo City Council and school district board will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. at city hall to continue discussion on use of the district's community service tax funds.

The two bodies will consider use of the funds as a means of reimbursing the city for recreation programs extended to non-residents — mainly Sleepy Hollow residents.

Other matters for discussion include an agreement to permit use of funds of one agency to be used to construct facilities on the property of the other, proposed school district improvements to Memorial Park and discussion of joint use of the Isabel Cook School Site.

Merger Off By Airlines

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)— Northwest Airlines has canceled plans to acquire Northeast Airlines because of Civil Aeronautics Board ruling prohibiting the merged company from operating a Miami to Los Angeles route.

Northwest said Wednesday the CAB's Dec. 31 order would "adversely and materially" affect the merged corporation.

The CAB had granted the flight to Northwest to boost its failing financial condition but said it should be awarded to another airline if the proposed merger went through.

Northwest had announced plans for the takeover 15 months ago.

Police Hit Mail Order Pornography

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Police, who said Wednesday they were attacking the biggest mail order distributor of pornography in Northern California, arrested a bookstore owner and his clerk.

Five boxes of material were confiscated as evidence.

Part Of UBAC Aid Restored

United Bay Area Crusade directors yesterday restored part of its allocation to Marin Aid Retarded Children, previously cut out of UBAC funding when UBAC decided to make a greater contribution to the urban poor and those afflicted with problems as a result of color or ethnic background.

The Marin Agency for the retarded, which received $6,000 last year, will receive $3,000 this year and nothing in the future UBAC directors announced.

Still pending is an appeal by St. Vincent's School for Boys in San Rafael, which received $46,000 last year.

The partial reallotment of money was part of an areawide restoration of $201,550 to 19 of 72 agencies previously cut out.

68 Cases Of Strep Reported

Strep infections with 68 cases reported last week, led all other communicable diseases reported in Marin County, said Dr. Carolyn Albrecht, Marin County health officer.

There were 13 cases of rubella, or German measles, reported in the county. All but one of these had not received the immunization, Dr. Albrecht said. This was an 11-year-old West Marin child who received the vaccine 10 days prior to getting the disease. It take the vaccine six weeks to become effective, according to Dr. Albrecht.

Other diseases reported were 34 cases of gonorrhea, seven of infectious hepatitis, two of syphillis, one of tuberculosis and one of salmonella.

Nonsmoking Areas Backed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —The State Senate unanimously approved a bill Wednesday requiring airlines, railroads and bus lines to provide designated seating areas for nonsmokers.

The measure by Sen. James R. Mills, who is allergic to tobacco smoke, was sent to the assembly where similar legislation was defeated last year.

Mills said it was "an unpleasant thing for people who don't smoke" to sit next to someone on a public conveyance who puffs away at a cigar, cigarette or pipe.

It's Reassignment Time At Two Rock Base

PEOPLE PLACER — Roy G. Ledbetter, personnel trouble-shooter for the U.S. Security Agency, explains to displaced civilian employees at Two Rock Ranch Army Station what lies ahead for them. Ledbetter came to Two Rock from the agency's Arlington, Va., headquarters to help them find new jobs when Two Rock closes. (Independent-Journal photo)

By BONNIE BARD

Thoughts were on an uncertain future this week as Two Rock Ranch Army Station near Petaluma settled down to the news the post will close June 30.

The post, ordered shut in a Defense Department economy move, went about its daily routine, but it has been a time filled with anxiety for many of its workers.

The job of reassigning many of the 581 civilian and military personnel has begun.

For the 500 military workers at Two Rock, thoughts were on a new post. Many of the soldiers are veteran career men who can bid for certain assignments, but others have no voice and will go where they are needed.

While the military personnel are guaranteed a new job, however, the future is not as clear for the 81 civilian workers still at the post. (Two have quit to take other jobs since Thursday's announcement the post will be closed.)

And this week, Roy G. Ledbetter, cheif recruiter and placement officer for the U.S. Security Agency, arrived at the post to begin the tedious task of attempting to place civilian employees who wish to continue working for the Defense Department.

Ledbetter was dispatched from the headquarters at Arlington Hill Station, Va.

"We have to play everything by ear," Ledbetter said. With other military installations also closing or cutting back, it will be difficult to place the employees, he said.

"We're also closing many operations overseas in connection with deescalation of the war, so we also have all those people to place," he said.

Ledbetter and Col. Joseph Richards, Two Rock's commanding officer, met with the post's civilian work force yesterday and announced interviews for other jobs would be held during the next two weeks. "I'm telling them to bring their spouses, too," Ledbetter said, knowing the effects of any change will be felt by the entire family.

He said all federal agencies in the Bay Area would be notified for possible openings, since he's found that most of the civilians don't want to move too far away. Ledbetter said, however, there were fears other local installations would face the economy ax.

"We have a real good group of people out here," he said, gazing over the rolling countryside west of Petaluma. "They have good educational backgrounds and have undergone heavy security checks, so you know they're good, trustworthy people."

(The post is part of the Army communications network that relays and receives classified messages from around the world.)

Ledbetter said local chambers of commerce, businesses and industries would also be notified about hiring Two Rock employees. He said he wasn't depending too heavily on the private sector since the unemployment rate is 7 per cent in Sonoma County.

"We'll be beating all the bushes to see what we can come up with," he said.

Many of the civilians are retired military personnel who are accustomed to moving and have said they would be willing to relocate to the East Coast to continue in their particular jobs.

Others are less fortunate and are what Ledbetter calls on "accepted status." These employees were hired for particular security jobs at the post without competititive testing. While they hold a specific Civil Service rank, they would have to go through testing procedures in order to qualify for other types of jobs.

In mass meeting Tuesday with employees, Ledbetter explained the government would pay moving expenses for employees who chose to relocate, and spelled out the severance pay procedure for those who do not wish to remain in government employment.

Ledbetter said he expected many of the civilians who are eligible for retirement would do so. While anyone with 25 years service is eligible for retirement at age 50, the benefits vary with length of service and rank.

He said the government would continue life insurance benefits at no further cost to the retiree and would also permit them to continue medical coverage with the federal government paying at least 38 per cent of the cost.

Leafing through a large stack of personnel folders in preparation for the interviews, Ledbetter was going about his task enthusiastically, but with a clear understanding of what hardships the relocation process can bring to families.

"When I was working down south as a personnel officer, I had to sign my own letter telling me I was out of a job," he said. Meanwhile, telephones were busy at the post as career soldiers renewed friendships on other posts in hope of finding openings that would not take them too far from the Bay Area.

Unexpected Ally In Channel Fight

By GEORGE NEVIN

Mill Valley citizens, declaring their opposition last night to a concrete flood control channel in Arroyo Corte Madera del Presidio, found a staunch ally — the Army Corps of Engineers.

Col. Charles R. Roberts, head of the corps' San Francisco region office, told about 150 residents at a public hearing that "we want to give you what you want."

"I would be very disappointed," he said, "if we had to build a concrete channel, and I don't think we will."

The position marks a switch from former corps policy. In 1965 the agency proposed such a channel to control winter floods, but the plan was shot down by Mill Valley officials two years later.

The corps is starting all over again, Roberts said last night, and hopes to come up with a plan that will both protect the environment and reduce floods.

Roberts said the corps is anxious to work with a citizens committee appointed by Mill Valley Mayor George E. Wickham to come up with many possible alternatives.

The most feasible of these, he said, will be presented to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which will choose one.

If that plan is confirmed by Washington, Roberts said, funds could be appropriated by Congress in 1974 but construction could not be finished until 1977 at the earliest.

Seven speakers out of about 18 at last night's hearing opposed a concrete channel even though Roberts said one was unlikely.

"Concrete is a terrible thing," said Norman Ash, who identified himself as a surveyor who has worked on many Marin creeks. "It would just mean more Los Angeles."

L. F. Frasson, of 251 Miller Avenue, echoed oppostion to a concrete channel and urged consideration of diverting part of the creek's waters through an enclosed culvert.

Such a plan, studied by the corps and also suggested by Mill Valley City Engineer Stanley M. Bala, would feature a culvert under Miller Avenue from Millwood Street to Richardson Bay to divert potential floodwaters from the creek, thus allowing it to remain natural.

Others supporting a bypass were councilman Jerome C. Hauke, a member of the citizens committee, and Dr. Earl S. Johnson, who has a creekside office at 10 Millwood Street.

Strong opposition to the Bala plan, however, came from Rev. Jack Bartlett, of 17 Plymouth Avenue, because the proposal suggests removing 18 Plymouth Avenue residences for a dirt streambed and Creekside Park.

"No one should have to lose his home," he said. "It's a cruel hoax to tell people, 'We're sorry but you have to move.' We need an imaginative plan that will allow people to keep their houses."

Roberts concluded the hearing with assurance the audience's comments would be considered by the corps and the citizens committee.

Further hearings will be held when supervisors consider the plans and when one is chosen, he said.

Judith Austin, senior at Sir Francis Drake High School, and John Briggs, senior at San Marin High School, have been named first place winners in the Elk's Club "Most Valuable Student" contest.

Suzanne La Belle, senior at Sir Francis Drake High School, has won second place in the girls division and Kathleen Van Herwynen, senior at San Rafael High School won third in the girls division, said Keith Hayball and Peter Marshall, co-chairmen of the Youth Activities Committee of San Rafael Elks Lodge 1108.

Albert Zitek, senior at San Rafael High School and Anders Carlsson, senior at Redwood High School won third place in the boys division.

They will receive $100 for first place; $50 for second and $25 for third, Marshall said.

These six students with their parents, and Russell Gardiner, senior at Novato High School, previously announced winner of the "Youth Leadership" contest, will be honored at a dinner at 7 p.m. March 24 at the Elks Club, Marshall said.

Burglary Counts Off

Burglary charges against two Marin City men were dismissed yesterday in Marin Superior Court after the two pleaded guilty to reduced charges.

Daniel Patrick Smith, 22, was placed on probation for six months and sentenced to two days in jail by Judge Thomas F. Keating after Smith pleaded guilty to malicious mischief.

Kelly Sanford Walter, 21, was fined $15 and placed on probation for 30 days after pleading guilty to violating a Sausalito ordinance prohibiting littering.

The two had been charged with burglarizing a locker at the Sausalito Yacht Harbor in September.

Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony said yesterday the facts of the case indicated Walter's only crime was to answer a call of nature at the yacht harbor.

Area North Of Los Angeles The Next Big Quake Center?

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The next major earthquake along California's San Andreas Fault is more likely to occur north of Los Angeles, rather than in the San Francisco area, a noted seismologist said Thursday.

Dr. Clarence R. Allen, head of Caltech's Seismological Laboratory, spoke to newsmen following an appearance before the county Earthquake Commission.

"We can't point out where along the whole length of the San Andreas Fault it's likely to break, although my guess is the southern part of the fault, north of Los Angeles, is more apt to go than is the segment north of San Francisco," Allen said.

"But whether that happens next year or 50 years from now —I don't know. Nor does anyone else."

Seismologists believe the San Andreas Fault, which runs the length of the state, is due for a major shift within the next half century.

Allen told the earthquake commission that civil authorities should be more prepared to cope with future major quakes than they were for the last one Feb. 9.

"There are things we should have done, but didn't, to prepare for the earthquake," he said. "But the problem now is not so much what we should have done ... but what we can do at this stage of the game to prepare for the next earthquake."

Allen did not elaborate, but a special report last week by the county Health Department said there were many foulups in communications between government agencies, especially in evacuations and disaster assistance.

Marinites Invited To Transportation Session

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors and nine Marin County mayors have been invited to participate in a daylong, federally sponsored transportation meeting here March 22.

The session will be kickoff for the National Transportation Planning Study, according to Brian R. Van Camp, acting secretary of the state Business and Transportation Agency.

Gov. Ronald Reagan later will submit the California portion of the study to the federal Department of Transportation, Van Camp said.

Louis H. Baar, chairman of the Marin County board, and mayors of all the cities except Ross and Belvedere have been invited to discuss their local transportation needs and future financing. Cities with less than 5,000 population were not included in the meeting, Van Camp explained.

Septic Tanks 'Must Conform'

Residents of rural areas can no longer merely repair faulty septic tanks, but must modernize them, John Barrows, assistant county administrator told the West Coast Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, said Secretary Ada Kendel.

Barrows told the chamber members that people with faulty septic tanks in the future would be required to remodel them to conform to new regulations for larger tanks and leaching fields, she reported. He suggested that where possible, 10 or 12 households should get together to install their own sewer system, she said.

William Desmond of the county health and sanitation department, told the group that it was now proposed to make annual inspections of all septic tanks. This would require a larger staff and probably a $20 inspection fee, she said.

'Buggy' Delivery

KENT, Wash. (UPI)—The Apollo 15 moonbuggy, a portable wire-wheeled car which will carry astronauts over the bumpy lunar surface this summer, was delivered to the space agency Wednesday.

Short Prison Term In Forgery Case

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Janice Long, 21-year-old Sausalito blonde who claimed to have forged more than $50,000 worth of checks in four months, has been sentenced to state prison.

Judge Walter Calcagno of San Francisco County Superior Court Tuesday ordered that Miss Long's sentences on counts of forgery, passing bad checks and forging the seal of the Bank of America run concurrently.

She had earlier pleaded guilty.

He also sentenced under the "youthful offender" section of the penal code which will give her a minimum six-month term. The section applies to persons under 23 years old.

It had earlier been determined that Miss Long, who once told an interviewer she liked to sniff cocaine after a day of check forging, was not a narcotics addict.

A $20,000 Grant To Research Ship

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — The San Francisco Foundation granted $20,000 on Tuesday to the Marine Ecological Institute, which operates an educational research vessel on San Francisco Bay.

The institute's Inland Seas is a laboratory-equipped ship that takes high school and college science classes on field trips to study the bay's ecology.

SAN QUENTIN WEAPONS UNCOVERED

The variety of weaponry found in the continuing inmate lock-up and search at San Quentin ranges from sharpened ladle handles (upper left) through "shanks" — knives made from steel bedspring material and scrap metal from the shops. Assoc. Warden James W. L. Park said today 40 weapons have been found in the cell blocks searched since five prisoners were stabbed Monday and Tuesday. The hunt today moved to prison shops. The north and west cell blocks returned to fairly normal routine, Park said.

Track Boss In Surprise Guilty Plea

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A millionaire race track operator who got his start as a shoeshine boy pleaded guilty Wednesday to income tax evasion in the "skimming" of $1.3 million from betting receipts.

John S. Alessio, 59, who runs tracks and bookmaking operations in three Mexican border towns, and his brother, Angelo, 53, entered surprise guilty pleas during the second week of their federal court trials.

U.S. District Judge Bruce R. Thompson, who set sentencing for April 13, indicated charges against three other members of the family will be dismissed.

The brothers pleaded guilty to one count each of conspiracy to defraud the U.S. government by obstructing collection of income tax and one count each of evading income tax.

Five Alessio family members were charged last year with failure to report $1,286,476 in income and evading $929,394 in taxes by "skimming" betting receipts at the Caliente race track in Tijuana, Mexico, between 1963 and 1966. They went on trial March 1.

The change in pleas came one day after the former business manager of the Alessio operations on both sides of the border told of skimming from the 5-10 handicapping pool and foreign bookmaking operations at Caliente.

Robin Mansfield, who was granted immunity from prosecution, said they juggled books so the full amounts betted were not reported and "additional" winning 5-10 tickets were shown.

"Skimming" is a term applied to tax cheating in gambling operations. The professional gamblers, in this case legal bookmakers and track operators, "skim" some of their winnings off the top before reporting the totals.

The attorney for race track employes at Tijuana said there was no cheating of bettors, as union ticket sellers and machines handled the bets. However, Jose Maria Gutierrez said, the operators kept their bookkeeping practices confidential and employes couldn't comment on them.

$25,328 Refund In Sewer Project

The Ross Valley Sanitary District board last night authorized a $25,328 refund to property owners in Fairfax's Forrest Avenue sewer assessment district.

Ralph C. Noah, district manager, said today the refund is for cost savings from the $158,000 project which voters approved in 1968.

He said the refund will total about $210 to each of the special district's 124 assessments which averaged about $1,500 each three years ago.

The refunds will be credited to taxes of those paying on district bonds, he said, adding cash refunds will be given those who paid cash for the sewer system.

"The district has the right to retain the excess funds for maintenance," Noah said, "but the board chose to refund the money."

The board last night also authorized the district staff to apply for a federal grant totaling $1,250,000 for its proposed sewer line and pumping station which will run from the Ross-San Anselmo boundary to the treatment plant in Greenbrae, Noah said.

Crewmen Held In Pot Probe

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —Thirty crewmen of the Navy destroyer USS James E. Kyes have been detained at the Naval Station here for disciplinary action and possible courts-martial resulting from marijuana use aboard ship.

A Navy spokesman said Wednesday an investigation was held during the weekend when a sailor told an executive officer he wanted to get out of the Navy "because there is too much pot smoking going on aboard."

The ship was scheduled to sail for the western Pacific today with its complement of men replenished from other ships. The vessel carries a crew of 263.

Ross Tycoon Leads City Tax Revolt

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Jeremy Ets-Hokin of Ross, whose San Francisco property holdings are said to be worth $2 million, has launched a taxpayers' revolt.

Ets-Hoken, denouncing the redevelopment agency, department of social services and the school system as "bureaucratic tyrants," said yesterday he hoped 10,000 San Franciscans would refuse to pay their taxes this year.

Ets-Hokin, who announced in December he would refuse to pay most of the taxes on his property, urged residents to sign a petition limiting the San Francisco property tax rate to $8 per $100 of assessed valuation (it is now $12.82) and another one to abolish the redevelopment agency.

Ets-Hokin lives on Canyon Road in Ross.

Teens Have Some New Rec Ideas

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission heard last night that youths are generally satisfied with the recreational program, but also heard suggestions for improvements.

Gary Ramatici, a student representative on the commission, said he found his fellow students at St. Vincent's High School to be generally satisfied. He said students did suggest, however, that the commission look into bicycle paths for recreation and safety; a summer basketball program; the opening of a school gymnasium one or two nights a week and sponsorship of an open rock concert this summer.

Recreation Director Richard W. Shollenberger said he would immediately look into the bicycle paths and basketball program, but said the commission will need further study on the open gymnasiums and rock concert suggestions.

Shollenberger also reported that the baseball diamond has been completed at La Tercera Park

Bureaucratic Fight Described At Inquiry

A secretary for the Marin County Human Rights Department told yesterday of persistent squabbling between members of the human rights commission and attorney Bella H. Aaron, head of the county's police-community relations program.

The employee, Anne Smith, testified before a special fact-finding committee looking into reasons why the commission severed relations with Mrs. Aaron's program, which formerly had been under its wing.

The commission broke ties with the program after complaining Mrs. Aaron was running it unilaterally without required commission guidance.

Mrs. Smith told the special committee, which convened hearings yesterday at the Civic Center, that the bickering became so heated that the human rights department, which had been using the same office as Mrs. Aaron's program, moved into new quarters.

Mrs. Smith also charged that Mrs. Aaron threatened her with retaliation when she attempted to transfer from the police-community relations staff back into the human rights department, where she had been previously. The secretary complained she was forced to resign and be rehired in order to make the transfer, taking a pay cut as a result.

Maren Rinne, county personnel officer, testified the pay cut was necessary because the position in the human rights department called for a lower pay.

Vote To Computerize Water Bills

The Petaluma Water Commission yesterday voted to support a proposal to computerize the city water billing department.

Secretary Kay Hagan said the commission voted 4-1 to recommend that the city council lease an IBM systems three computer. Commissioner Robert Pope cast the dissenting vote.

Under the plan, the water department would pay $7,000 toward the estimated first year cost of $19,000. The remaining $12,000 would come from the city general fund.

Kentfield To Get New Pumper

The Kentfield Fire District board last night accepted the $67,822 bid from an Oakdale firm for a new 15,000 gallons per minute pumper.

Chief Kenneth T. Kamp said today the bid was awarded to P. E. Van Pelt Co. of Oakdale despite a lower bid from a New York firm.

He said Board La France Truck Corp.'s bid of $57,970 did not meet district specifications and was rejected.

SONOMA STATE

Small Show At Protest To Budget

By BONNIE BARD

Sonoma State College students gathered yesterday to protest budget cuts for education and welfare, but the convocation may be remembered as one of the dullest in the college's history.

Protest organizers, numbering about 12, opened the rally in front of the Commons with a call for a boycott of classes. Fewer than 200 of the college's 4,200 students, most of them noticably indifferent, gathered on the lawn. Class attendance was not apparently affected.

The organizers spoke fervently against Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed budget cuts, but evoked little response from the gathering. When the microphone was opened to anyone who wished to speak, no one came forward and organizers tried to fill in the embarrassing gaps.

"Don't you people give a damn?" an unidentified organizer shouted. There was no response. "I guess we're just burned out when it comes to political issues," the following speaker said.

Students stretched on the grass, played with dogs and children and showed little interest in the subject under discussion.

Organizers unsuccessfully began spreading a rumor that a rock band would soon appear to enliven the proceedings.

Unable to hold the group's attention on the budget issues, speakers turned to broader issues, condemning the war in Indochina and urging the release of "political prisoners" Angela Davis, Bobby Seale and others.

Students distributed literature attacking the budget cut plan. "Budget cuts, welfare cuts, money for war, it all amounts to the same thing," one of the leaflets said. "The rich get richer, the poor get poorer and anyone who doesn't like it can go to jail."

Also distributed was a memorandum from Vice President James B. Enochs which said the main effect of the budget for Sonoma State would be larger class sizes since 500 additional students will be enrolled in the fall with only one additional teaching position provided.

He said faculty members will still teach the equivalent of 12 units per semester, but to larger classes. Enochs said the budget cuts would not impede the normal progress toward graduation for most students. He said, however, that classes would be spread out more during the day from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. with plans in the works for Saturday classes.

House To Back Lower Vote Age

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Early House concurrence is forecast today for a Senate-passed constitutional amendment proposal to lower the voting age to 18 in state and local elections.

The House vote probably will come next week, or the following week at the latest. Backers of the 18-year-old vote said there is no doubt the proposal would be overwhelmingly approved.

That would send it to the states for ratification, and its sponsors believe enough time is left to win approval by the necessary 38 state legislatures to make it part of the Constitution before the 1972 elections.

By law Congress already has entitled 18-year-olds to vote in federal elections. But the Supreme Court ruled out part of that law that was intended to extend the lowered age limit also to state and local elections.

The Senate acted to plug that loophole Wednesday, approving the necessary constitutional change on a 94 to 0 vote.

Before acting the Senate stripped the proposal of a rider which would have given the District of Columbia two senators and a number of House members proportionate to its population.

Sale Of Post Cards Approved

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The City of San Francisco may sell postcards, including some that would not be reassuring to tourists.

The Board of Supervisors' governmental services committee recommended Tuesday that the city sell cards with pictures from its historical collection, including one of ruins of the City Hall which was wrecked by the 1906 earthquake.

William C. Roddy, Mayor Joseph Alioto's public service director, made the recommendation, saying the cards could be printed for 1.8 cents each and sold for 5 cents in the City Hall information booth.

Chile Calls For The Release Of Angela Davis

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Chile's Chamber of Deputies has called on the United States and the United Nations to work for the release of Angela Davis, Negro militant charged with murder in California.

The resolution that deputies approved was introduced by deputy Gladys Marim, a Communist Party member. Before approving the resolution Tuesday, deputies rejected a motion that it cable Fidel Castro asking that he spare the lives of 10 anti-Communist Cubans condemned to the firing squad for alleged counter-revolutionary activities.

That resolution was introduced by deputy Gustavo Monckeberg, a rightist.

Miss Davis is charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy because of an unsuccessful shoot-out escape attempt at the Marin Hall of Justice in San Rafael, Ca., by Negro convicts from a courtroom. Four persons were killed, including the presiding judge. Officers say she purchased the guns that were smuggled into the courtroom.

Historic Parade On St. Pat's Day

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The St. Patrick's Day parade— a celebration that predates the Gold Rush days in San Francisco—will be repeated Sunday.

A 294-unit procession, including more than 10,000 participants and 20 Irish wolfhounds, will start at 1:30 p.m. and march from the city's financial district to the Civic Center.

Parade directors said the holiday was celebrated as far back as 1843 when Irishmen marched from the old City Hall near Ninth and Market streets to Mission Dolores.

Mass will be celebrated before the parade at 10:30 a.m. in St. Mary's Cathedral. The St. Patrick's Church choir also will participate in the services.

GOP Chief Roughs Up Demo Doves

CUMBERLAND, Md. (UPI) —Sen. Robert J. Dole in his toughest speech since becoming national Republican chairman has accused Ramsey Clark of being a "left-leaning marshmallow" and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of undercutting President Nixon in Moscow.

In a speech to a Republican fund-raising dinner Wednesday night, the Kansas senator also criticized Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., the only announced Democratic candidate for President, of failing to denounce bombers who damaged the U.S. Capitol March 1.

The rhetoric was the harshest delivered by a leading GOP spokesman since Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's campaign speeches last year.

Dole flayed Clark, the U.S. attorney general under President Lyndon B. Johnson, for becoming involved in the defense of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and five other persons indicted in an alleged plot to bomb government facilities and kidnap Nixon aide Henry A. Kissinger.

"No wonder the extremists had a heyday under the Democrats when they knew that the chief law enforcement official of the federal government was a left-leaning marshmallow like Ramsey Clark," Dole said.

Dole said Muskie, who is considered the front runner for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972, was a "wandering minstrel" who had "undercut the President's position in foreign affairs." He said he referred to Muskie's meeting with Premier Alexei Kosygin in Moscow recently, after which Muskie said he told the Soviet leader there was an antiadministration view in the United States and that many persons were concerned about the arms race.

Delayed Reaction In Metzger Case

By C. P. McCARTHY

A raid on a Sausalito attorney's home last December was prompted by information that drugs were seen at the home more than seven months earlier.

The delayed reaction was disclosed yesterday in Marin Superior Court during a hearing in which attorneys for Michael Henry Metzger sought to prove the drug raid on his home was the result of a "witch-hunt" by narcotics agents.

It was also revealed yesterday that Jerold N. McDonald, who provided agents with the information that led to the raid on Metzger's home Dec. 6, was a paid informer for the United States Customs Service, drawing a $12-a-day salary in addition to bonuses for information leading to arrests.

McDonald was the captain of a gun-laden sub-chaser raided in Tiburon Harbor last July. Charges against McDonald stemming from that raid were dropped four days after the raid on Metzger's residence.

McDonald, who lives in Salt Lake City, Utah, is fighting a subpeona to bring him back to California for questioning by Metzger's attorneys.

Metzger, 33, is charged with felony counts of possessing LSD, marijuana, cocaine and a tear gas weapon.

Alfred Teixeira, a Marin County drug agent, said yesterday that the raid was based on information from McDonald that he had seen a small quantity of marijuana, hashish and cocaine at Metzger's home sometime in April or May.

Under questioning yesterday by one of Metzger's attorneys, William O. Weissich, Teixeira said he first learned of McDonald's information from another drug agent and that he was told by McDonald himself in September.

Asked why he did not act on the information when he first heard of it, Teixeira replied he just "didn't get around to it," and added he was not sure of McDonald's reliability then.

He said McDonald's reliability was assured when he used him in connection with a San Francisco case in September, but replied "I really don't know why," when asked why no action was taken on Metzger in September.

In affadavits filed earlier, Metzger's attorneys claim that drug agents "conspired with each other to procure the arrest of Mr. Metzger by fair means or foul" in retaliation for Metzger's demand that an agent be made to take a lie detector test in a San Mateo County case.

The involvement in the Metzger case of that agent, Garrett Van Raam of the state Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement, was traced by Teixeira yesterday.

He said Van Raam was present in the Marin Drug Abuse Bureau office Dec. 3 when agents had McDonald telephone Metzger in an attempt to set up a meeting. That telephone conversation was taped by the agents.

Van Raam was present when the agents unsuccessfully attempted to send McDonald, who was "wired for sound" into Metzger's home Dec. 4, and when they succeeded in getting him into the home Dec. 5.

Van Raam did not go along for the raid on Metzger's residence Dec. 6, Teixeira said, although he said the two agents met at the Hall of Justice and again at the Sausalito Police Department prior to the raid, and that they met, by accident, at a San Francisco bar following the raid.

In affadavits, Metzger's attorneys claim that McDonald told them that Van Raam had said "he hated Metzger, wanted to get Metzger" and would see that charges against McDonald were dropped if McDonald would assist the agents in arresting Metzger.

Teixeira and the district attorney's office denied yesterday that the charges were dropped because of McDonald's assistance to the agents, although Teixeira said he did tell McDonald, "I would do what I could. I could promise him nothing."

Harold Diaz, assistant special agent in charge of the United States Customs office in San Francisco, said in court yesterday that McDonald had been a paid informer on the customs payroll from April 22 to June 18, 1970, but that he received payments from the customs service through Sept. 24.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court continued the hearing on Metzger's motion to dismiss the case until March 26.

Marriages Of Jews, Gentiles Attack Target

BOSTON (UPI)—Marriages between Jews and Gentiles are not "Jewishly valid," according to a ruling of the rabbinical court of the Associated Synagogues of Massachusetts.

The court's ruling followed an announcement of the State Board of Rabbis. The decree, announced Wednesday, said the greatest threat to Jewish survival was assimilation.

The court's decree applies even to marriages "solemnized" by a rabbi and calls for the expulsion from rabbinic organizations clergy who officiate at such marriages.

"To have such a union solemnized by a rabbi in order to give it religious status and religious identity constitutes a sham and a fraud perpetrated by the Hebrew clergyman performing such a ceremony on the people concerned," the court said.

Behr Will Give Report Tonight

State Senator Peter H. Behr, R-Mill Valley, will report on legislation at a public meeting at 8 p.m. today in the Sir Francis Drake High School little theater, sponsored by the San Anselmo Homes Association.

A question period will follow Senator Behr's report.

Banning Of Superjets Supported

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Ignoring pleas by organized labor and the aircraft industry, the Senate Health and Welfare Committee has endorsed a bill to ban the supersonic transport from California skies.

On a split voice vote Wednesday the committee sent to the full Senate legislation by Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson prohibiting an SST—foreign or domestic—from taking off from any airport in the state.

The measure orders local district attorneys to prosecute any violators and seek recovery for individuals who have suffered health injuries or property damage.

"I believe, first, that this aircraft must not be allowed to operate in, or over, California because it presents an intolerable threat to the health and well-being of our citizens," Beilenson said.

The Beverly Hills Democrat said the SST poses a threat to the environment from sonic boom, exhaust pollution fallout and ambient alteration of the stratosphere.

"The SST is the perfect example of what this nation ought not to be doing, and it is within our power to help prevent this costly and foolish mistake, this misallocation of limited natural resources, this gross perversion of national priorities and concerns," he said.

The lawmaker said he believes the bill's "chances might be good" for gaining Senate approval.

But the aircraft industry and labor presented a united front in seeking to scuttle the legislation, which Beilenson hopes may induce Congress to refuse additional funding for the proposed 1,800-mile-an-hour plane.

Philip L. Peoples, spokesman for the Boeing Co., the prime building of two prototype SSTs, told the committee his firm's scientists believe the plane will cause no environmental harm.

He said the 300-passenger plane will fly subsonically over land.

SST's Future Is Still Cloudy One

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The future of the controversial supersonic transport (SST) remains doubtful, with at least one indication the Senate would vote to kill the project if a decision were made today.

But final action was a long way off as the Senate Appropriations Committee continued its hearings.

The House plans to vote next week on a $290 million appropriation for the SST — including $134 million to keep the development going until July 1. Senate action will follow.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., leading Senate opponent of the project, said he thought the weight of the testimony Wednesday was against the SST. He cited as "most damaging" a statement of Najeeb E. Halaby, president of Pan American World Airways, that as of now he would not exercise an option to buy Concordes —the British-French version of the SST.

Last year the Senate voted to kill the SST, but tentatively revived it at the insistence of the House pending the current round of hearings.

"If a vote were taken today I think the Senate would kill it again," one senator told UPI. He said right now he could count 50 votes against the plane.

Administration witnesses — including Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe —testified the SST was vital to American air supremacy, to the country's financial well being and to fight unemployment. They said if there was the slightest doubt, however, that it would pollute the atmosphere, the project would be killed.

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, also called on Congress to continue funding the project. He said it was needed to provide up to 150,000 jobs in the aerospace industry. But Arthur M. Okun, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, replied:

"If the SST is nearly as good —as feasible technically, as sound commercially, and as demonstratably safe environmentally —as its proponents insist, then the SST does not need public funds. If the case is that good, private investors in private financial markets would provide ample funds to cover SST development without any drain on the already strained resources of the federal treasury."

Town Meeters To Study Plan

The Larkspur Town Meeting committee, which has set May 1 for the city's second such gathering, will meet March 18 at 8 p.m. at city hall to continue work on a meeting agenda.

According to Joan Sestak, chairman of the committee, the May meeting will concentrate primarily on revamping of the city's general plan and related matters.

Town Meeting members have been involved with studying the general plan, the downtown plan and the park and recreation master plan since the last meeting in November, she said.

Those studies and related action by city government will form the nucleus of the next meeting, she said.

San Rafael High 'Town Hall' Session

A "town hall" meeting on San Rafael High School will be held at 8 p.m. today in the high school cafeteria, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association.

Discussion is scheduled on the school's modular scheduling program, which was adopted this year, as well as on counseling, homework, etc. Principal Alan W. Ellsberg, faculty members and students will report on the modular scheduling.

A PUPPY'S BEST FRIEND

Heavy Ground Fighting Is Reported In Sepone Area

SAIGON (UPI) — Heavy ground fighting broke out today in the Sepone area of Laos and front dispatches said the North Vietnamese were sending in tanks despite massive air strikes which have killed more than 1,000 Communists in the past two days.

U.S. military sources said B52 strikes accounted for at least 600 of the victims and that the raids were the most successful of the entire war by the high flying bombers. Spokesmen said this brought Communist deaths to more than 7,000 since the Laotian operation began Feb. 8.

UPI correspondent Barney Seibert, aboard an American press helicopter attempting to reach the area of the B52 strikes, said his chopper was turned back this afternoon by heavy ground fire.

Seibert said it appeared that South Vietnamese forces in the region 25 miles inside Laos and astride the Ho Chi Minh supply trail were in ground contact with North Vietnamese forces and that North Vietnamese tanks were spotted moving toward the battleground.

Brig. Gen. Pham Van Phu, commander of the 1st South Vietnamese Infantry Division, said at Khe Sanh, 12 miles inside Vietnam, that his troops at Sepone were having "some difficulty" in resupply by helicopter but they were carrying five to seven days supplies when they moved out of base areas.

The North Vietnamese have been reported sending in more and more heavy antiaircraft guns for use against the swarms of American supply helicopters and Cobra gunships supporting the South Vietnamese incursion. A spokesman said three helicopters were shot down in less than one hour today.

Another Boycott At Paris Talks

PARIS (UPI)—The chief Hanoi and Viet Cong negotiators boycotted the Paris peace talks again today in protest against President Nixon's Vietnam policies. The Saigon delegate was ill and U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce was the only chief negotiator to attend.

The Communist deputies issued lengthy statements accusing the United States of preparing to invade North Vietnam and, before flying off to Romania for a visit, chief Viet Cong negotiator Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh told UPI she was convinced Communist China would give Hanoi all the help it needed.

Bruce, in one of the shortest prepared statements he has yet made, said the Communists "prefer propaganda maneuvers to serious discussion. I therefore have nothing further to say at this time."

Bruce opened his remarks saying, "We have made clear repeatedly that we are ready for serious discussion of the issues relevant to a negotiated settlement. Our proposals on a cease-fire, withdrawal of external forces, prisoners of war, political settlement and an Indochina-wide conference are before you." Then he said there was nothing more to be said.

The conference ended again without progress and the delegates agreed to meet again next Thursday—but without saying who would be there.

Chase Manhattan Cuts Prime Business Rate

NEW YORK (UPI)—Chase Manhattan Bank today cut its prime business loan rate to 5 1/4 per cent from 5 3-4 per cent, effective immediately. Chase is the nation's third largest bank.

Money market sources expect other commercial banks across the nation will follow suit, although some were surprised by the half-point Chase move because most of the recent prime rate cuts have been 1-4 point.

If other banks follow, it will be the 10th round of prime interest rate cuts in just under a year. The first of the series was on March 25, 1970 and brought the rate down to 8 per cent from the record 8 1-2 per cent in effect since June 1969.

Eight of the 10 cuts took place after last November's Congressional elections, which registered the unpopularity of high interest rates and tight money, two tools in the government's anti-inflation arsenal. Five of the cuts took place since the turn of the year.

Chase said it cut its prime rate to bring it into closer alignment with prevailing shortterm rates.

The prime rate has no direct bearing on consumer loan rates or residential mortgage rates.

Farm Income Up In Salinas Valley

SALINAS (UPI) — Despite lengthy farm labor disputes in the Salinas Valley last year, farm income was better than ever.

The Monterey County Farm Report showed this weekend that agricultural income in 1970 was $227.6 million, a gain of $11.4 million over the previous year.

The county, leading producer of vegetables in the country, got $13.6 million more for its lettuce crop in 1970 than it did in 1969, despite strikes in August and September.

Only in tomatoes was the cash return down significantly as a result of the labor troubles, the report indicated. Income on tomatoes was $10.2 million, don from $17 million the previous year.

Death Penalty For Leo Robles

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday decided that San Quentin's "most dangerous killer" should die.

The jury of six men and six women deliberated six hours before returning a death verdict in the retrial of the penalty phase of Leo Estrada Robles' 1968 murder conviction.

A death verdict in the 1968 trial was thrown out by the California Supreme Court which ruled that the late Judge Harold J. Haley should not have allowed Robles to act as his own attorney during the penalty phase of the trial.

The conviction of first degree murder in connection with the death of a fellow inmate at San Quentin was allowed to stand.

Following a poll of the jury yesterday after its verdict was in, one of the jurors, Dorothy Wright of Tiburon, began to weep.

"Thanks a lot, Dorothy," Robles said from across the courtroom, "Give me death and then cry. That's just like a broad."

Mrs. Wright is the wife of Gordon C. Wright, Reed School District trustee facing a recall election April 20.

During the trial, which began Jan. 7, the 26-year-old murderer threatened to kill his attorney, Deputy Public Defender Edward Briggs, as well as to kill or maim Marin Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman, his wife and children.

He also threatened during court outbursts that he planned to kill six correctional officers at San Quentin and said he had "contracts" to kill two Death Row inmates.

At one point in the trial, Robles — who was chained in his seat throughout the proceedings — broke two links of a chain in an attempt to attack Briggs.

In his closing argument to the jury, Herman had warned that "this man will kill again," and askedthe jurors to decide "Who is going to die, Leo Robles or his next victim?"

Briggs had contended that Robles was insane and should not have been convicted of first degree murder in the first place.

After the jury was dismissed yesterday, Robles sneered, "Don't clean it up now, pig," as Judge E. Warren McGuire stated for the record that the jury had never seen Robles being chained or unchained from the chair.

Judge McGuire set March 31 for formal sentencing.

Robles was convicted of hanging his cellmate in Santa Clara County Jail in 1965, where he was awaiting trial for stabbing a man who had offered him a ride.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment for that killing, and it was at San Quentin that he slashed the throat of a fellow inmate, Forrest Smith, 42, with a razor blade imbedded in a tooth brush.

Last week, Robles and another inmate teamed up in an unsuccessful attempt to stab a guard.

If he ever got loose, Robles warned the jury during his trial, "You'll think the Manson case was nothing."

Elderly Ross Woman Injured In Crash

A 73-year-old Ross woman driver was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital, where she was under treatment for concussion from a one-car accident Tuesday.

Helen H. Mayor Del Pino of Laurel Grove Avenue, was injured when her car struck a concrete guardrail at the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard exit from the northbound lanes of Highway 101.

Gardiner Refuses To Allow Reporter's Magee Interview

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court yesterday refused to order San Quentin Prison authorities to allow a newspaper reporter to interview inmate Ruchell Magee.

The order had been sought by Alice Yarish, a reporter for the weekly Pacific Sun. She charged prison regulations prevented her from talking to Magee, who — Mrs. Yarish contended — had requested an interview.

Before any action could be taken on her petition, prison regulations were changed to allow interviews with men awaiting superior court appearances if certain conditions were met.

In his order yesterday, Judge Gardiner did tell prison authorities to clarify one of the conditions which demands a court order for interviews in cases where inmates are not represented by counsel or where a judge has restricted publicity.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court has issued an order limiting pretrial publicity in the case of Magee, who is charged — along with Angela Y. Davis — of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 7 escape attempt and shoot-out at the Marin Hall of Justice.

Judge Gardiner said the condition was "incomprehensible" and made it impossible for Mrs. Yarish or anyone else to know what his rights are.

He ordered San Quentin Warden Louis S. Nelson to clarify the condition and also to formulate a regulation regarding tape recordings.

Mrs. Yarish's attorney, Jerome Berg of San Francisco, taped a conversation between himself and Magee. Berg said yesterday he will seek permission to allow publication of the taped conversation.

In discussing his decision today, Gardiner said he was not going to govern the prison.

"Prison authorities are "the ones who know the problems and they should make the rules," he said.

The most important thing regarding the case, Gardiner said, was not publicity, but the "fairness of the trial."

Preschool Reports Exposure Case

A man exposed himself in front of Kiddieland Preschool at 46 Louise Street, San Rafael, at 7:31 a.m. yesterday, owner John H. Bunch reported to police.

The man was described as about 24 years of age with brown collar length hair and a beard. He wore an army type coat.

Test Results Due Discussion

The Larkspur School District board, meeting tonight at 8'oclock at the district office, will review results from a state test given some district students.

The test, mandatory for all school districts, was given last fall to first, second, third and sixth grade students to determine learning achievement.

The board will also begin review of its fiscal 1971-72 budget and its summer school program.

Impasse In Reed Near A Solution

A meeting between the Reed School District board and district teachers ended last night with agreement near on procedures aimed at resolving disagreements between the two, including the current teacher contract impasse.

Board chairman Gordon C. Wright said the board would meet again with the teachers at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, preceding the regular 8 p.m. board meeting, to wrap up the discussions.

Allen West, head of the Reed District Teachers Association, told the board he would recommend sanctions against the district by teachers be dropped if agreement is reached, Wright said.

The fanctions were imposed after the teachers claimed the district board would not talk in good faith over what the instructors insist are "punitive" clauses in the proposed new contract.

The procedures, following guidelines in the state's Winton Act, set up a type of grievance organization for teachers; establish framework in which board and teacher representatives can confer on personnel questions and matters of instruction; provide for guidelines for "meet and confer" sessions between board and teacher representatives, and establish a method, such as fact-finding, for resolving "persistent disagreements" arising from "meet and confer" sessions.

'Foolish' Habit: Sunglasses In Dark

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Wearing sunglasses at night or on dark, cloudy days may lend a Hollywood glamor appearance, but it is a foolish and illogical practice, an industrial medical director warns.

Dr. Lee B. Grant said sunglasses reduce visibility which can cause hazardous slips, falls and traffic accidents.

Army Colonel Denies Corruption Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Former Brig. Gen. Earl F. Cole, trying to battle charges that he was involved with corruption in his command, did not fire his biggest guns —sworn documents showing some of his accusers may have made conflicting statements.

An examination of documents which Cole gave to Senate investigators revealed today that high-ranking officers stated under oath that the major who made many of the charges against Cole later apologized and formally retracted the accusations.

They also reveal that a colonel swore to the truth of sharply differing versions both of the major's allegations against Cole and of a confrontation between the two men in 1968.

Cole submitted the documents to the Senate investigations subcommittee Wednesday as he took the stand in his own defense, denouncing the case built against him in three preceding weeks of testimony as "unproved, untrue and slanderous accusations" made by malcontents bent on destroying him.

But Cole made only a passing reference to the documents which were added to the hearing record, flooding the record instead with accounts of his achievements in command positions in Vietnam and Europe and complaints that his career had been ruined.

"In my judgment, there is a very good chance you have committed perjury before this committee," snapped an unconvinced Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., when Cole finished. "Unless you can testify otherwise, this committee will be compelled to take action against you."

Cole was reduced to colonel, stripped of his distinguished service medal and retired last summer.

The charges against Cole were based largely on allegations made by Maj. Clement E. St. Martin and corroborated by many other witnesses. Principally they accuse him of involvement with shady businessmen dealing with service clubs and post exchanges under Cole's control in Vietnam from mid-1966 through 1968.

In sworn 34-page testimony one week ago, St. Martin detailed the charges and said Cole ordered him off the U.S. Army headquarters base at Long Binh for making the accusations in a New Year's Day confrontation in 1968.

Cole, however, submitted sworn statements from himself, from another general, and from three colonels present at that meeting. Three of them stated that St. Martin apologized and later filed a written retraction; the other two said St. Martin "appeared satisfied" by the explanations Cole gave for his conduct.

One of the colonels, Robert H. Williamson Jr., said in an Oct. 28, 1969, statement produced by Cole that St. Martin's charges "consisted largely of hearsay" and that the major "was satisfied with the explanations given as were other members of the group ... and had a man-to-man conversation with Gen. Cole and that everything was straightened out or words to that effect."

But in an affidavit sworn April 30, 1970 and made public by the subcommittee this month, Williamson said just "some" of St. Martin's charges were unsubstantiated. Williamson, who was post commander at Long Binh at the time, also said in the second statement that "while complete and satisfactory explanations were given for some allegations, others still required more thorough examination."

Williamson's second statement also gave evidence against Cole while praising St. Martin as "conscientious and (having) a flare for investigation."

'War Tax' Attacked By Political Group

The special 10 per cent excise tax on telephone bills is a wrong number because it is earmarked exclusively to support the war in Indochina, Marin Alternative has declared.

As a result, the relatively new political action group has called for a class action lawsuit challenging legality of the tax, and for withholding payment of the 10 per cent until the issue is decided in the courts.

Alan Barnett and Grace Hughes, spokesmen for Marin Alternative, said the strategy will be explained at a public meeting at 9:30 a.m. March 20 in Alexander Hall at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The Marin Alternative leaders said Philip Drath, Marin builder and a congressional peace candidate in 1968, originated the idea of putting the disputed 10 per cent tax into a trust fund.

The protest procedure and lawsuit plans will be explained at the meeting by attorney Lloyd McMurray of San Francisco.

Marin Alternative backed its claim that the tax is war-related by quoting Rep. Wilbur Mills, House floor leader when the bill containing the tax was enacted in 1968. According to the Congressional Record, Wills said, "I believe it is clear that it is the Vietnam, and only the Vietnam operation, which makes this bill necessary," the Marin group reported.

Marin Demos Endorse Bill On 'Undeclared War'

Legislation making it illegal for Californians to fight in undeclared wars has been endorsed by the Marin County Democratic Central Committee.

The legislation, AB 233 by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, is awaiting action in the Assembly Judiciary Committee. A similar measure died in the 1970 Legislature.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, is a coauthor of the new measure, which is designed to force a U.S. Supreme Court test of the constitutionality of fighting undeclared wars.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors endorsed the measure last month.

Charge Of Blocking Quake Aid

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The Reagan administration deliberately is blocking $72,000 in federal funds to improve earthquake safety, a Democratic senator has charged.

The accusation was made by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist of San Jose, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Seismic Safety. The committee was created more than a year ago, but has been crippled by a lack of funds.

Alquist, testifying Tuesday before a senate finance subcommittee, said that federal funds earmarked for his committee had been blocked by the State Office of Emergency Service.

The senator said that the finance subcommittee should withhold temporarily its approval of the state office's budget for "bungling" the federal funds.

The state office reportedly has objected that the seismic safety study should be conducted by its staff, and not by Alquist's committee.

Assessment Levied For Sewage Facility

The North Marin County Water District board has approved formation of an improvement district to finance sewage facilities at Oceana Marin Unit One near Dillon Beach.

District Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill said protests from 10 property owners representing 18.5 per cent of the area involved were overruled by the board Tuesday.

The district will cover 57 lots and the assessment to property owners was set at $1,577 per lot.

The North Marin County Water District board also:

RELOCATION — Approved an agreement whereby the district will receive $70,000 from the state Division of Highways for relocation of a water line on Atherton Avenue, from Highway 101 to Armstrong Avenue, in preparation for the Highway 101 By-Pass, and awarded Soiland Co. Inc. of Bel Marin Keys, lowest of six bidders, a contract for relocation work at a cost of $47,378.

POINT REYES STATION — Approved condemnation to obtain easements across four properties from its well site on Papermill Creek to water mains at Shoreline Highway, Point Reyes Station, needed for improvements to recently acquired private system.

NEXT MEETING — Deferred until March 23 at 8 p.ms at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, discussion of providing a water supply and sewage disposal for the county's proposed recreation development at Stafford Lake. Churchill explained the regular meeting date of the 16th was bypassed because all directors were unable to attend.

House Crime Panel Gets 2 More Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, on a voice vote, has agreed to extend for another two years the life of its special committee on crime, a panel which has power to "conduct a full and complete investigation and study of all aspects of crime affecting the United States."

The committee, after its creation on May 1, 1969, held hearings in 13 states and issued reports on the widespread use of drugs but none of its recommendations was submitted as legislation.

A Specialist In The Fashion World

By BETH GAEDDERT

When Beatrice Judelle started out in the fashion business in her native New York City there was no place to train.

"In my day you learned secretarial and bookkeeping skills and your boss would spend an hour or two overtime teaching you the business. Of course there were no overtime wages or hour restrictions," she said in an interview in her condominium home in the Peacock Gap area of San Rafael.

"Harvard Business School was the best business school, but it wasn't open to women," she said.

Since Miss Judelle, whose married name is Mrs. Alex Mittelman, started writing about fashion merchandising by accident she has authored hundred of articles for trade papers and magazines, co-authored five books and has done research for coutless others on merchandizing, buying for and managing clothing stores.

She uses her maiden name professionally partly because of the prejudices against women in the business.

"They always think women won't stay very long, but they don't think about the young man who may transfer to another job after a short time," she said.

HER LATEST book, "Fashion Merchandising," co-authored by Mary D. Troxell, associate professor and coordinator of fashion merchandizing at the University of Hawaii, is the first one to combine all the aspects of modern merchandising — sociology, economics and the development of women as costumers — into one book for school courses.

"Today fashion merchandisers have a masters degree in business administration and the buyers are carefully trained. There is a great demand for teaching fashion merchandising but there are no books. They are trained by lecturers, instead," she said.

Big department stores used to hire "stylist" or "fashionists," persons with fashion instinct to advise on buying.

Miss Judelle was graduated from Hunter College in New York City prepared to teach high school English.

"But the nearer I go to it the further away I went," she says.

"I had a great desire to be a writer. By accident I got into a trade association and met a man who knew everything about department stores but he couldn't write."

Beatrice Judelle has seen concepts of fashion develop from the '30s when "fashion was what they saw in the last show room" to today when fashion is "very scientific, very well informed and comes very definitely from the people who wear the clothes."

"WHAT BUYERS bought used to be determined by what royalty wore, then what the very wealthy wore. Today each group does its own thing," she said.

The idea that hippies have started fashion trends is one of the newest theories, she said. "The ones who are out of society — have cut themselves off, have nothing to lose, no status — they wear what they want. People who are very wealthy and secure can do the same thing.

"A fashion comes back every generation," she said. "And it's as if they've just discovered it. Just like sex. In the '20s there were girls who wore peasant blouses and long skirts. They were the hippies of the day. As soon as we take over their styles they'll drop them,"

The Mittelmans moved to Marin three years ago and feel "we've been alive three years," she says. The only thing they miss about living in New York is a "glorified log cabin" they had in the mountains.

"Nobody is so provincial as a person who has lived all his life in New York City," she said. Her "big ambition" is to travel around the country in a trailer. "I have flown across the country several times and I have seen clouds."

The fashion business is centered in New York because, like Paris, all supplemental industries are near. "All the companies that make buttons and trims and all the other things you need are there, she said.

"At noon you can go down to the garment district and everyone who's not nailed to a machine is down there talking and they are all taking business. With that tremendous concentration, news travels fast," she said.

"NEW STYLES always take off in a big city," Mis Judells said, "because there is a crowd of people who like to wear something new and they need

CO-AUTHOR of the only book on modern fashion merchandising, Beatrice Judelle of San Rafael has written hundreds of articles for trade publications and associations. She and her husband moved to Marin three years ago after living all her life in New York City. "The whole technique of fashion merchandising is recognizing consumer desires and responding to them," she said.

Reversal Of Marriage Patterns Seen As Solution To Birth Rate

Ideas for setting up roadblocks to early marriage as a solution to California's high birth rate were suggested yesterday by a demographer from the University of California at Berkeley to a symposium at the U.C. Davis campus.

Dr. June Sklar told a symposium on California Population

Problems and State Policy that because young marriages support a high birth rate, California should consider attempts to reverse the early-marriage pattern.

California and the United States as a whole are early marriage regions, especially compared to Western Europe. California women first marry at a little over age 20 and California men at about 23. In Western Europe, women on the average do not first marry until their 23rd birthday or later, and men not until their 25th birthday or later.

THE RESULT of early marriage is not only associated with larger families, Dr. Sklar pointed out, it is also related to lower levels of childlessness. Among American women 45 to 54 years of age in 1960, for example, less than eight per cent of those who wed before age 18 were childless by the end of their reproductive years. For women who married at advanced ages it was 45 per cent — or almost six times as great.

The Sklar estimates revealed that with no married women before the age of 25 — "everything else remaining the same" — the number of total births in this state in 1969 would have declined by almost 40 per cent, while the general fertility and crude birth rates would have declined by more than 60 per cent.

In addition to reducing the number of births, Dr. Sklar suggested, delaying marriage would have additional benefits for Californians:

1) Divorce would likely decrease, since the very young, divorce-prone marriages would be eliminated.

2) The population is likely to become better educated and more economically productive since young people would have additional years to spend in these two activities before marriage.

3) The additional time in school and the labor market "will better prepare couples both financially and psychologically for the burdens and responsibilities of marriage and parenthood when they do marry."

BECAUSE CALIFORNIANS could easily evade laws directly regulating age at marriage (such as marrying in Nevada, as is now done to some extent), Dr. Sklar recommended an indirect approach as official state policy. One set of proposals comprises short-term measures, the other long-term.

The first would be based on financial considerations: "Require couples to prove solvency before a license is granted; tax a marrying couple; raise the marriage license fee substantially."

Accompanying this program would be a firm state commitment to a policy of "changing the currently pervasive social and economic supports of early marriage."

One group of social and economic factors actually permits couples to marry early — an increase in married female labor force participation, and the concentration of these women in low level jobs, subsidized housing in terms of federal low interest, low down-payment loans, inexpensive married student housing and fellowships that provide for dependents have all helped couples to "decide" they can afford to marry early.

A second group of factors has motivated couples to marry, and to marry relatively young — the denigration of bachelors and spinsters, the praise of married persons, a lack of alternative roles other than marriage and motherhood for women and easy divorce and remarriage "have all encouraged wedlock, apart from purely financial reasons."

MOREOVER, DR. Sklar declared, a shift in official policy which encourages later marriages would probably result in increased illegitimacy. The number of unwed mothers would climb on the one hand and, with marriage delayed to older ages, young unmarried pregnant women would find it more difficult to arrange a hasty marriage in order to give their unborn child legitimate status.

The answer to this problem, Dr. Sklar insisted, should be further liberalization of abortion laws — which should reduce illegitimacy figures considerably.

It is these social and economic conditions Dr. Sklar believes should be changed if California seriously hopes to reduce the effects of early marriage on the state's population problems.

The two-day symposium was sponsored by the California Assembly Science and Technology Advisory Council, with local arrangements completed by the U.C. Davis Extension.

A Column For Pre-Teens On "Goofy" And Spoiled Little Brothers

DEAR HELEN:

It seems like you never have much in from the little kids — but lots about teen-agers and love and all that dumb stuff. Why don't you have a column once in a while for us? — 10-YEAR OLD

DEAR TEN:

Good idea. Here goes:

DEAR HELEN:

I have a big problem. Maybe it sounds silly, but my brother got a Disney story book. On the front is a picture of Goofy. My aunt asked what kind of animal he is. Someone said a cow because his girl friend is a cow. My dad said he is a horse. The rest of us said, "dog."

Please tell me which. The arguing is giving me a headache. Okay? Thank you. MUST KNOW

DEAR M.K.:

We-e-e-ll, Goofy can't be a horse because horses are hardly ever pictured as "goofy." There's no such thing as a male cow, and he doesn't look like a bull, so he's gotta be a dog. Okay?

I was tempted to call up and ask the "Fact Finder" at our local paper but thought better. A columnist has to think of her image, you know, and I just about blew it two weeks ago when I begged the home address of Bobby Sherman — for a 12-year-old girl who wanted me to forward her letter to him, but somehow I don't think the Fact Finder believed me. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm kind of young to be writing (I'm 11), but I have a question. You see we have school dances so I asked a girl. She said she needed a few days to think about it so I dropped her, but I'd like to know what to do in the future — UNKNOWING

DEAR UN:

Wait before you drop. Girls have a terrible time making up their minds — as you'll find out more and more as time goes on. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm twice the age of my little brother who is five, and he's ten times the trouble I am. You wouldn't believe how bad he is. He calls me names and teases me till I can't stand it. I can't hit him because he can really kick. The silent treatment won't work. I'm miserable.

Then if he does something wrong — for instance, when he put his omelet in a tissue and hit it and we found it three days later and it smelled awful — my Mom and Dad just told him never do it again. They hardly ever scold him. But I hit him for a good reason and Dad hit me real hard and said, "He's just a baby and doesn't know any better," but he does know. He's just spoiled rotten.

Helen, please help before I go out of my mind. — TIRED OF A WILD CHILD

DEAR TIRED:

I guess it doesn't help much to say your letter might have been written by almost every ten-year-old sister of an age-five brother. He is at a point where only parents could love him (so they probably overdo it). He will grow out of this stage, but brace yourself for another bad one at age-11 — when he starts teasing you about your boy friends. Meanwhile, loving patience is better than fists, though harder to achieve. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am very lucky. I have a nice mother, father, sister and brother, two dogs and three cats. I wish I could help others. Could you give me the name of a good society for animals and tell me a good amount of money for a nine-year-old to give? — FUTURE ANIMAL WORLD-WIDE WORRIER

DEAR FAWWW:

How about the Humane Society in your town? (You can find the address in the phone book.) The amount? Whatever you can spare but, better yet, why not find a good home for one stray cat or dog? Maybe you can talk a friend's parents into taking a pet. — H.

PERSONAL TO "BOY SHY CLAM" (of Novato:

If you'll send me a stamped self-addressed envelope, I'll do my best to help. — H.

Being A Woman Was A Career Obstacle

an audience. There is a small percentage of women who always want something new. This can't happen in a small town becuase there isn't a large enough percentage of these women.

"Women's Wear Daily is by and large reporting what they are wearing. You have to know how to read it. Even if it's slapdash reporting," she said, they are showing the trends.

There has never been a conflict between her family life and career, Miss Judelle said. Her son, Richard Mittleman, who lives in Terra Linda, could always reach his mother by phone when he was young and later "he didn't need me."

"I used to feel sorry for him because I thought other mothers were always at home baking cookies and chocolate cakes for their kids. Then one day he said, 'Gee, I feel sorry for so and so, his mother doesn't know anything!'"

"The biggest obstacle I've had in my business career is being a woman. I have often had a job three men have flopped on before me. I've had to compete with men who have a wife at home to take care of things. I had to go home after a day of work and be a wife," she said.

"My ideal world is where the one who likes to cook cooks and the one who likes to write writes and you divide up all the other jobs."

"I HAVE absolutely been refused certain positions because I was a woman and that was during the war when there was the greatest shortage of men. there were jobs I was highly recommended for. The greatest man I worked for believed that anybody who could do the job and do it well was the one to work for him."

Miss Judelle likes to do research and analysis and interviews on merchandising because "research gives you a view of what so many people are thinking. By working for the National Retail Merchants Association you can contact many people in key positions all over the country."

She has just finished a book for the NRMA called "The Fashion Buyers Job" for the girl who already has a job as a buyer but needs to know some things she couldn's learn in the classrooms.

The country's best school for fashion merchandisers is the Fashion Insitute of Technology in New York which operates with the cooperation of the fashion industry and unions, she says. Much of it is "within the industry" training. She co-authored "Inside The Fashion Business' for a course they offer.

She also created the first course offered by the Tobe-Coburn School For Fashion Careers on fashion merchandising.

Her "Fashion Merchandising" book just released by McGraw-Hill took one year of actual writing, she estimates, "not counting all the interruptions for other activities." She signed the contract in 1966 and turned the manuscript into the publishers in August 1968.

"Meanwhile fashion is changing," she said. A male editor questioned a section where she said fashion is what is shocking.

She was describing the long skirts with slits up the front, and the editor asked, "How can they be shocking?" "When you see a leg showing from a long skirt it looks like it belongs in the bedroom," Miss Judelle answered.

After living in New York City all of her life and being involved with the fashion world the Marin climate and peaceful Peacock Gap environment makes her lazy, she says.

Because permanent press garments stay fresh looking, it's tempting to delay laundering. Avoid this such delaying. Body oil stains may build up and be difficult to remove.

Less Calories And More Milk Needed In Later Life

CHICAGO (UPI)—As your years increase, decrease your calories, says the director of the Hines Veterans Administration Hospital.

Dr. Lee H. Schlesinger says a recent report he has received indicates overeating is one of the serious problems of aging.

The report, based on the VA's nationwide research on aging and care of geriatric patients, showed that 50 per cent of the men over 65 and 47 per cent of the women surveyed were more than 10 per cent over their optimum weight.

SCHLESINGER SAID Dr. Kurt Wolff, director of professional education and research at the VA Hospital at Coatesville, Pa., describes problems of the aged in his book "The Emotional Rehabilitation of the Geriatric Patient."

It is recommended that older persons mix dry skim milk or dry yeast into their foods to reduce caloric intake and fat, and increase protein consumption.

"Milk is probably the best food for later life," Wolff says. "Among the plant proteins, the best is soybeans."

Wolff says brewer's yeast is "one of the richest natural sources of both protein and water-soluble vitamins" and should be taken before meals to combat overweight.

"IT ALSO can be used to lessen the need for insulin by diabetics . . . (and) help prevent constipation; but it may cause trouble for those afflicted with gout," he says.

Schlesinger says doctors are paying more attention to care of the aged. The percentage of the U.S. population over age 65 has doubled in this century from 4.1 per cent in 1900 to 9.5 per cent in 1968 (from three million persons to 19 million).

One more note—albeit a familiar one—women have a life expectancy of 73.8 years against 66.7 for men, and the female life expectancy is still increasing faster than the male.

'All Growth Not Good': Moretti

DAVIS (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti told a symposium on California population problems yesterday that people "can no longer accept the proposition that all growth is good."

The Van Nuys Democrat was an opening speaker at the two-day symposium conducted by the Assembly Science and Technology Advisory Council, a 16-member group composed of some of the state's top population researchers.

Moretti said the state needs "a balance" between growth and resources. He expressed hope the symposium will result in recommendations for action.

Mike Laffey, 39, of Santa Rosa, has been placed on one year probation after pleading guilty in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court to assault on a police officer.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon also ordered that the gun wielded in the Feb. 1 fray with Petaluma police be forfeited. Officers said Laffey kicked and knocked them to the ground as they attempted to arrest his wife, Theresa, 33, for disturbing the peace.

Testimony In Calley Case Ends

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—Testimony in the murder court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. ended today after Col. Oran K. Henderson took the stand and disclosed that higher commands at My Lai were concerned over civilian deaths even while the operation was in progress.

Henderson, who commanded the brigade that bossed the My Lai assault task force, was the 104th and final witness.

He testified that the commander of the division over him, Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, ordered a report on the number of civilian casualties a little over two hours after the helicopter-borne mission began on March 16, 1968.

Calley, 27, is charged with premeditated murder of 102 women, children and old men while leading an American infantry platoon at My Lai.

One of the most important and most publicized—and perhaps the longest—court-martials in U.S. history ended testimony at 10:55 a.m. EST on the 46th court day. The testimony concluded one day short of four months after jury picking began on Nov. 12.

Henderson and Capt. Ernest L. Medina, who commanded the company that made the sweep, were called as jury witnesses, and Medina testified Wednesday that he had concealed the true figures on civilian deaths that day out of patriotic duty and devotion to the Army.

The judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, told the six-officer jury that when it begins deliberations after summations and his charge, it may request additional testimony "if some question comes up."

Kennedy recessed court until Sunday afternoon.

MUSIC REVIEW

Ozawa Returns; True To Form

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Seiji Ozawa's power to paint both delicately imaginative and wildly emotional pictures in sound was fully revealed in last night's San Francisco Symphony Concert at the Opera House.

The audience reacted in two ways — some by walking out before the last number or in the middle, but the majority by remaining to give him and the orchestra a standing, shouting ovation.

No two works could have better illustrated these two extremes in expression than the opening number, "The Birds" by Respighi, and the closing suite from Bartok's "The Miraculous Mandarin."

Light but high quality music, "The Birds" received the kind of performance that gives the imagination wings. In the first part, "The Dove," the oboe took flight on one of the most exquisite and beautifully played solo melodies I have heard on that instrument. In the second part, "The Hen," one could almost see fussy chickens scratching in the barnyard as the bassoon brought to mind a raucous rooster.

The nightingale and cuckoo, too, were colorfully evoked in the third and fourth parts of this piece that was a triumph for the woodwinds, though the violins were songful, too.

In explosive contrast to that idylic pastoral scene, the suite from the stage piece "The Miraculous Mandarin" was like a descent into hell. A scandal and banned from performance for many years both because of its violent music and theme centered in a mandarin's passion for a prostitute and his murder by thugs, it is a brilliantly dramatic work featuring brass and percussion, and Ozawa's demonic interpretation was hair-raising.

The San Francisco Symphony's first performance of the shocker was a never-to-be-forgotten experience.

Between the Respighi and Bartok and in great contrast to both came the sublime grandeur of the Beethoven "Emperor" Concerto featuring the young Argentine-born pianist Bruno Leonardo Gelber in his San Francisco Symphony debut. Lame from polio, he was a deeply sympathetic figure as he walked slowly to the piano, where he proved no part of the affliction had touched his keen musical intelligence nor the power and control of his hands.

So much virtuoso pianism is heard nowadays — and he certainly did not lack that — that it was more interesting to note his exceptional ability to make the slow movement a thing of beauty. Every note of the famous adagio melody was so lovingly polished that is was like hearing it sung by a glorious voice. He too received an ovation.

Instead of starting the concert according to the program Ozawa — still wearing a neck brace — surprised the audience with the announcement that he wished to play the prelude of Faure's "Pelleas et Melisande" in memoriam to the recently deceased Howard Skinner, San Francisco Opera business manager who had previously been manager of the symphony.

He said Skinner had helped him, and this was some of Skinner's favorite music. It was a touching gesture and moving performance.

KIT FOX MEETS THE PRESS

This San Joaquin Valley kit fox met the press yesterday at the kickoff of a new organization called Living Creatures Associates in San Francisco. The organization is dedicated to "press relations on behalf of all life forms," according to Sterling Bunnell, the man holding the kit fox which he said faces extinction within five years "unless we do something." Bunnell wants journalists to join with "people who can speak for the various species" to promote co-existence.

'Virgin Mary Used' Sparks Altercation

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Patricia Buckley Bozell, a member of the conservative Buckley family, rushed onto the stage at Catholic University Wednesday and tried to slap a militant feminist speaker, Ti-Grace Atkinson.

The Washington Post said that Mrs. Bozell then ran out of Maloney Hall, knelt on the sidewalk, said a rosary, stood up and shouted: "To hell with Catholic University."

Mrs. Bozell is the sister of columnist William F. Buckley Jr., and Sen. James Buckley, Conservative-N.Y.; and the wife of Brent Bozell, Washington editor of the conservative Catholic magazine, Triumph.

University President Clarence C. Walton had banned Miss Atkinson from speaking on grounds she had blasphemed the doctrine of the Virgin Mary. But the student government took the issue to court, and U. S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. ruled that Miss Atkinson had a constitutional right to speak.

At the moment Mrs. Bozell, 43 and the mother of 10, dashed onto the stage, Miss Atkinson was saying that her thesis depended on the virgin birth, and that Mary was therefore more "used" than she would have been had she participated in a sexual conception.

"I can't let her say that," Mrs. Bozell shouted as she ran forward. Miss Atkinson raised her hand and warded off the blow.

"Until I saw her face, I thought that she was running forward to kiss me," Miss Atkinson said. "That happens sometimes."

Restoring Of Lee As U.S. Citizen Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI)--Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., has introduced a resolution to restore, posthumously, Gen. Robert E. Lee's citizenship. To back the move Byrd said the national archives recently revealed that Lee took an oath of allegiance to the union in 1865, five years before he died.

The 14th Amendment to the Constitution requires a two-thirds vote of Congress to restore citizenship to any Army officer who rebels against the United States. "I feel that Congress should act now to restore the full rights of citizenship to one of the greatest Americans of all time," Byrd said.

Gypsy's Fancy Rolls, Nude Painting Sold

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A wooden commode cover painted with swans and flowers went for $75 and a Rolls-Royce Silvercloud auto brought in $8,250 Wednesday night in the auctioning of the estate of the late Gypsy Rose Lee.

The 1956 brown and black auto used by Miss Lee in her European and American tours was purchased by Russell Harris of Los Angeles. He outbid Jane Withers, a former child actress who now appears extensively on television commercials.

However, Miss Withers, a long time friend of the famous stripper, successfully bid on 15 other items, including the commode cover which was engraved with the initials GRL.

Miss Rose's son, Eric Kirkland Preminger, who was adopted by film producer Otto Preminger Wednesday commissioned the sale by Sotherby-Parke-Bernet auctioneers. Miss Rose died April 26, 1970.

The famous painting of Miss Rose by Marcel Vertes titled "Gypsy Typing" was purchased for $1,100 by Palmyra Motor of Palmyra, N.Y. The painting depicted Miss Rose in the nude wearing only a hat and gloves sitting at a typewriter while writing her book "The G-String Murders."

A total of 261 items went on the auction block bringing in $38,895 for the two day sale.

Two steamer trunks with her initials went for $200 and a sewing dummy was purchased for $75.

A harp which was given to Miss Lee by the backers of "Three Penny Opera" after it folded because they could not pay her was sold for $770.

A set of nine hotel keys from across the country went for $50 and a pair of diamond earrings brought $600.

Preminger Formally Adopts Son

NEW YORK (UPI)—Otto Preminger's 26-year-old son by the late Gypsy Rose Lee was formerly adopted by the movie producer Wednesday and officially changed his name to Preminger.

The son, who had called himself Erik Kirkland after Miss Lee's former husband, Alexander Kirkland, said his mother told him Preminger was his father when he was 17 but asked him "to keep it a secret."

The older Preminger said he adopted the boy even though Miss Lee had never asked him to legally recognize his fatherhood. He called Miss Lee, the famous stripper who died last year at the age of 56, an "independent and proud woman" who refused to marry him or accept his help.

"I always loved Erik as my son ... and now he has my name," Preminger said.

Erik works for his father as a script editor and casting director.

Army Veteran Charges Viet Prisoners Tortured

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI)—A veteran Army colonel charged today some Army officials were trying to cover up the torture and murder of Vietnamese prisoners.

Lt. Gol. Anthony B. Herbert, who has been in the Army for 22 years, told United Press International he intended to file charges Friday or Monday with the Judge Advocate General's office at 3rd Army headquarters here.

"I didn't want to do this," Herbert said , "but if nothing is done by April 3, nothing will be done."

Herbert said he understood the statute of limitations on initiating formal action against those covering up alleged crimes would end at that time.

The veteran soldier, who served in Vietnam in 1968 and 1969, said he knew of cases in which suspected Viet Cong were tortured at the 173rd Airborne Brigade's military intelligence compound at Bong Son in South Vietnam.

He said the alleged incidents included "the water treatment" and wiring prisoners to a field telephone so that it would shock them when the phone was cranked.

He said high officers in the brigade knew the incidents took place.

SONY's color system, TRINITRON is entirely different from conventional color picture tubes. How did we do it? Basically we simplified the system and got a better picture. ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, March 11, the 70th day of 1971

The moon is full. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Pisces.

On this day in history:

In 1888 more than 200 persons died as a violent snowstorm crippled New York City over a four-day period.

In 1930 William Howard Taft became the first president of the United States to be buried in the National Cemetery at Arlington, Va.

In 1959 the Senate approved Hawaii as the 50th state.

In 1970 famed mystery novelist Erle Stanley Gardner died at the age of 80.

A thought for today: American novelist Christopher Morley said, "He is too experienced a parent ever to make positive promises."

Final Auditions Set For Play

Final auditions for the annual Mountain Play, "Playboy of The Western World," will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday at Strawberry Point School in Strawberry.

Those wishing to audition are asked to prepare a scene or monologue in the Irish dialect for teen-age and adult parts open. Irish country dance groups and musicians are also being asked to participate.

Rehearsals for the play are scheduled Saturdays and Sundays through April and May at the Mount Tamalpais theater.

Even In Tournament Play, The Experts Tend To Use Caution

When the national tournament begins in Atlanta tomorrow you may be reading about tournament coups and how the stars ignored safety to play a hand for every possible trick. Don't go off with the opinion that tournament players are a bunch of hot rods. They know when to play safe, just as rubber bridge players do.

NATIONAL TOURNEY

When today's hand was played in a national tournament last year, the experts who got to four spades were pleased with the contract. There were only 23 high card points in the North-South hands, and it was reasonable to suppose that some of the players who held those hands would stop short of game. Moreover, some declarers might get a heart opening lead instead of the friendly club lead.

The upshot was that these thoughtful tournament players decided to play safe for the contract instead of trying for overtricks. This is, of course, exactly what a good rubber bridge player would so.

EARLY START

South must make an early start by covering the jack of clubs with dummy's queen. It would be dangerous to let West hold the first trick since he might then think of switching to a heart.

East wins the first club and leads another club. South ruffs and should lead the king of spades, followed by a low spade for a finesse with dummy's jack.

If this safety finesse lost, East would be able to take only one heart trick. If East failed to lead hearts, South could run the diamonds to discard a heart from dummy and could later ruff two hearts in the dummy.

JACK OF SPADES

When the jack of spades actually wins, declarer can draw another trump and run the diamonds to make sure of 10 tricks. Many fine tournament players would consider ruffing the rest of dummy's clubs before drawing the last trump, and this risky line of play would bring in an overtrick as the cards lie.

DAILY QUESTION

You have opened with 1- notrump, and partner has responded two hearts.

It is up to you again, holding:
♠ A J 9 5

♣ Q 8 7 6

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Partner expects you to pass unless you have a fine fit for his suit as well as 17 or 18 points in high cards.

Exempt From Minority Report

HONOLULU (UPI)—Hawaii employers have again been declared exampt from filing an annual federal report on minority employment which is required of businesses in the 49 other states.

The reason, says the Hawaii Employers Council, is that there are so many varied racial groups in Hawaii that no one in the Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has been able to devise a form to include all of them.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own 600 shares of J. C. Penney, bought around $45-$50 per share. With the 2-for-1 split, my position was doubled; but since then stock has not shown much growth.I am now retired and need income. Should I sell for a higher-yielding issue? — C.H.

A. Over the past two years Penney's sales and earnings pace has slowed somewhat from previous levels. Nevertheless, growth has been sustained. For fiscal 1970-71, earnings have thus far held up fairly well, especially in view of the sluggish retail climate.

Nine-month results were aided by the high level of volume which the firm derives from soft goods, where demand continued strong. Company also benefitted, particularly in the third period, from the decline in interest rates and reductions in administrative and general expenses.

Prospects for fiscal 1971-72 are enhanced by the expected upturn in the economy and consumer spending. However, Penney shares, currently selling at a rich 29x estimated results, may have partially discounted this. For income purposes, sell a portion of your commitment for purchase of a high-yielding stock or bond.

Q. I am 72 years old and have about $10,000 to invest in stocks. I would like to buy some sound issues which offer a good dividend return. Someone has told me to buy Great Western United. What do you advise? — J. B.

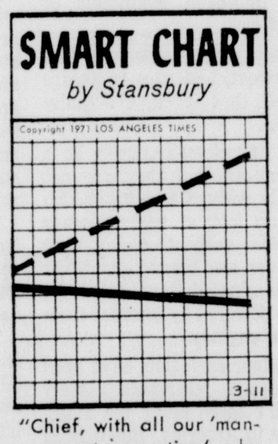
A. As an income issue, Great Western United is not suited to your needs. At present levels, stock yields only 3.3 per cent. Boston Edison, Fairmont Foods and Peoples Drug are three conservative stocks which offer a generous return plus a certain amount of appreciation potential.

By dividing your capital among these high-grade securities, you will realize an average 5.4 per cent return. Also, because each firm pays their dividend in different quarters, you will receive a dividend disbursement every month of the year. All of these companies have paid dividends for 40 years or more and each appears adequately protected now.

Housing Council Wants Inflation Lid

LOS ANGELES (BW) — The Council of Housing Producers has called upon all building materials suppliers, labor, financial institutions and builders to make every effort possible to maintain present cost levels.

In a resolution passed by the board of directors, the Council, and organization of 12 of America's largest home builders, also unanimously supported the efforts that President Nixon has taken to date to curtail inflation, but cautioned that the trend is still continuing.



"Chief, with all our 'management expertise,' why aren't we meeting long-range goals?"

Ampex Making TV System For Police Records

REDWOOD CITY (BW) — Los Angeles County has awarded a second contract to Ampex Corp. for equipment and engineering that will prepare a previously ordered television records system to be extended for use by any law enforcement and justice agency in the county.

The new $2.1 million contract is in addition to an order announced April 22, 1969. Under the first order, Ampex is manufacturing a $5.6 million videofile system which the county sheriff's department will use to automate the handling of more than 350,000 law enforcement records on file in the Hall of Justice. Installation is expected to begin this summer.

The second contract calls for additional equipment and modification work to make the system more flexible for sheriff's department use and to provide the foundation for broadening the system to serve the Los Angeles Police Department and other city police departments in the county and region.

Profits Down

CONCORD, Calif. (BW) — Systron-Donner Corp. has reported sales of $13,700,000 and earnings of $405,000 in the six months ended Jan. 31. Comparable figures for the same period last year were $16,240,000 and $754,000.

Market Surrenders Early Gain

NEW YORK (UPI) —Stocks were mixed in heavy turnover near the close Thursday after surrendering most of an early gain.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index showed a gain of 0.17 at 99.47, and declines narrowly topped advances, 691 to 686, shortly before the final bell.

Closing prices included AT&T 48 3-4 off 1-4; Chrysler 27 1-8 off 1-4; DuPont 139 1-4 up 2 1-4; General Electric 107 3-4 off 7-8; General Motors 83 1-8 up 1-4; Southern Pacific 41 1-8 up 1; Standard of Jersey 76 1-4 up 12, and U.S. Steel 32 up 1-2.

Primarily responsible for the market's early surge was Chase Manhattan Bank's halfpoint reduction in the prime interest rate. It brought the rate charged most creditworthy customers to 5 1-4 per cent, the tenth cut in the key lending rate in a little less than a year.

Airline Plans 4-Day Week

SAN DIEGO (BW) — Pacific Southwest Airlines (PSA) has announced that plans are currently being finalized for the adoption of a four-day work week for the majority of its employees.

In announcing the unique new program, PSA President J. Floyd Andrews stated that the San Diego-based airline will become the first major corporation in the border city and the first airline in the United States to adopt the new four-on and three-off work week concept.

"Studies conducted among those companies who have previously initiated the four-day work week concept have observed that both the employees and the companies benefit — with resulting decreases in production costs, improved customer services and higher production output. Participating companies have also noted reduced turnover and lower tardiness," Andrews said.

Capacitor Industry Expects Doubling

NEW YORK (UPI)—The capacitor industry, which makes a component for computers, will more than double in the '70s, according to an industry spokesman. By 1980, says Howard Rothenstein, president of Miconics Industries, Inc., sales of capacitors should pass the billion dollar mark, compared with approximately $500 million in 1970.

"Extensive use of capacitors in fourth generation computers, as well as earlier models, virtually assures this growth," Rothenstein said.

DRUGS IN THE CLASSROOM: Delinquency Panaceas

(Fourth of Six Articles.)

Dr. Arnold Hutschnecker is a New York psychotherapist who served as a consultant to the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence. He received his early training in Germany in 1939 and he believes that children, as young as 6, 7 and 8, can be medically diagnosed for a predisposition to delinquency and crime.

In 1969 he wrote a letter to President Nixon, suggesting national, compulsory early childhood delinquency diagnoses, supported by special day-care, after-school and rehabilitation centers, where children found to possess character flaws that supposedly predisposed them to delinquency and crime would receive drug and other remedial treatment. Yet there is no shred of evidence in the legitimate medical literature to suggest that such a diagnosis is possible or that drug or other cures exist to treat these symptoms.

Prompted by Dr. Hutschnecker, the White House proposed such a program to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare early in 1970. It was quickly dropped as a result of advice from HEW and protest from concerned neurologists, psychiatrists and other medical authorities.

THIS JUST one example that illustrates how much confusion can be sown by hasty, ill-advised, pseudo-scientific opinions, based on a misreading of research or on nothing more than a hope for easy answers to difficult problems.

Juvenile delinquency has been linked erroneously to minimal brain damage and to hyperkinesis. There is a lively but inconclusive debate among scientists and criminologists whether genetic signposts exist that indicate criminal tendencies. But this is a far cry from connecting juvenile delinquency to brain dysfunction, hyperkinesis and genetic flaws, or recommending drug cures for any of these conditions.

The words "juvenile delinquency" cover a multitude of behavior, ranging from isolated childhood pranks to habitual criminality in children. As far as is known now, innate character traits and the environment interact in every child and they are inseperably intertwined. These circumstances combine at times to produce undesirable or criminal behavior in some children. Attempts to treat one aspect without consideration of the other may placate public concerns for a time. But they don't solve the problem.

Even if the genetic and physiological causes of criminality could be diagnosed and treated with accuracy, and if children really did respond to drug treatment prescribed to alter behavior or character, they would still have to be removed from home and community conditions that help breed delinquency. Presently there is no scientific evidence that the first is possible, and no program exists that attempts the latter. Therefore, the idea that drug-mediated behavior control might reduce juvenile delinquency is a pipe dream.

SUPPOSED METHODS for predicting or preventing juvenile delinquency have great appeal to courts and schools who deal but fail to cope with these problems of children. Methods of prediction based on one or the other of the two contributing factors, instead of on both, are bound to be futile.

One of the by-products of such superficial panaceas is that truly important, contributing influences to children's learning and behavior failures tend to be swept under the rug. For example, the TV industry has long promoted the Glueck Juvenile Delinquency Prediction Tables, claiming that they hold the media harmless of any disturbing effect on children. This, of course, is a fraudulent claim since Doctors Sheldon and Eleanor Glueck have not considered or investigated the effect of TV on children. Theories like these let parents, teachers, schools, juvenile courts, the media, and the kids themselves entirely off the hook. If the diagnosis sounds impressive and the "cure" requires only drug taking "protective custody" of the offenders, then everyone is relieved of the responsibility.

PARENTAL INSTINCTS are sometimes much more reliable than pseudo-scientific hunches. Wherever massive drug mediated behavior programs have taken hold, in California, in Alaska, in Hawaii, in Arkansas, in Rhode Island, in Nebraska, in New York, in Indiana and elsewhere, parents, physicians and psychiatrists have taken exception to treating children in such an irresponsible manner. Those who do are sometimes subjected to pressure from school and medical authorities. Claims exist that some children may be given Ritalin and amphetamines without their parents' knowledge and consent. The National Institute of Mental Health, among other agencies, condemns such practices.

The U.S. Office of Child Development conducted a two-day symposium on this problem in mid-January. The report of these meetings stresses that the wide use of drugs to alter behavior is to be discouraged, since only a small percentage of MBD children react in the manner claimed by the pharmaceutical literature.

The "Valley of the Dolls" approach to children's behavioral and learning problems is only a foretaste of things to come. What is likely to happen when the current research in drug-assisted memory and learning produces chemicals that may allow perfectly normal children to improve their performance and test scores? Dr. Jose Delgado at Yale University, on the basis of experiments with monkeys, promises that children's behavior may eventually be controllable through implanting electrodes in their brains.

State College Reform Plan Has Not Worked

Some 150,000 students are enrolled at 15 California state college campuses, strung from San Diego to Arcata in Humboldt County.

All must be governed by a 21-member California State Colleges Board of Trustees. It includes the governor, lieutenant governor, Assembly speaker, state superintendent of public instruction, and the state colleges chancellor (who thus is placed in the dual role of employee and governor). The other 16 members are appointed by the governor to eight year terms.

The four elected officials serve on various other boards as part of their official duties. They can devote but limited time and attention to the state colleges.

The 16 appointed members, paid only per diem for meeting attendance, scarcely can be expected to be familiar with all 15 campuses.

This puts the chancellor in a commanding position on a board of which he actually is an employee.

PRIOR TO 1960, each state college had its own board. The statewide board was created by the Donahoe Higher Education Act in that year. It was intended to eliminate duplication and competition among the colleges.

It quickly became obvious that it didn't work. The statewide board was too remote.

In an attempt to correct this, the legislature the following year applied a "Band-Aid." It authorized the California State Colleges Board of Trustees to appoint an advisory board for each state college except California Polytechnic College. Members of each of these boards would have to reside in the area served by the college.

These advisory boards, however, were given no authority. They were merely to "consult and advise with the president of the college with respect to the improvement and development of the college." And to show how little was expected of them, the law provided that they should meet "at least once each year."

THE YEARS HAVE amply demonstrated that the "reform of California higher education" in the Donahoe Act was not reform at all, but the substitution of non-control for unsatisfactory control.

State Supt. Wilson C. Riles has advocated a single higher education board to oversee state colleges and university. This would start to get at the problem.

To bring true accountability to the state colleges, however, such a board should be elected, on a geographical basis. And each state college should have its own board with considerable powers in governance of its particular college, subject to the overall direction of the state board.

We don't need another "Band-Aid." We need true reform of higher education governance, to bring that much-talked-about necessity: accountability.

Future Nightmare: Trapped By Autos

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A fellow we know has a recurrent nightmare about the future of America.

In it, he sees the nation spanned from coast to coast by a single gigantic highway 40 lanes wide.

The highway is clogged bumper to bumper with autos, trucks, buses and motorcycles. Traffic is barely moving and he senses it soon will grind to a complete halt. The people trapped in the jam cannot escape on foot, because both sides of the highway are lined by high, unbroken mountains of junked cars.

At this point, he awakens in a cold sweat, and tries to assure himself that it can't actually happen.

His apprehensions may be a dab far-out, but they are not entirely without foundation. No one can look at contemporary America without seeing that our lives are being taken over and dominated by wheeled vehicles powered by internal combustion engines.

Amateur ecologists have been delivering jeremiads lately about there being too many people in America. But it is in motor vehicles, not people, that the greatest danger of overpopulation lies.

The human population is increasing at a rate that will cause it to double in 80 years. But the automobile population is doubling every 17 years.

There are now about 87 million passenger cars registered in the United States. Economist Jacqueline R. Kasun has calculated that each of these vehicles consumes an average of 700 gallons of motor fuels per year, and belches one full ton of pollutants into the air.

Moreover, each car travels an average of 10,000 miles per year, and requires $17,000 worth of roadways, not including parking space.

If auto production and sales continue at the level that has prevailed in recent years, Dr. Kasun says, the United States will have upwards of 170 million vehicles choking its roadways by 1987. These vehicles will burn 120 billion gallons of motor fuel and emit 170 million tons of gaseous and solid pollutants a year.

But even this is not all. Cars are being junked at a rate of about 12 million per year. Some are cut up for scrap but many are simply abandoned. If that keeps up, we'll have umpteen million rusting hulks sitting around in 1987, in addition to 170 million functioning cars.

We're not talking about extreme possibilities that might conceivably occur, but about what WILL happen if we keep on doing what we're doing.

The final corruption of American civilization by the automobile might be averted by drastic actions, such as prohibiting use of private vehicles in downtown areas of big cities and other especially congested areas; vastly improving mass transit facilities; rationing gasoline; or imposing very heavy taxes on automobiles.

"It is my considered belief, however, that nothing much will be done," Dr. Kasun says. "I am therefore looking for an island, somewhere in the Pacific perhaps, where automobiles are prohibited, and where I can retire and live comfortably on the income from my General Motors investments."

Reader Doesn't Like 'Simple Plan'

At a time when public support should be so important to you, I am amazed to see you demean and impugn the intelligence of your readers by so frivolous a flight in fantasy as the "Simple Plan . . ." (March 6).

Mill Valley Suds Disappear Faster

The old American tradition is no better typified than when we consider the relative merits of the good old washing suds.

This time it's not a question of whether your suds wash better than the other fellow's, rather it's a question as to whether your suds disappear as rapidly as your neighbor's when their task is completed.

The Mill Valley City Council in recently acclaiming the superiority of their own homemade suds, which they claim disappear without doing the harm that their neighbors' suds are known to do, should be congratulated other than censored for upholding again the cherished American tradition for having the best suds in their own home.

Child's Spending Should Be Supervised

I was shocked to read that a 13-year-old had paid $5 for a bag of "stuff" which he though to be marijuana, but turned out to be parsley. Shocked — not by the fact that a junior high school student was buying drugs (and being cheated) — but rather that he had $5 to spend so freely.

Parents are concerned about drug abuse, and yet, they are literally giving their children the means to indulge and experiment. Drug pushers do not give their merchandise away; and how many children under 16 earn their own spending money?

The purpose of an allowance is to teach the child to handle money and to give him a sense of independence. The books says that a parent should not tell a child how to spend his allowance. Perhaps this "book" theory should be tempered and challenged by common sense and adult judgement. What are your child's needs? How does your child spend the money he gets? I suggest keeping the kllowance (unaccountable money) to a minimum while offering to pay for other expenses (admission costs, magazines, records, gifts) as the occasion arises. Make him ask and tell you the cost, and make sure that the money is used for that purpose. In other words, supervised and guided spending — with emphasis on the "supervised".

I will not claim that the drug problem would not exist if parents were stingy or asked for an accounting of their child's spending; but I do think it would be decreased if youthful buyers could not acquire money effortlessly from affluent or overly-generous parents.

Waldie Rebutted On Canal Issue

Early last month, Contra Costa County Congressman Jerome R. Waldie asked the California Water Commission to support postponement of construction of the Delta Peripheral Canal . . . The California Water Resources Association believes your readers should know:

1. Mr. Waldie has conceded in the past his real goal in opposing the Peripheral Canal is to "bury" the State Water Project of which the canal is an indispensable part.

2. Mr. Waldie's historic opposition to water projects in general is ironical in the light of delta history . . .

3. Mr. Waldie last year introduced legislation in Congress to bar dams on major North Coast rivers . . .

4. If Mr. Waldie's faulty reasoning that water projects are anti-environmental had been the vogue a few years ago, there would have been no Hetch Hetchy Project, so vital to San Francisco; no Central Valley Project which gave California the richest agricultural economy in the nation . . .

Sixteen million Californians, who will need the Peripheral Canal for adequate supplies of high quality water, will certainly reject Mr. Waldie's arguments if they are given the facts.

No Answer To India's Great Problem; Population

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When Indian Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi's new Congress party took a cow nursing a calf as a party symbol, her opposition in the old Congress party cried foul. It was too close to the yoked bullocks by which the party had been identified for years before its split in late 1969.

When, last Dec. 27, she unexpectedly called for national elections in March, her opposition cried foul again.

THERE IS NO middle ground when it comes to the 53-year-old daughter of independent India's first prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru.

To her followers, she is the only one who understands the problems of India.

Both agree that she is the most sensitive of India's politicians to the moods of Indian voters.

And it was not with any thought of losing that she suddenly reversed herself and called for midterm elections instead of waiting for the scheduled date in 1972.

UNDER NEHRU and throughout its years in power, the Congress party has stood on a platform of socialism. But the party needed the contributions of the rich industrialists and landowners and with Nehru's passing, its goals became more blurred and many of its officials more corrupt.

In 1969 Mrs. Gandhi broke with the old party or "syndicate" as its leaders are known. But for a majority in the 523-seat parliament she had to depend on the Moscow-oriented Communists and regional parties.

She told audiences along her campaign trail that she is not communist but that "I want to bring in socialism."

She won the support of small businessmen and farmers with her nationalization of 14 major banks and she is exploiting a promise to abolish the privy purses and privileges of the Indian princes, a highly emotional issue.

But she also is meeting formidable opposition from the princes, Hindu traditionalists, and landowners who wield great influence among India's 275 million voters, many of whom vote as they are told rather than on social issues.

NEITHER NEHRU nor his daughter, nor those who oppose her now, have come up with the answer to the vast problems which are India's. They can be summed up in a phrase, overpopulation.

One person in every eight in the world is an Indian.

India's population increases at the rate of around 13 million a year.

In 10 years, Indian unemployment has quadrupled, from 3.5 million to 16 million.

Before one five-year plan ends, targets for the next already have been overcome by the population increase.

In the countryside, the landless battle the landlords.

In the city, the unemployed battle the industrialists. Among the unemployed are many thousands with skills, including engineers and lawyers.

Time For Congress To Act On High Cost Of Campaigns

(Reprinted from Louisville Courier-Journal)

THE INCREASINGLY critical problem of political campaign financing will get a lot of attention in Congress this year, and it is even possible that some sort of reform will result from the series of bills introduced on the subject.

Indeed, the last Congress did pass a measure that would have limited campaign spending on radio and television. But President Nixon vetoed the bill on the ground that it discriminated against the broadcast media.

In the new Congress, bills already have been submitted taking different approaches to what is a very complex problem. Some proposals would set dollar limitations on candidate spending in all forms of communication; others would tighten the present sieve-like law on reporting and disclosure of campaign contributions, without setting spending limits. Still another approach is to provide government subsidy for a portion of campaign costs, while giving tax credits as incentives for small political contributions. . . .

Any controls on campaign spending should be applied in such a way as to minimize the disparities between wealthy or well-financed candidates and those without personal wealth or strong financial backing. The lack of such controls, and the rising costs of running for political office, have magnified these disparities with the result that many well-qualified potential candidates are either unable to make the race or run with heavy dependence on a few outside contributors who want something in return.

It is unlikely that all the facets and ramifications of political campaign financing will be dealt with by Congress this year. Part of the problem, after all, cannot be handled in Washington since the states must come to grips with the financing of state and local elections as well . . .

Congress can set the pattern and this is the year to do it, when there are no federal elections. Congress should impose some restraints on campaign spending and see that they are enforced. It should enact a comprehensive, clear disclosure law.

Booby Trap Case Instructions Bring The Judge Some Mail

The case of a Marin man who rigged a booby trap to protect his garage made the wire services and brought a few letters to Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court.

The man, Don Luis Ceballos, 32, of San Rafael, was found guilty last month in Judge Gardiner's court of assault with a deadly weapon.

He is still awaiting sentencing.

Ceballos had attached a target pistol to a post in the garage of his former home in San Anselmo and connected the pistol with a wire to the door of the garage.

Two youthful burglars opened the garage door last May 15, and the pistol fired. A bullet lodged in the throat of one of the boys, who were both cited to juvenile authorities on suspicion of burglary.

DURING THE TRIAL of Ceballos, Judge Gardiner instructed the jury that Ceballos was not privileged to do by means of a device that which he could not do in person.

It was that instruction, apparently, that drew the disfavor of a couple of letter writers.

A woman wrote from Omaha, Neb., that she was "afraid the time is coming fast when costly judges and juries will break our judicial system. Then it will be every man for himself (look out hoodlums) and may the honest man rightfully protect his possessions without being prosecuted."

A man from Sunnyvale attached a return address label with an American flag on it when he wrote Judge Gardiner: "It appears as though we who obey the laws of the land are at the mercy of the criminal as well as the prosecutors who are supposed to protect us against thieves, murderers, rapists and arsonists.

"It was always my thought and belief," the letter continued, "that a man's home was his castle and inviolate. And yet in a decision which you obviously instructed the jury to hand down, we find that we cannot do harm to anyone who is guilty of forcible entry of our premises."

Presumably the letter writers also made their feelings known to the Iowa Supreme Court which, the day before the Marin jury's verdict, upheld a $30,000 damage award against a farm couple who had set a trap gun in a vacant house which wounded a prowler.

AMONG STORIES that didn't pan out at the Hall of Justice last week was the one about the deputy district attorney laboriously looking through his collection of evidence in a marijuana case for three insects. Rumor had it that he didn't know a "roach" was the tailend of a marijuana cigarette.

Not true, the deputy said later when asked about the validity of the story.

Then there was the report of the sheriff's deputies who tried to talk over an annoying buzzing sound in the sheriff's office. Only when the noise got to be too irritating did they begin to wonder what it was and dash for a municipal courtroom where, it turned out, a security alarm had accidentally been triggered.

Not true, the sheriff's office said later when asked about the validity of the story.

Greatest Fight Of All Time: World War III On Closed-Circuit

WASHINGTON — Mr. Harold Hopsack, the Hollywood agent, and Frederick Roarington, the well-known sports promoter, have just announced that they have tied up the closed circuit television rights to World War III.

Mr. Hopsack told reporters at a press conference, "This has got to be the greatest fight of all time, and we think that there are millions and millions of people all over the world who would be willing to pay 15, 20 or even 30 bucks to see this historical event."

Mr. Roarington said, "We are paying each of the participants $250 billion. In order to meet our expenses and make a reasonable profit, we have had to demand complete exclusivity for the rights to World War III. This means that no one will be able to see or hear it on their regular TV channels, even on a delayed basis. There also will not be any radio broadcasting of the fight except where it has been authorized by Musical Variety Enterprises, the company which will license and sell the engagement."

"DOES THIS MEAN that our GIs will not be able to see or hear World War III?" a reporter asked.

"We are working on arrangements now for the armed forces network to pick it up, but we cannot permit broadcasting in areas where the rights have already been sold to commercial promoters. Our first responsibility is to our clients."

"What do you think a fight like this could gross? a reporter said.

"We estimate that with the excitement that World War III has engendered, we could make $3 trillion, not counting the printed programs and the commercials we hope to sell between the battles.

"We have already committed the largest halls and arenas, plus race tracks and hotel ballrooms in every major city in the world, to carry the event. We also plan to make a film of it which we will distribute in theaters one year after the war is over. Our contract with the participants gives us carte blanche to sell any and all of the rights in any manner we choose."

"WILL THE WINNER get a percentage besides the $250 billion?"

"No, this is a flat fee arrangement. Neither side expected to get anything like that sum for World War III, and if they can come out of something like that with $250 billion guaranteed, no one has cause to complain," Mr. Roarington said.

"Musical Variety Enterprises," Mr. Hopsack said, "will pay all the expenses for the closed circuit TV installations, so the only expense to the participants is out-of-pocket expenses during the fight."

"Will there be press seats?" someone asked.

"Of course the press has been provided for," Mr. Roarington said. "We're counting on you guys to promote this event like no event has been promoted before. And believe me, you will have plenty to write about. World War III comes along only once in a lifetime."

A REPORTER SAID, "It's true that this is probably the greatest box office event of all time, but isn't there a possibility that some of the theaters will be destroyed during World War III?"

"We've thought about that," Mr. Hopsack said, "and we will refund the money to anyone caught in a theater which has a direct hit."

"Are you making any plans for a rematch?" someone asked.

"Of course there will be a rematch. We have too much invested in this to have just one war."

Maddox Burns Atlanta Paper

ATLANTA (UPI)—Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, angered by criticism of his Senate leadership in the Atlanta Constitution, called the newspaper a "fish-wrapper" Wednesday and burned copies of it on the Senate floor.

"Some of you are going along with them," he lectured the Senators. "Some of you are believing their lies and letting them divide you."

The Constitution, in a front page story, said the Senate was a "shambles" under the leadership of Maddox, who presides over the body as lieutenant governor. The story said some Senators were upset over the time Maddox spent posing for photographs with visitors while legislation piled up.

SEC Moving To Prohibit Cashing In On Secrecy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Securities and Exchange Commission announced yesterday it will adopt regulations to prohibit mutual funds and other big institutional investors from cashing in on secret information concerning possible corporate mergers and takeovers.

In an eight-volume 3,400-page report on institutional investors, the SEC also said it planned to impose rules to prohibit institutions from receiving special price inducements to buy or sell stock in connection with takeover bids.

The report indicated that some funds had profited unjustly at the expense of other investors.

The report, ordered by Congress in 1967, was sent to the Senate and House following three years of study.

Institutional investors—mutual funds, pension funds, bank trust departments, insurance companies and others—controlled about 26 per cent of all outstanding stocks in 1968, the report said.

However, the institutions controlled 39.4 per cent of all stock traded on the New York Stock Exchange, indicating a substantial interest in the nation's biggest corporations. In 1900, institutions controlled less than 7 per cent of all stocks.

The commission said additional regulation was needed to control activities of institutions in connection with efforts of one company to take control of another through open market stock purchases and tender offers. Such takeover efforts are often opposed by a target company.

"Some institutions have received both preferential economic benefits and preferential informational benefits in connection with transfer efforts," the SEC said.

The commission said it would adopt rules "to prevent powerful institutions from being treated more favorably than individual investors" with respect to the price of stock traded as a result of takeover attempts.

The matter involving secret information is more complex, the commission said. A company planning a takeover often tips off an institution, enabling the institution to buy stock in the target company in anticipation of an increase in the stock's price once the takeover bid is disclosed to the public.

It is illegal under present law for corporate insiders to make stock market profits on the basis of secret information. However, the SEC noted that information involved in takeovers usually came from a company attempting the takeover and was not, strictly speaking, insider information of the target firm. Often the target company does not even realize the takeover is planned.

Old Square Park Idea Draws Veto

The Downtown San Rafael Merchants Committee strongly opposed yesterday a suggestion that the old Courthouse Square be turned into a park, according to Chairman Walter E. Zurcher.

Zurcher said that San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini met with the committee, an arm of the Chamber of Commerce, and made the suggestion of a park on the square with the newer building there to be used as a recreation center.

The merchants strongly support an "imaginative" development like Ghirardelli Square or the Strawberry Shopping Center, Zurcher said.

He added that the "real answer" to the problem of the abandoned courthouse "lies with the Board of Supervisors." He suggested that they will "have to lower the price" or "trade the courthouse for something."

Zurcher said that his committee intends to keep pushing for action on the courthouse.

(An option to buy the square for $767,000 was dropped in November by three San Rafael businessmen, Wishard A. Brown, Ernest N. Kettenhofen and Robert A. Roumiguierre. There has been no action since then.)

In another discussion yesterday, the committee was told by Mayor Bettini that Fourth Street and Fifth Avenue may be made into one-way streets by April or May.

He told the merchants that the city council will hold a hearing soon on a modified proposal to make the streets one-way. An earlier plan was dropped last year by the council because of high cost.

The committee today also made plans for a seminar on how to prevent forgery, thefts and bad checks which will be conducted by the San Rafael Police Department at 5:45 p.m. March 30 in the city hall.

Old Photos Of Sausalito Fire Station Wanted

The Sausalito Fire Department is seeking old photographs of the city's early fire stations, firemen and equipment for an historical display for May 6 ceremonies dedicating Sausalito's newly-remodeled fire station.

Capt. Ralph K. Pedersen said the department would like to find as many pictures as possible dating from Sausalito's early days through the 1930s.

In addition, the captain is seeking names of the city's early volunteer department, since the department does not have a complete list.

Persons wishing to contribute photos or information on volunteers are asked to contact Chief Charle E. Masten at the city's main fire station, 20 Caledonia Street.

Pedersen promised the pictures will be handled with care and returned to their owners.

'Cop's Cop' To Run For Mayor

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Frank L. Rizzo, former police commissioner, won the Democratic City Committee endorsement Saturday to run for mayor in the May 18 primary.

Rizzo, nationally known as a "cop's cop", resigned as chief Feb. 2 to run for mayor of the nation's fourth largest city, saying "I've put too much of my life into this city to let it go to pot."

Thacher Longstreth, selected Thursday by the Republican policy committee, chose as his campaign theme: "Let's get together and make Philadelphia better."

Rizzo, a self-educated man, dropped out of high school. Longstreth was graduated from Princeton.

Not Leaving Much Room For Error

Shaun Wiltshire of San Rafael's Wiltshire Towers, whose double-decker London bus is familiar around the Bay Area mostly for transporting football fans to Oakland Raider games, is wearing a funny expression these days after receiving instructions for his bus's participation in next Sunday's San Francisco St. Patrick's Parade.

Shaun's red transit, which will be loaded with his best customers, who in turn will probably be loaded with his best booze, has been assigned No. 60 in the parade.

"And," he grinned, scratching his head, "with typical Irish logic the parade director has advised me that No. 60 follows No. 59 and is just ahead of No. 61. Now, how do you like THAT for explicit instructions? I guess they think I can't count."

Incidentally, I had a nightmare last night: I dreamed I went to a St. Patrick's Day Parade in my Erin Go Bragh.

I THINK Carl J. "Red" Brown, assistant football coach at Drake High School, must be the most school-spirited professor in Marvelous Marin. His new license plates read: "DRAKE 1."

COLLEGE OF MARIN'S basketball team finished the season with a 25-5 won-lost record, a performance that earned the Tars 11th ranking in the final regular season ratings announced by the Junior College Athletic Bureau of California. Long Beach City College was top-rated with a 24-4 mark.

JOE DECKER, the former Petaluma High School ace now pitching for the Chicago Cubs and lovable Leo Durocher, was losing pitcher last Friday when the S. F. Giants downed the Cubbies.

Decker, by the way, now lists his home as San Rafael because that is where his mother lives.

RADIO KTIM, which is carrying all live broadcasts of Oakland Athletics' games this season on its FM outlet, will carry weekend and holiday games on both AM and FM, according to Golden Throated Hugh Turner.

COLLEGE OF MARIN Alumni Association's golf tournament and dinner is all set for April 30 at the Meadow Club near Fairfax, according to Association President Tom Elliot of Tiburon.

Fee is $20 per head for golf and banquet or just $10 for the chow. Old grads interested in participating can make reservations through Elliot or Joe Gereghty of Kentfield. There'll be flights for experienced golfers and another flight for you old duffers.

Dr. Harry Hensler of San Anselmo, team doctor at Marin from 1933-42 and 1946-56, will be honorary chairman.

At Least McLain Is Ahead Of '70 Pace

By United Press International

The most that can be said for Denny McLain's comeback this spring is that the Washington Senators' $100,000 pitcher is about 3 1-2 months ahead of his 1970 pace.

That's not saying much, however, inasmuch as McLain was suspended for the first half of the 1970 season and didn't pitch competitively for the Detroit Tigers until July.

McLain, acquired in a controversial eight-player deal during the winter, made his second appearance of the spring Wednesday and was tagged for four runs in the fifth inning of the Baltimore Orioles' 14-2 romp over the Senators. McLain now has pitched a total of nine exhibition innings this spring, yielding 12 hits and five runs.

A two-run double by Bobby Grich and a two-run single by Brooks Robinson were the big blows of the Orioles' rally against McLain. Rookie Don Baylor hit a two-run triple in a four-run eighth and Jim Hutto ripped a grand slam homer in a five-run ninth as the Orioles turned the game into a rout.

On other fronts: Bob Robertson drove in five runs with back-to-back homers in the fourth and fifth innings to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, who have lost five straight games ... Home runs by Matty Alou and Joe Hague enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to beat the Detroit Tigers, 7-5. Al Kaline and Willie Horton homered for the Tigers off Steve Carlton.

Denis Menke's two-run seventh-inning double off Dean Chance gave the Houston Astros a 4-3 decision over the New York Mets.

Harmon Killebrew hit his third homer in five games and went 3-for-3 to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 5-2 triumph over the New York Yankees. Jake Gibbs and Tony Solaita homered for the Yankees ... Rookie Jim Breazeale singled in the winning run in the seventh inning in the Atlanta Braves' 6-4 win over the Montreal Expos. Steve Barber and Cecil Upshaw pitched hitless ball over the final six innings for the Braves.

Wes Parker's grand slam homer in a 10-run seventh inning paced the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 13-2 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds, who suffered their fifth straight loss of the spring.

Tommy Harper's double and rookie Bob Coluccio's two-run homer were the big blows for the Milwaukee Brewers, who shut out the San Diego Padres, 4-0. Marty Pattin, who went four innings, Wayne Twitchell and Jim Slaton held the Padres to six hits ... Harper, who held out after having his best season in the majors last season, was making his first appearance of the spring.

Bruins Too Much For Seals

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Boston Bruins tried desperately to make the Oakland Coliseum-Arena a sort of shrine dedicated to the memory of Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr but they failed ... barely.

Esposito scored his 58th goal of the season to tie Bobby Hull's alltime National Hockey League record and Orr broke his own NHL mark for goals by defensemen by scoring his 33rd and 34th against the California Seals in an 8-1 rout Wednesday night.

Yet, the Bruins wanted Esposito to get No. 59 before 10,411 fans who sounded about evenly divided in their team sympathies.

Esposito, though tired, was left on the ice for long spells in the final period. During the last three minutes, his teammates continually fed him. Esposito hit the post once and another time, with goalie Chris Worthy on his knees, he shot the puck into Worthy's pads.

The 29-year-old Bruins center moved his point total to 125, one shy of his NHL record set in 1968-69. In addition to his two goals, Orr picked up an assist to give him 119 points.

That left Orr two assists short of his own and the league's record of 87 assists. The flashy Boston defenseman tallied his 33rd goal in the opening period to tie his NHL mark for goals by defensemen and then established a new mark 56 seconds after the start of the final period by hitting the inside of the net on a feed from Ed Westfall.

Dennis Hextall scored California's lone goal on a breakaway at 2:45 of the second period to tie the score 1-1. But the flood gates opened and Boston bombarbed goalies Gary Smith and Worthy for seven straight lamplighters.

Boston won five of the six games against the Seals this season, losing 2-1 to California at the Boston Garden in a stunner Nov. 15. In the six games, the Bruins rolled up 33 goals to eight for the Seals.

California's next game is Sunday afternoon at the Coliseum-Arena against the Detroit Red Wings.

San Rafael Wins; Two Teams Lose

Three San Rafael High School pitchers combined to one-hit Poly High of San Francisco and bring the Bulldogs a 3-1 preseason baseball victory at Big Rec in San Francisco yesterday, but two other Marin County Athletic League teams lost.

The Redwood Giants bowed to El Cerrito, 6-1 in El Cerrito, and the Novato Hornets dropped an 8-5 decision to Napa, in Napa.

Dirk Gansloser singled home Dave Urquhart with a run in the third inning that put San Rafael ahead to stay, but the Bulldogs added a pair of insurance tallies in the last inning, when Urquhart and Steve Klarkowski unloaded triples.

John Klingler, Ray Griffen and Steve Rohrs limited the Parrots to a single run in the bottom of the seventh, and Klingler, who went the first three innings, got credit for the win.

Shortstop Scott Berry slammed a double and a pair of singles that added up to just about the entire Redwood attack as the Larkspur team suffered its second setback in two days. The Giants led briefly after scoring their only run in the third, but El Cerrito came back with two in the bottom of the inning to go ahead for good.

Novato's Waterloo came in the fourth inning, when Napa parlayed three hits, five walks, three errors and two hit batsmen into eight runs. The Hornets scored three in the fourth and two in the fifth, but were shut out the rest of the way.

Bill Busher paced Novato with three hits, including a double and a triple, and John Kidder added a double.

No-Hit Pitchers Zapped By Giants

PHOENIX (UPI) —Two no-hit pitchers have been zapped by the San Francisco Giants.

The Giants collected 10 hits Wednesday in beating the California Angels 14-1 behind the seven-hit pitching of Rich Robertson and nonroster rookie Steve Stone.

Treated unruly by the Giant batters were Clyde Wright who tossed a no-hitter against Oakland last summer and Ray Washburn who set down the Giants without a hit in September 1968 when he was with St. Louis.

The Giants collected eight unearned runs off Wright. Washburn, cut loose by Cincinnati and trying to make the Angels as a nonroster player, worked one and two-thirds innings and gave up three runs.

Today the Giants tackled the Milwaukee Brewers of the American League. It was the first meeting of the exhibition season between the clubs.

One of the Giants' hits against the Angels was a double by Willie McCovey. It was the first hit of the spring after 12 times at bat for the slugging first baseman.

Robertson, Garry Maddox and George Foster slammed triples for the Giants while Bob Heise hit an inside-the-park home run.

Robertson allowed three hits over the first five innings. Stone lost the potential shutout in the ninth when Billy Cowan led off with a home run.

Ashe Wins, Remains In Australian Field

SYDNEY (UPI) — Arthur Ashe of Gum Spring, Va., breathed some life back into the Dunlop Australian Open at White City Thursday when he beat South African Cliff Drysdale 7-6, 7-6, 2-6, 6-2 to move into the semi-finals.

Ashe halted the dramatic fall of seeded and drawcard players when he beat Drysdale in a two hours match.

The sponsoring company, who will have an expensive bill of around $145,600 have made no secret of the fact that they now want a Ken Rosewall-Arthur Ashe final to boost attendances.

The $56,000 tournament lost a lot of its appeal for local tennis followers when Rod Laver, John Newcombe and today Tony Roche were bundled out in the round before the quarterfinals.

Drysdale recovered early today to beat Roche and qualify for the night match against Ashe.

A Rosewall-Ashe final could easily materialize as Rosewall appeared to be in good enough form to beat Dutchman Tom Okker in Friday's semifinal.

Ashe now will play the winner of Englishman Mark Cox and American Bob Lutz in his semifinal.

The Ashe-Drysdale match tonight certainly did not inspire the crowd of 2,500 but it kept interest in the tournament.

It was a hit and miss affair on the dew covered White City center court which did not allow for speed around the court and long volleys.

Although Drysdale pushed Ashe to tie breaker sets early, the American always looked a likely winner.

In the women's singles quarterfinal Grand Slam winner Margaret Court had little difficulty in beating another Australian Helen Gourlay 6-0, 6-4 to enter the semifinals.

Mrs. Court will now play Lesley Hunt of Australia in one semifinal while Evonne Goolagong of Australia will meet Scottish lass Winnie Shaw in the other semifinal. Earlier today Miss Shaw beat local player Norma Marsh 6-0,

(Editors note: Apparently San Rafael's Sharon Walsh lost her match, although results were not available. Last UPI report said she had won in the second round, but quarterfinal results from Australia were incomplete.)

Finley's A;s Experiment Backfires

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) —Charles O. Finley's three-ball walk experiment boomeranged against the Oakland Athletics.

Exhibiting better control, six pitchers for the Lotte Orions of Tokyo combined to beat the A's 11-6 Wednesday for their first Cactus League victory. The Japanese hurlers walked only three men while five A's pitchers walked 16.

Today the A's entertained the California Angels for the first time this spring at Rendezvous Park.

Dwain Anderson, Frank Fernandez and Angel Mangual each smashed homers with the bases empty for Oakland. It was the second roundtripper in two days for Anderson who is trying to land a spot on the varsity as an infielder.

All 11 Orion hits were singles, including three by Arturo Lopez, a Puerto Rican who played briefly with the New York Yankees. He drove in two runs for the Orions.

Errors and walks contributed to the A's downfall. The A's miscued four times, including two by shortstop Jimmy Driscoll, while the Orions made only one insignificant error.

Righthander Chris Floethe, a 20-year-old rookie, was the losing pitcher. He walked seven and gave up four hits in two and one-third innings. Motohito Sato was the winning pitcher.

SAYS SQUAW VALLEY MAN:

'Our Ski Lifts Are Safe'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Alex Cushing, president of Squaw Valley, has defended the safety of his ski lifts and termed recent criticism by former mountain manager Hans Burkhart as "completely false."

He announced that Richard Reuter had been named chief of maintenance at Squaw Valley.

Burkhart resigned the post Feb. 28 with a blast at the condition of the ski lifts and an assertion that Cushing had received only $60,000 of a promised $500,000 for improvements.

Cushing asserted Wednesday that "certain financial irregularities were found in Burkhart's books and we have just filed a civil suit against him."

Burkhart, kept outside the news conference by security guards, said he planned to "shortly file a counter suit against Cushing for slander and $7,700 in back wages."

Reuter was maintenance chief before Burkhart, but was hospitalized after a lift accident threw him to the ground last December.

Several other persons were injured Feb. 5 when the Emigrant Ski Lift threw several persons to the ground.

Cushing said the latter accident had been shown to have been caused by "the structural failure of four bolts ... a state inspector had inspected this lift just three weeks before the accident and found nothing wrong."

Cushing said that with the return of Reuter, the area would again use volunteer national ski patrolmen during the weekends to augment the professional patrol of about 20 men.

He said the Emigrant Ski Lift has been repaired and modified and is now permitted to operate and he announced that Frank Alberti, Seattle, the ski lift inspector for the National Ski Area Association, had been asked to make a special inspection and report on safety conditions at Squaw Valley, site of the 1960 winter olympics.

Nate Talks 'Ulcers' In Warriors' Drive

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "It's enough to give a guy ulcers," says tall center Nate Thurmond.

"We're still 2 1-2 on top, so let them catch us," says Thurmond's coach Al Attles.

They both were talking about the suddenly tight race which has developed among San Francisco, Seattle and San Diego for the remaining playoff spot in the Pacific Division of the National Basketball Association.

The Warriors once had a comfortable cushion in the runnerup spot behind division champ Los Angeles but it dwindled considerably as the Warriors lost 13 of their last 18 games. All Warrior eyes will be on the Boston at San Diego and Detroit at Seattle games tonight.

Wins by either San Diego or Seattle, or both, would cut the margin between them and San Francisco to two games.

The Warriors have only six games remaining, including two with Seattle. The Sonics come to the Cow Palace Friday night for the Warriors next game.

The Warriors have announced they are accepting ticket applications for the playoffs. They must be purchased in blocks of three.

It appears the playoff games at home for the Warriors will be at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena because the Cow Palace has been booked at that time.

THE SKI SCENE

It's Ski Patrol To The Rescue

By CHARLIE COANE
(Final column of the season.)

It all began in the 1930s as a brainstorm of Charles "Minny" Dole and a few friends.

Now there are some 22,000 members of the National Ski Patrol spread among the country's approximately 750 ski areas.

"The organization is strictly a volunteer operation," said Tom Osborne, Far West Divisional Ski Proficiency Advisor who supervises testing and training of patrolmen. The patrolman is easy to spot on the slopes with his rust-colored parka with a cross emblazoned on it. His primary function is that of a first aider. He must be able to treat injuries, such as a broken leg, quickly and efficiently and be capable of transporting an injured skier to qualified medical help.

The right to wear the rust-colored parka is not had for the asking.

"On the contrary," said Osborne, "a prospective patrolman must first have an advanced first aid card from the American Red Cross. Next he, or she, should contact a particular ski area patrol or one of the eight metropolitan patrols in the Bay Area. A metropolitan patrol member is able to patrol at any area."

The next step is to take the introductory ski patrol or one of the eight metropolitan patrols in the Bay Area. A metropolitan patrol member is able to patrol at any area."

The next step is to take the introductory ski patrol course: rules, history, winter first aid, avalanche dangers.

Then comes final testing of first aid techniques (written and practical), skiing ability in all types of conditions and handling of equipment. Finally an endurance test on skis is given. After you pass all these things, you are then a qualified basic ski patrolman. A refresher course is mandatory each year.

As a metropolitan patrolman, your next move is to go to an area about 8 o'clock some morning and volunteer to serve that day. Unless that area is already overloaded with patrolmen, you'll be assigned to patrol a certain lift or section of the ski area. In the afternoon, you'll probably get another spot. After a while, a patrolman will usually stick to one or two favorite areas where he's assured a spot. True, he skis for free, but you can bet he earns his rides. Being the first one up the mountain in the morning and the last one off in the afternoon is not uncommon.

In his first aid pack the patrolman carries everything from avalanche cord to a snake-bite kit — that's right, a snake-bite kit. Bandages, dressings, splits, knife etc. are standard equipment.

A basic patrolman can become a senior patrolman, and the top of the line is the honorary title of national patrolma. This is achieved upon special recommendation of a region. The National Ski Patrol should not be confused with registered area professional patrolman — a paid, full-time job.

Funds for the NSP volunteer service come from certain fund raising activities and donations.

Let's hope you'll never need the services of the National Ski Patrol, but if you do, you can be sure they're trained to know what to do.

Marin Catholic Wins In Non-League Tennis

Playing without their two top singles players, Bill Kinser and Kevin Waltz, the Marin Catholic High School tennis team yesterday nipped Cardinal Newman High at Santa Rosa in a non-league tennis match, 3-2.

Kinser and Waltz were busy in another school activity, but their teammates came through for the victory in their first match of the season. Winners for Marin were John Beritzhoff and Tom Jasek in singles and the doubles team of George DeUrioste and Tony Trembley.

B. D. Ball finished a well-beaten third in the field of eight three-year-olds and Nephew Tom was fourth.

Verne H. Winchell Jr.'s Mountain Shadow and Star Pool entered the stretch on even terms. But jockey Duke Wellington inched Mountain Shadow past Star Pool just before the tape.

Mountain Shadow paid $10 to win while covering the mile and a sixteenth in 1.44 2-5.

MARIN-SONOMA GOLF

Doctor Fires Ace At Meadow

A hole-in-one by Dr. Arnold Weiser of Kentfield at Meadow Club highlighted play this past week at Marin and Sonoma County golf courses.

Dr. Weiser fired his first ace in 40 years of golfing on the 152-yard, eighth hole of the Fairfax course, using a No. 4 iron. Witnesses included George Steinert, Dave Davis and Ray Dell'Osso.

Frazier Joins Ranks Of Myth Destroyers

NEW YORK — The heavyweight champion of the world, his face like a broken bottle, sat with an ice pack on a swollen eye, licked his clotted blood off his lips, and contemplated what he had done.

He was now at one with Gene Tunney, Sandy Saddler, Jess Willard — the other myth-destroyers of our time.

THE PUBLIC seldom forgives them. They are the athletic equivalent of John Wilkes Booth, Benedict Arnold, Aaron Burr and The Duke of Wellington.

People thought they hated Dempsey till they saw him, blinded, battered, groping his way to center ring against a confident Tunney, pausing to listen for the sound of breathing because that was the only way he would know which direction Tunney went. That, and the thud of fists on his eye, and the sudden sharp pain in his kidneys.

People think that, in boxing, happiness is a thing called "Joe," who dreamt of the day when the Champ would be just a guy called Joe, may have third thoughts. It must be remembered some people rejoiced at the first Louis-Schmeling fight. But vengeance is a mean-spirited emotion at best. It sours in the stomach like wine turned to vinegar. Vengeance based on bigotry is the stale, bile liquor from the vineyards of ignorance, the bitter brew of old, defeated men. The young, the noble, the wise, and even the foolish reject it as a call to things that never really were, only appeared to be.

THIS IS NOT to say Joe Frazier should be banished to Shark Island or have his passport picked up. He is a simple, stoic man, who suffers for his money and his meals, much like his slave ancestors, he has no capacity for messianic ego trips, his charisma is an honest day's work for an honest day's wages. "I don't read," he says. " I CAN read. I just don't. My wife and my daughters, they read. They tell me."

Joe rides motorcycles, eats pork, considers himself just another Protestant American. He sees no visions, dances to no celestial lyres, but rather to the guitar rock of his own group of peers. He does not see himself on a white charger and plumed helmet. He is no Cyrano. He talks in prose. Boxing is just another better-paying slaughterhouse job. He could lose with a shrug. Or, win with one. "I fight for money," he says simply. For pride? Maybe. But for no other abstraction like God, country, Yale, or the ages. He beats people as impersonally as a guy beating carpets. His imagination is not overheated. He is fearless. You figure he would climb the Empire State Building and swat airplanes if the price were right. The only uncharacteristic thing he did in Madison Square Garden the other night was drop his arms and taunt Ali to hit him. It was a throwback to the "My-old-man-can-lick-your-old-man" days of the ghetto.

ALI IS AN ENCHANTED boy by comparison. In a sense, he never grew up. He believes in his fantasies. He is Peter Pan and Capt. Hook all rolled into one. He is at once irritating and disarming. He is as mystical as a gypsy caravan. You have the feeling he will turn into a butterfly — or a swan — any minute. In action, he was beautiful, a virtuoso. A fight was a concert, a choreography, a rhapsody. He lifted it out of the brutal, the banal, out of the primordial ooze, and gave it grace and form. Not for him the witless aggression, the crass eye-trading, the trench slogging of armies in the night.

Where did this gifted half-fawn, half-man go? Who was this imposter Monday night, making his fight like a guy standing in wet concrete? What happened to the poetry, the dance? Who stopped the music?

"Society!" cry the liberals. "A just wrath!" cry the conservatives.

"JOE FRAZIER," says a small, still voice. There's always a Joe Frazier. His name is Willard Tunney, Marciano or Sadler. "There's always someone better than you are," warns the oldest dictum of the prize ring. You are never a fully rounded pug 'til you find this out. Greb was better than Tunney for one night. Langford was better than Jack Johnson, if you believe those who knew them both. One who did was Jack Johnson. Schmeling was better than Louis in June of 1936.

But men will gather in saloons a hundred years from today and they will talk of the brute force of Marciano, the tigerish savagery of Dempsey, the blur that was Joe Louis' punches, the laughing skill of Johnson. And they will talk of the abstraction that was Clay or Ali, as a shining moment in Fistiana, a man who GLOWED.

Joe Frazier? Joe Frazier makes his fight like the German air force. He sends punches out in squadrons taking to the air in saturation bombing. Losses may be heavy, but the few that get through will sap the enemy. For Joe, the eyes, ears, nose and blood are expendable. "Let me go straighten my face," he said matter-of-factly after the fight the other night, holding the broken shards of flesh into place. "I'm not always this ugly."

HE MAY HAVE punched his way into ostracism. He may have knocked Ali into the arms of America at last. He may have stilled more than the boasting; he may have stilled an art form.

"I thought he would come to me and apologize," complained Joe after the fight. In the minds of many, it is Joe Frazier who should do the apologizing.

GIANT PROSPECTS

Pitching, Infield Keys To Success

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—A rebuilt pitching staff and a new double play combination are the keys to success for the San Francisco Giants in 1971.

"Every thing we do this year will depend on our pitching and defense up the middle," says Charlie Fox as he starts his first full year as Giant skipper.

And with pitching and defense foremost on his mind, the emphasis has been with the youngsters in the San Francisco camp this spring.

"If we want to move up," says Fox, "the kids are going to have to show the way. While that may sound like a big order, it really isn't because some of these kids I'm talking about are capable of doing it."

Then Fox ticks off names such as Steve Stone, Frank Reberger, Rich Robertson, Ron Bryant, Skip Pitlock, Chris Speier, Chris Arnold, Bernie Williams and George Foster. All except Speier, Arnold and Stone are known to Giant fans but it's the three newcomers Fox is looking to for the greatest help.

A return to form by Marichal is the first order of business and if spring training is an indicator, the Giants have nothing to worry about because Juan, who suffered from poor health last year, is throwing hard again, and effectively.

Perry, a 23-game winner last year, can be expected to do as well again. At least the Giants expect him to.

From there Fox has question marks.

Pitlock, the only lefthander in the group, split 10 decisions last year after being called up from Phoenix. If he makes normal progress then the Giants will have their first plus.

They are looking for two more pluses from Reberger and Stone. Reberger was 7-8 with a 5.57 earned run average in 1970, a year he was shifted from the bullpen to a starting job and back again. Fox wants him to be a starter this year.

Stone is a stocky righthander trying to make it from double AA and everyone in the Giant organization thinks he can make the jump.

"All he has done is impress me," says Fox. "This kid strikes out people, and I like that."

Don McMahon, who celebrated his 41st birthday in January, is the No. 1 reliever. Mike Davison, who complements McMahon because he's a lefty, and Jerry Johnson, are the other relievers certain of jobs. Bryant, a lefthander, and Robertson, a righthander, look like the long relievers and spot starters.

Fox thinks pitching could become his club's strong suit before the season is out.

"All these fellows can pitch," he says. "Now, all they have to do is show me, and I think they will."

Hal Lanier played shortstop and Tito Fuentes handled second base last year. The combo wasn't regarded as one of the best in baseball, so Fox is moving this spring to make some changes, if he can.

Speier and Arnold played together at Amarillo last year and spent the winter in Southern California practicing making double plays. That latter fact has not been lost on Fox and in training camp he is giving them a chance to make the club.

"Speier has great range, quick hands and a strong arm," says Fox. "Now if he can hit he will be a big asset to us."

Speier hit .283 at Amarillo and Arnold batted .273. As of the moment, Speier looks like a cinch to open at short while the jury is out on Arnold.

Fox isn't sure of who will play where because Lanier and Fuentes still are very much in the picture, but it looks like a case of they will play only if the kids fail to make the grade.

Outside of that combination the Giants will go with the same bunch which scored more runs than the Reds last year—Dick Dietz behind the plate, Willie McCovey at first, Alan Gallagher at third, Ken Henderson in left, Willie Mays in center and Bobby Bonds in right.

Frank Johnson, last year's "super sub," will be back as the team's No. 1 handyman, leaving room for Foster and Williams, both young and promising, as the spare outfielders.

"If our pitching turns out as I expect it to and we work out something at second and short," says Fox cautiously, "I think we can be in the race. The Reds are the team to beat, but neither the Dodgers nor the Astros will be pushovers. Our race should be a real good one."

Novato Defeated In Track Opener

The Novato High School Hornets opened their 1971 track and field season yesterday by getting clobbered by both Lincoln and Galileo high schools of San Francisco in a three way meet at Lincoln.

The Hornets partly salvaged the afternoon by winning the Class B meet, but in the varsity competition they scored only 21 points, to 40 for Gailileo and 117 for Lincoln. The Marin County Athletic League Club did not take a first place.

Skip McNeil won both the 440 and the discus to pace Novato's Class B team to a one point victory over Galileo. The Hornets had 76, the Lions 75 and Lincoln 34.

Let's Knock The Nonsense Out Of GLASS-BELTED TIRES!

Every company makes a fiber glass polyester tire. Every company makes more than one. Their best being good - the others not as good.
Many companies have copyrighted names for the tires, such as Poly-glas - Sup-R-Belt - Dura-glas - Dyna-glas - Perm-A-Glas and so on and on. NOW NOTE - regardless of their name or the manufacturers - if they are a 2+2 belted tire and the companies top one, they are all pretty much the same in quality and therefore performance. If they are a step below the firm's best then they will perform that much less.
Fiberglas Tires are not as good as the top Radial tires, in fact they came into existence when the American Mfg. failed on his first attempt at making radials in 67 and 68. Some firms make fabulous claims for their glass belted tires. In buying, keep in mind what I stated above PLUS THIS FACT - of the over 3000 brands you have to choose from in domestic tires - THEY ARE ALL MADE BY ONE OF ONLY ELEVEN MANUFACTURERS. I make this point to show that glas tire for glas tire, they're all pretty much the same - as long as you compare like for like, whether the tire is Goodyear, Firestone, Atlas, Shell Oil, Union Oil, Sears, Wards - regardless of the vast price difference, your problem? Knowing what is like to like. AND THAT FOLKS IS THE TRUTH.

Dixie Teachers Ask For 10% Pay Raises

Dixie Teachers Association last night asked district trustees for pay raises averaging 10 to 11 per cent for the 1971-72 school year. The cost was estimated at $284,860.

The board members, with little comment, referred the request to their Citizens Finance Advisory Group and to district administrators for evaluation, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

The adviscry group will hold an informal meeting Wednesday to discuss the salary proposals and other suggestions made by Campbell, the superintendent said today.

Trustees spent much of last night's meeting listening to reports from the financial advisors. Group chairman Duncan Davidson predicted district expenditures of $4,136,000 for 1971-72, exclusive of any salary changes. Expected revenue surplus will be $221,000, and the reserve carry-over is expected to be $375,000, Davidson told the board.

Dixie spends more than the state average for direct instruction services such as teaching, but teachers' pay is relatively low — particularly for beginning teachers, the board was told. The small property tax base meant that with the highest school district tax rate in Marin, Dixie ranked 15 among the 17 districts in Marin on per-pupil expenditures, the board was told.

Dixie School District Trustees Also:

CALENDAR — Approved the school calendar for 1971-72, with classes to begin Sept. 13 and end June 15, the same as San Rafael schools, but including a total of 178 school days.

PERSONNEL — Hired teacher Linda Mottini at $2,864 for the remainder of the school year, for Miller Creek School; Ralph Milner as district maintenance mechanic at $2,600 for the rest of the year; Daniel DeKay as part-time custodian at Vallecito School for $480 for the rest of the year and Denise Walker as part-time clerk at Dixie School, $519.

EXPERIMENT — Referred back to Campbell, the request of speech therapist Elaine Koel for one day's paid leave each week to research and test new ideas in district classrooms.

CANDIDATES — Welcomed to the meeting all seven candidates for the two trustee seats open at the April 20 election.

REGULATIONS — After considerable discussion of proposed new classroom regulations asked by American Federation of Teachers, Dixie Chapter Local 1077, took no action. The requests for such things as a blackboard in each room were felt to be mainly administrative matters rather than board issues, Campbell reported.

Group Needs Furnishings

The Committee for Prisoner Humanity and Justice needs desks, work tables, typewriters, a filing cabinet and other furnishing and supplies for its new office at 1029 Fourth Street, Room 37, San Rafael, according to attorney Salle Soladay, one of the group's founders.

Money is particularly welcome, according to Mrs. Soladay, who said committee members are paying the office rent from their own pockets.

The organization, founded in November, already has an active membership of more than 100 persons throughout the Bay Area, she said.

Town Meeters To Study Plan

The Larkspur Town Meeting committee, which has set May 1 for the city's second such gathering, will meet March 18 at 8 p.m. at city hall to continue work on a meeting agenda.

According to Joan Sestak, chairman of the committee, the May meeting will concentrate primarily on revamping of the city's general plan and related matters.

Town Meeting members have been involved with studying the general plan, the downtown plan and the park and recreation master plan since the last meeting in November, she said.

Those studies and related action by city government will form the nucleus of the next meeting, she said.

Annexation Interests San Rafael

The City of San Rafael is seriously interested in annexing the residential area of Terra Linda, which is now an island surrounded by city boundaries.

This disclosure came last night from San Rafael City Mgr. James McCown and Planning Director Herbert K. Hotchner at a meeting of the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission.

Both McCown and Hotchner said that this is a change in attitude of San Rafael, which in the past has not taken the initiative in seeking annexation.

"The attitude has gradually changed," said McCown. "If the area is annexed and the services combined, we believe we can provide at least equal services if not better at less cost.

About 10 years ago, Terra Linda residents voted down an annexation to San Rafael, and since then, the city has not officially discussed annexation.

At present, San Rafael has the Northgate Shopping Center and the Northgate Industrial Park on the east side of Highway 101. The residential area from Freitas Parkway north to Las Colindas Avenue is an island of unincorporated area. That island is served by the Terra Linda Recreation-Park District and the Terra Linda Community Services District.

McCown, speaking on behalf of Mayor C. Paul Bettini, asked LAFC to postpone action on proposed merger of the Terra Linda Recreation-Park District and the Terra Linda Community Services District so that San Rafael can study the possibility of annexing the area.

Agency commissioners voted unanimously to put over the merger question for two months, until May 12.

McCown and Hotchner emphasized that San Rafael is in no way interested in forcing annexation but is willing to consider annexing if the residents in Terra Linda want to join the city.

John F. Barrows, executive officer of LAFC said this morning he is "pleased with the development."

"It has been costly for residents to provide services for their area," said Barrows. "I believe that the services which San Rafael can provide would be better than the combination of services now provided by the county and by the Terra Linda districts."

The Marin Local Agency Formation Commission also:

ANNEXATIONS — Approved the annexation of 13 acres at Eucalyptus Avenue and Center Road and of 14 acres at Novato Boulevard and Eucalyptus Avenue to the City of Novato.

PACHECO HILLS — Approved the annexation of 35 acres to the east of Marin Valley Mobile Country Club to the City of Novato. However, the area must be annexed to the Novato Fire District before annexation to the city.

TRUMBULL ANNEX — Approved the annexation of 44 acres at the end of Trumbull Avenue to the Novato Sanitary District on condition the area is first annexed to the City of Novato. This is an expansion of the Marin Highlands Development.

DE-ANNEXATION — Voted 4-to-1 to let Robert A. Abeling of 1625 Indian Valley Road take his half-acre property out of the City of Novato.

Acrimonious Debate By Reed Disputants

Gordon C. Wright, chairman of the Reed School District board and the target of a recall drive, said today the move to oust him is "dirty politics" and charged he and his family have been defamed.

"The recall committee has used defamatory statements to obtain signatures on the recall petition," said Wright, who appeared on KTIM radio's "Marin Sounding Board" program.

His contention was refuted by Richard L. Goff, member of the recall committee, who said all statements on the recall petition are true.

The petition, signed by 1,629 Reed voters, blames Wright for fostering dissent and distrust in the district. The recall election has been set for April 20.

Goff and Kenneth Rosenthal, another recall worker, said Wright's removal is necessary to restore a breakdown in communications between the board and teachers, administrators and parents.

Wright in turn charged the recall committee is "the same group of malcontents which has been harrassing our board since the day we came into office."

Wright said he and trustees Kenneth Wells and James S. Richwagen were elected in 1969 because "the community was dissatisfied with the way the district was being run."

He characterized those favoring recall as persons who had "run the district for a decade" and were disappointed at being turned out of power.

Rosenthal, however, said the recall is not a "power play, not a conspiracy and not the gathering of malcontents and a militant minority," as Wright has charged.

In response to a question called in by a listener, who asked why 80 per cent of the board of the Reed Parent-Teacher Club has signed the recall petition, Wright said the members of the old Save Reed Committee, which opposed the three trustees elected in 1969, now belong to the parent-teacher club," Wright said.

Rosenthal, however, said it was natural for those most interested in the district to favor the recall. "There's nothing wrong with this," he said.

Robert Hayes, a supporter of Wright, charged that those on the recall committee "have yet to advance any constructive idea to improve the district. All they have done is attack the board."

Not so, said Rosenthal. "We've tried many times to offer constructive suggestions, but the board didn't listen."

The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast by tape recording at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

No Air Force Deal For Water Rates

The Air Force, which has been gunning for special consideration since the Marin Municipal Water District raised its rates by 25 per cent last July, was shot down again yesterday.

The water district board deadlocked 2-2, thus killing a request by the Air Force for consolidation of the contracts for Hamilton Air Force Base and the radar station at Mount Tamalpais. (President Robert G. Anderson was on vacation.)

General Mgr. William R. Seeger had recommended granting the consolidation request, but Director Eugene A. Miller feared it would set a precedent. Other customers with more than one hookup — school districts for example — might then ask for equal treatment, he said.

Ray W. Foreaker Jr. joined him in spiking the Air Force request.

Seeger's recommendation to consolidate the billing and charge the Air Force for the equivalent of a 10-inch meter would have cost the district $250 a year because the service would have been equivalent to that through an 11-inch line— a size the district does not have.

"I don't think the $250 will hurt as much as President Nixon," Seeger said, noting that the Air Force has been scrapping for every penny.

The 25 per cent hike to finance the $11.5 million bond issue will cost the Air Force up to $7,500 a year. It bought $28,000 to $30,000 worth of water last year, Seeger said.

During the battle, the rate increase has been submitted to headquarters in Washington, D.C., three times and been returned each time for more information and justification, Seeger said.

B. G. Grant, administrative engineer, said in a memorandum to Seeger that he met March 4 with nine Air Force officials, including one from the Aerospace Defense Command in Colorado, to discuss rates.

He said the Air Force again requested special rates, especially for the radar station which takes water directly from Lake Lagunitas.

The request was turned down as was a move to consolidate service of all federal installations in the county, Grant said.

Seeger said such consolidation is common practice in other areas.

Marin Municipal Water Board also:

NEW TANK — Awarded a $7,290 contract to Sauer Forest Products of Healdsburg for replacement of a 100,000 gallon redwood water tank in Mill Valley.

PUMP HOUSE — Hired Steve Zappetini and Sons of San Rafael to build and erect the Smith Saddle booster pump house for $3,879 almost $300 above the estimated cost.

RELOCATION — Approved calling for bids on relocation of water lines in Ross to accomodate Phase III-B of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project. Estimated cost is $15,139. The water district will pay $367; Marin County the rest.

COMPRESSORS — Agreed to buy two air compressors to destratify water at Nicasio Lake from West Coast Distributors of San Francisco for $3,102, or $300 above the estimate.

FREQUENCY METER — Voted to purchase for $2,715 a meter that would guard against radio broadcasts by the district straying from the assigned frequency.

WATERSHED STUDY — Agreed to a $3,000 contract with two University of California professors who are to make a preliminary study of environmental problems and planning needs of the district's watershed.

PIPELINE EXTENSION — Agreed to build a $4,108 pipeline extension to service four homes at the end of Twain Harte Lane, San Rafael, that now have low water pressure. The property owners are to pay $1,500 for materials; the water district is to pay the rest.

AUDITOR — Put over to March 24 hiring Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company of San Francisco as district auditor to find out the hourly rate the firm charges. Total annual cost is not to exceed $4,500.

WEDDING — Granted permission for Melvin Meyer of San Francisco to be married on the northeast shore of Bon Tempe Lake Sunday.

HIRE — Hired Bernard Stewart at $2.85 per hour to run an office machine part-time. He was the second hired of 11 new employees needed to implement the $11.5 million bond issue passed in November.

Move To Forestall Sewage Ban

The Marin Municipal Water District board, recently initiated into the sewer business, prepared yesterday to meet its first crisis in that field.

Acting as the board of Improvement District A, it hired a consultant to find a plan that will forestall action against Mill Valley by the San Francisco Bay Area Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The water quality board last month set strict new requirements on sewage discharges by the City of Mill Valley and Richardson Bay Sanitary District that could be enforced with ban on all new construction.

Mill Valley asked the improvement district to represent it before the regional board, but the affected sanitary district decided to fight its own battle, Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger said.

He predicted that by hiring a consultant to show it is making an honest effort Mill Valley will avoid a building ban. He was not so sure about the prospects for Richardson Bay Sanitary District.

The contractor hired for $4,000 to bail Mill Valley out of its sewage problem is Yoder-Trotter-Orlob and Associates of Walnut Creek.

Half of the consulting engineers' work, which Seeger said will be beneficial to the whole improvement district, will be financed by the district.

The board made the remaining $2,000 of work contingent on Mill Valley's willingness to pay for it. Seeger said the money will be spent to engineer interim treatment facilities for the city while the improvement district develops a master plan for disposal of Southern Marin sewage.

Jean Barnard, a Mill Valley councilman, said her city will probably put up the $2,000. "I don't think we have any choice," she said. "The only thing is some of our constituents wish there were a building ban."

On the other hand she also noted that developers have panicked and begun submitting plans before they would have otherwise.

Since the water quality control board has announced it will set a hearing March 25 on whether to issue an order barring treated sewage that doesn't meet its standard, the consultant has only two weeks to work with, Seeger said.

However, Seeger said the work can be done in that time.

Seeger said the goal is a cease-and-desist order that will give the improvement district time to find the most effective means of water disposal for Southern Marin.

Improvement District A, which includes all of Southern Marin except Tiburon Sanitary District and Belvedere, was formed last year under pressure from the Regional Water Quality Control Board to end all dumping in Richardson and San Francisco bays.

Dixie Candidates' Night Scheduled

All seven contestants for two trustee seats open on the Dixie School District board will appear at a candidates' night at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the multipurpose room of Santa Marguerita School, according to Mrs. Stewart Lindauer, chairman of the school's Parent-Teachers Association.

District voters will choose successors in the April 20 election for Trustees Earl H. Koehler and Melvin R. Sidham. Neither trustee is seeking reelection.

Injured In Cotati

Hazel Brody Tomlinson, 26, of Santa Rosa, was treated at Petaluma General Hospital for head and knee cuts suffered in a two-car accident at 11:45 p.m. yesterday at Old Redwood Highway and East Cotati Avenue, Cotati. Police lacked details of the accident.

Tam Sale For Park Gets Nod

Directors of the Tamalpais Community Services District has tentatively approved purchase of the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club hall at 203 Marin Avenue, Board Chairman Glenn Lambacher reported.

Lambacher said the district agreed Tuesday to buy the building from the club for $13,388 then lease it back to the club for $133.88 a month. The improvement club will use the purchase moneyto pay off a loan on 11.5 acres of land it owns on Tennessee Valley Road, she said, then donate the property to the serivces district for a park.

The Tamalpais Community Services District also:

TREE PLANTING — Scheduled a public tree planting party on Shoreline Highway at Laurel Avenue for 9:30 a.m. Saturday. The 36 eucalyptus and pine trees to be planted have been purchased by the district and will be watered and maintained by the county, he reported.

VALLEY PLAN — Learned that the district's parks and recreation committee will work with the county in preliminary planning for a Tamalpais Valley master plan which the county will begin studying in June. Harvey Bragdon, chief of current planning for Marin County, will discuss the proposed master plan at 8 p.m. April 1 in the improvement club hall.

AGREEMENT — Signed a joint powers agreement to participate in the Marin Municipal Water District's study of sewage disposal in Southern Marin

DO IT YOURSELF CORNER

TIP OF THE WEEK: Lumber prices are often quoted by the board foot. To figure the number of board feet in a piece of lumber, first determine its square feet. This is the width in feet times the length in feet. Then multiply the square feet by the thickness in inches. However, if a board is less than one inch thick, multiply by one.

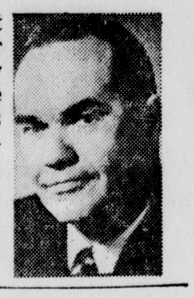
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Results Are Still Out On Smoking During A Pregnancy



Almost all drugs taken by the pregnant mother cross (via the placental) from her circulation to that of the fetus. The majority of these agents neither benefit nor harm the baby. A few chemicals have adverse effects but reactions take place only when the products are used during the first three months, when the fetus is developing. Thalidomide is the most notorious example of this situation. If the mother is a morphine addict, the baby usually becomes addicted while in the uterus. Following birth, the drug supply is cut off and unless the newborn receives gradually-reduced doses of morphine, he is likely to develop severe withdrawal symptoms.

NICOTINE ALSO passes into the fetal circulation via the placenta. This occurs every time the pregnant woman smokes. As a rule, the habit does not harm the infant although it may temprarily increase the fetal heart beat. A report in Medical Tribune may alter our thinking along these lines. British physicians found that the babies born to mothers who smoked more than 10 cigarettes a day during pregnancy had a greater chance of developing convulsions than infants of nonsmoking women.

THIS EVIDENCE is based on an English study of 17,000 babies born in a one week period in 1958. Eighty-nine per cent of these children were reexamined seven years later and the results are still being processed. The investigators plan an additional examination when the children reach the age of 12.

ACCORDING TO the report, 18 per cent of the mothers who smoked 10 or more cigarettes a day had children who developed convulsions in the first seven years of life. This was in contrast to the 13 per cent who did not smoke. The actual number of epileptic children in the first group was 93, some whom were severely afflicted.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NEEDS MORE COVERS

H. R. writes: Is it a sign of poor health to require more covers than other people do at night?

REPLY

Some persons who are always cold have a thyroid deficiency; others are underweight, under par, or anemic. Many healthy individuals appear to have a lower thermostat than others and always complain of the room being cold and the need for warmer clothes. Electric (or wool) blankets and flannel pajamas are made to order for these people.

ECTOPIC PREGNANCY

Mrs. E. G. writes: Is it possible for a woman to have a baby after an ectopic pregnancy?

REPLY

Yes. Ectopic refers to conception outside the uterus — usually in a tube. As a rule, this tube is destroyed by the pregnancy but the other will continue to function.

SPASTIC GULLET

D. E. writes: What can be done for a spastic esophagus?

REPLY

Avoid rough and irritating foods. In addition, drugs, such as belladonna or ProBanthine relax the esophagus. Sips of warm water also help. In some instances, the tightened area must be mechanically stretched.

GAGS WHEN BRUSHING

D. O. C. writes: Why do I gag when I brush my teeth?

REPLY

You probably have an overly sensitive gag reflex.

Today's Health Hint — Never rub the eyes when the hands are dirty.

Nixon Asks Major Overhaul Of Courts

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) —President Nixon called for a major streamlining of the nation's court operations today, likening the current chaotic system to "trying to brush back a flood with a broom."

He endorsed establishment of a National Center for State Courts to conduct research and exchange information on procedural problems.

He also recommended use of "parajudges" —trained administrators working under the supervision of attorneys —to help relieve judges of some of their administrative burdens.

"A system of criminal justice that can guarantee neither a speedy trial nor a safe community cannot excuse its failure by pointing to an elaborate system of safeguards for the accused," Nixon said in a speech prepared for the National Conference on the Judiciary.

"Justice dictates not only that the innocent man go free, but that the guilty be punished for his crime," the President added.

Nixon again called for reform of the nation's prisons which he said too long have been "warehouses for human rubbish" which merely furnish inmates "an advanced course in crime."

Nixon addressed the group at the conference center here following an hour helicopter flight from Washington.

His audience at the four-day conference consisted of 600 judges, lawyers and law enforcement officials from practically every state and level of government.

The President cited crowded court dockets as one of the major obstacles problems in the judicial process.

"justice delayed is not only justice denied," he said. "It is also justice circumvented, justice mocked and the system of justice undermined."

He noted that accused persons in criminal cases in Great Britain are brought to trial within 60 days after arrest, and most appeals are decided within three months after they are filed. In this country, however, the delay between arrest and trial is more than five months in New York and Philadelphia, more than six months in Ohio, and six to nine months in Chicago, he observed.

The average time for processing appeals is 18 months, he said.

"Interminable delay in civil cases; unconscionable delays in criminal cases; inconsistent and unfair bail impositions; a steadily growing backlog of work that threatens to make the delays worse tomorrow than they are today—all this concerns everyone who wants to see justice done," Nixon said.

"Overcrowded penal institutions; unremitting pressure on judges and prosecutors to process cases by plea bargaining; . . . the clogging of court calendars with inappropriate or relatively unimportant matters—all this sends everyone in this system of justice home at night feeling as if they have been trying to brush back a flood with a broom."

The President said the problem has been compounded by the fact that the nation has turned increasingly to the courts to cure deep-seated ills of society and as a result the courts have "burdens unknown to the legal system a generation ago."

Limiting reform to more judges, more police and more lawyers operating in the same system will simply produce "more backlogs, more delays, more litigation, more jails and more criminals," Nixon declared.

"What is needed now is genuine reform—the kind of change that requires imagination and daring—that demands a focus on ultimate goals."

Bill To Restrict Liquor Sales

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Hoping to reduce traffic accidents caused by drunken drivers, Sen. John L. Harmer yesterday introduced a bill to restrict liquor store sale hours to between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The Glendale Republican said a study by a special task force found that many drivers who had been drinking prior to major accidents had purchased a bottle at a liquor store within an hour of the crash.

Harmer said if the state can "shut off the supply," there is a good chance "we could ameliorate the probability of accidents."

The lawmaker said the off-sale liquor industry received his proposal in a "mild way," although he didn't say whether it would support the measure.

Currently, package liquor stores can open at 6 a.m. and remain open until 2 a.m.

Reagan Loss Over Cuts In Medi-Cal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has suffered his first major defeat of the legislative session over the same issue which earlier won him his biggest victory—Medi-Cal.

Rejecting administration money arguments, the Assembly Wednesday passed to the Senate a bill rescinding many of Reagan's controversial Medi-Cal cuts.

The vote was 54-22. It came after a day of hurriedly-called Republican caucuses, fruitless negotiations with the administration and angry tempers.

A bi-partisan coalition of 14 Republicans and 40 Democrats provided the necessary two-thirds vote for the bill, authored by GOP Assemblyman Gordon W. Duffy of Hanford. All the no votes were Republicans.

The dramatic 54th and deciding vote was cast by Republican Assemblyman W. Don MacGillivray of Santa Barbara.

"I think it's a good bill," McGillivray told newsmen afterward. "Why should I be worried about what the governor's thoughts are on it?"

The bill would restore some Medi-Cal benefits for foster and crippled children and mental patients. School children on Medi-Cal once again could obtain free eyeglasses. More prescription drugs would be available for patients. Nursing home fees, now $12.60 per day, would return to $14.

Also, counties would be guaranteed that their costs would not increase because of the state cuts.

It was over the county guarantee—along with easing of the prescription drug restrictions—that negotiations broke down between Reagan and Duffy. Sources said Reagan's aides insisted a lid should be placed on the amount of money the state would reimburse the counties for Medi-Cal expenditures.

Duffy said he would try to work out a compromise with Reagan before pushing the bill in the Senate. The administration has threatened a veto if agreement cannot be reached.

Reagan announced the Medi-Cal rollbacks in December to avoid a $140 million deficit. He won a crucial legislative victory on Feb. 22 when assembly Republicans killed a Democratic bill to restore all services.

Duffy estimated his measure to restore some benefits would cost $30 million during the remainder of this fiscal year, which ends June 30. Reagan has proposed a broad welfare and Medi-Cal "reform" program he hopes will take effect during the next fiscal year.

Duffy's cost estimate was disputed by Assembly Republican leader Robert T. Monagan of Tracy, who contended the figure could hit $80 million.

"There is no way this money is going to be available," Monagan argued during floor debate. "I don't want to be on record as adding to the already strained financial burden of the state."

But Duffy countered "there are children that are being hurt" and counties threatened with property tax increases.

Medi-Cal provides free health care services for 2.4 million low-income Californians, most of whom are on welfare.

In a plea for Republicans to join Democrats in opposing Reagan, assembly speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, told his colleagues:

"We go around beating our chests about being independent. We don't have to line up after 'the man' every single time. This bill deals with people's health and the kind of medical care they receive. For once, let's do what we know we have to do."

It was the first time this session Democrats have overcome Reagan's opposition and passed a bill requiring a two-thirds vote. Their new majority is a slim 43-37.

The bill was the creation of a bi-partisan committee chaired by Duffy and appointed by Moretti.

When floor debate first began Wednesday, Duffy wanted to send the bill back to committee request. But Democrats balked. Then a tentative agreement between Reagan and Duffy fell apart.

At one point during the five hours of jockeying, administration lobbyists warned Duffy he could not get the bill passed without Reagan's support. Duffy said he could.

Contractors, Environment Compared

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —Life on earth can be improved but man's efforts must be compatible with the processes of nature, Bureau of Reclamation Commissioner Ellis L. Armstrong told the National Convention of the Associated General Contractors yesterday.

"We must make certain that our projects meet every standard in the President's efforts to improve the quality of the environment" he said.

"We must manage our natural resources and our man-made environment to make certain they are compatible."

Armstrong said in a speech that the reclamation bureau was placing greater dependence on an interdisciplinary approach to planning and construction "which will make us more perceptive of all the interrelated impacts of our work and more viable in fulfilling the needs of the 70s."

He also reviewed the status of major planned projects such as the Central Arizona Project, and Auburn Dam in California and the Crystal Dam on Colorado.

He said it is too early to tell the effect of the President's suspension of the Davis-Bacon Act requirements on federal construction and expressed hope it would help control inflation. He said rising prices, if not curbed, will mean appropriations will not cover added costs.

Armstrong said the bureau's construction budget proposed for 1972 will total nearly $267 million. He called it one of the largest budgets we have had dollarwise but noted a lot of work is underway and available funds must be spread around thinner than is desirable.

Armstrong said the nation is losing ground in construction of electric generating facilities.

"Brownouts," he said, "have resulted from the inability of the utilities and the environmentalists, or at least some of the most vocal of the latter group, to find a middle road on where to locate the plants, how to route transmission lines and how to minimize air and water pollution."

He also said siting for nuclear plants had been blocked by fear of nuclear pollution and accidental explosion.

"It also has been an uphill battle for the industry to construct thermal generating stations utilizing conventional fuel because of growing concern over air and water pollution. The concern is not wholly unjustified."

Museums Shut; Strike Spreads

ROME (UPI) — Museums stayed shut today, gasoline pumps closed again and bakers called another strike for Friday.

Museum and library attendants throughout the country were in the fourth day of a nationwide strike for higher pay and larger staffs. Some of them demonstrated outside the Education Ministry Wednesday.

Rome gasoline distributors began the week's second 24-hour strike Wednesday night, demanding higher pay and a simultaneous lunch break. Under present arrangements, attendants take lunch breaks in two shifts.

Flying Around, Top To Bottom

GENEVA (UPI) —Georges Buttex plans to fly around the world the hard way —over the top and under the bottom.

He plans to do it in a small, 350-horsepower single-engine plane crammed with cannisters containing thousands of gallons of fuel. Takeoff time is set for exactly 8 p.m. next Dec. 10 from Geneva's International Airport.

Precisely 240 hours or 10 days later, if all goes well, Buttex will put down again on the same runway, having written a new chapter in aviation —the first man to have flown around the world by way of the North and South Poles, a flight of 24,000 miles.

Georges Buttex is Swiss, 49 years old, married and with four children. He has the permanently crinkled eyes of a professional pilot and the soft, calm voice of most flying instructors.

"About three years ago I was looking at a book of flying records and I saw that people have flown around the world before but only around the equator," he said. "So I thought, why not up one side, over the North Pole, down the other side, over the South Pole and back up again to the starting point.

"One look at the weather charts soon told me the reason. If you fly around the equator the weather is more or less constant. But over the top and bottom you meet every possible condition.

"In fact, the South Pole is permanently swept by gales going up to 100 knots and the only time a light plane could make the passage is during 10 days in December.

"So," Bottex said simply, "I decided to try it."

From Geneva, he will head north and two hours later will be astride the Greenwich Meridian which he will follow for the next 10 days. There will be 180 hours of flying and 60 hours on the ground for refuelling and completing formalities to establish records. The first stop will be Amchitka in the Aleutian islands. Then Nadi in the Fijis; Christchurch, New Zealand; William's Base, South Pole; Amundsen-Scott Base, South Pole; Accra, Ghana. Then Geneva.

Buttex will actually take over the controls only on takeoff and landing or if something goes wrong. The real pilot will be a miniature computer installed on board. Altitude, climate and meteorological data already have been computerized by electronic engineers and forms the "memory" of the computer flight commander. This way Buttex will be able to sleep —in itself an accomplishment in the small cockpit and requiring an astronaut's psychological training —and thus establish speed records otherwise impossible.

Average speed for the flight will be 150 m.p.h.

BOULDER, COLO.

Works At Being Quiet Town

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — This may be the quietest town of its size in the United States and retired Air Force Lt. Col. Tom Martin has a lot to do with that quietness.

Martin, originally from Longview, Tex., is "Boulder noise control officer." He took the job in this 60,000-person university town nestled in the foothills of the Colorado Rockies a year ago.

His job is to enforce what he believes is one of the most enlightened yet realistic noise control ordinances in the United States and all on a basic program budget in 1970 of $11,000. That includes his salary, equipment, part time help —everything.

Boulder, home of the University of Colorado, the National Center for Atmospheric Research, and many other scientific operations is noted for its concern with the environment.

But Martin believes the town's noise control program could easily be applied to any town, and he says he is concerned that the experience he and others have gathered won't be getting the attention it deserves in President Nixon's noise standards under the Environmental Safety Act.

How it started was that a group of approximately 2,300 petitioned for —and got —a "Mayor's Committee on Noise." The committee began by setting out to establish a rational noise limit, measured in decibels. Various decibel levels were tested on members of the petition group and, Martin said, the tests "actually demonstrated to those signing what the actual irritation level for humans is . . . "

Martin defines the level finally established, 80 decibels, as "the point where you can no longer carry on a conversation without raising your voice."

Then the City Council drew up a simple, one-page ordinance and hired Martin to enforce it.

They got a bargain.

Martin said court summonses issued to violators of the noise limit must be carefully documented with measurements taken at a 25-foot distance and charted on a graph. There was no such equipment available when Martin started, so he designed and built his own.

During 1970 (the ordinance took effect Feb. 20), Martin issued 625 warning citations and 35 court summonses to noise violators.

He explained that the 80 decibel limit contains one variance —for trucks. "Even a well-mufflered truck can't maintain the 80 decibel level, so trucks over 10,000 pounds are allowed up to 88 decibels, but restricted to main thoroughfares during the evening and night."

Why all the concern over a few decibels of noise one way or the other?

Martin, well versed in his second career, reels off the statistics in reply:

—"Anything over 80 decibels penetrates your mind, causing you to immediately lose four seconds concentration, and four seconds before you can get back . . . "

—"It hurts older people the most, because their inner ears have grown more rigid and can't 'knock out' noise . . . they're actually in physical pain."

—"Noise, even as low as 78 decibels, could kill a heart patient, because noise 'shock effect' (like someone pointing a gun at you) speeds up breathing ... constricts capillaries . . . your heart is getting less blood."

—"At around 83 decibels, you're going to have 50 per cent more cholesterol in your blood stream than mine, which is just shortening your life . . . "

Martin can go on, and has, in lectures before thousands in Boulder, including students whom he finds very receptive to his facts and cooperative in muffling "hot" cars and motorcycles.

Older Drivers Told: Drive Less At Night

NEW YORK (UPI)—A firm specializing in insurance for the older driver suggests such persons cut down on nighttime driving, doing as little of same as possible.

"An older driver's eyes tend to be slower in reacting to changes in light than a younger person, and as nighttime driving requires a constant adjustment to oncoming headlights, night driving presents a problem for many older drivers," said Robert Pollack, executive vice president of the firm, Colonial Penn Insurance Co.

Lavish Scheme To Build London Globe

LONDON (UPI) —Since that June day in 1613 when William Shakespeare's theater burned down, London has survived for 358 years without a replica of the Globe Theater. Now comes the American.

Sam Wanamaker, the American actor and moviemaker, is trying to build a Shakespearean Disneyland-on-the-Thames; whose heart would be a precise copy of Shakespeare's Globe.

Wanamaker wants to take over a huge chunk of central London — a riverside stretch three-quarters of a mile long — and put up yesterday.

A Globe theater—open to the sky as Shakespeare's was but with a plastic roof in the rather likely event of rain—is just the start. Wanamaker also wants:

—To reassemble "an authentic 17th Century street" containing "restaurants, pubs, coffee shops, exhibitions and craft shops."

— To reconstruct totally-ruined Winchester Palace for use as "a concert room for music of the Purcell period."

—A major hotel on the bank of the Thames.

—A center for scholarly Shakespeare studies.

—To convert railway bridge arches "into a museum devoted to the history of prisons, Dickensian London and to the 19th Century labor movement."

—To create studio space for artists being tossed out of a huge area they currently occupy around London's docks.

—Eventually to include "hotels, houses, shops, apartment buildings, open spaces, playgrounds, office buildings, a trade center and another theater, should the demand warrant it, for performances of the works of Shakespeare's great contemporaries."

All this is, perhaps, not so wild a dream.

Wanamaker has enlisted impressive support. He has a board of trustees which reads like Who's Who. Government authorities back his idea. Businesses are behind it. His "Globe Playhouse Trust" is a going non-profit concern.

But most of the land is locked in 125-year leases owned by Liang, a huge property development company. It wants to put up not only a replica Globe but towering office buildings.

Wanamaker is now working to reconcile his plan with Liang's. It seems likely that something will be worked out.

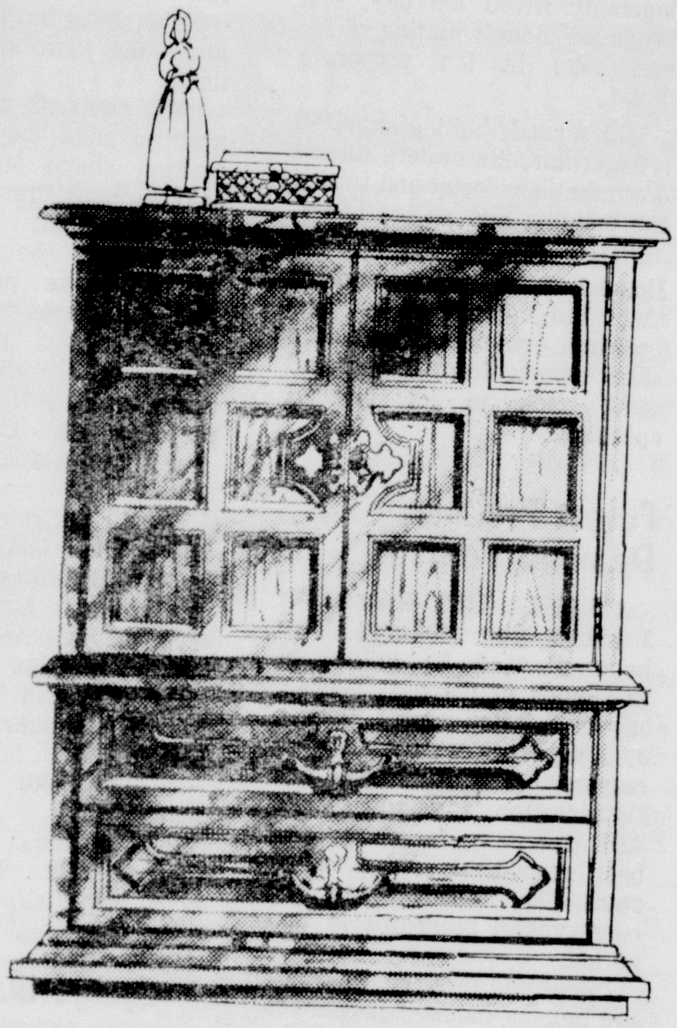
Tonight . . . WHILE MARIN SLEEPS



Employees of Casa Marin will be busily engaged in placing 13-HOUR SALE price tags on many, many home furnishings throughout our store. Why? Because the tremendous volume of business usually anticipated at this season has not come in — to date. A lag in traffic, with its resulting loss in movement of goods, cannot be tolerated for many days.

Fresh, new merchandise arrives almost daily and with these arrivals comes the problem of locating such items in the store . . . and in the warehouse. Now, to move out some $20,000 worth of overstock in one day takes some real doing. And the only way that we know to accomplish same is with a hotter-than-hot, door-busting sale. Consequently, we are offering TOMORROW (Friday) $115,400 worth of quality home furnishings for only $87,275 . . . every single item at a substantial saving to you.

This certainly will be the BIGGEST ONE-DAY SAVINGS OPPORTUNITY OF THE YEAR. So don't be late. Casa Marin opens at 9 A.M. tomorrow morning. No matter what furnishings you need or want for your home, you'll find them . . . and at almost unbelievable low, low prices.

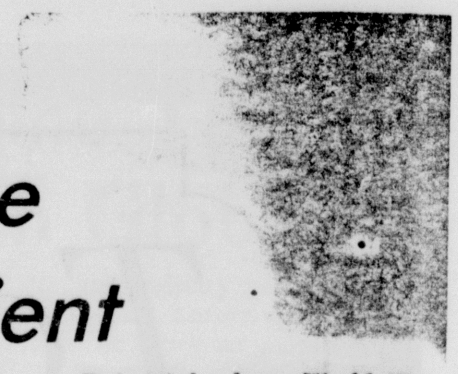
SAKE MAKING PLANT

Honolulu Only Place Outside Of The Orient



HONOLULU (UPI)—Because a Japanese without his sake is an unhappy Japanese, Honolulu is the site of the only concern outside the Orient that makes Japan's favorite brew.

And the brewery here is the only one anywhere that produces sake (pronounced Sah-kee) the year around. It bears the intriguing name of Honolulu Sake Brewery and Ice Co., and there's a story to that, too.

The brewery was founded in 1908 to supply sake to the thousands of sugar plantation workers imported from Japan as cheap labor.

"With the meager wages these workers earned, there was barely enough money left to indulge in the privilege of drinking sake," said assistant brewmaster Emil A. Nomura. "And sake from Japan was expensive, because of import duties and things."

The brewery was completely refrigerated, necessary in Hawaii's tropical climate because the fermentation-mold process is easily spoiled by heat. This also made it possible to produce sake all year long, instead of only in winter months as is the tradition in Japan.

The company did so well that it sold hundreds of thousands of gallons of the beverage—until Prohibition. Then a little ingenuity saved the day, and produced today's mating of ice and sake in the corporate name.

With a ready-built, giant-sized refrigerator, the owners turned down the thermostat and turned the building into an ice house.

When repeal came, the Honolulu Sake Brewery and Ice Co., Ltd., brought in new brewing equipment and five sake experts from Japan and went back to its original operation.

But not for long. World War II brought a ban on the use of rice—sake's principal ingredient—for anything but food. So once again the firm switched products.

"We couldn't use rice for making sake, so we started making shoyu (soy sauce)," said company President Shinsaburo S. Sumida.

Nowadays the firm, which resumed sake production in 1948, sells about 100,000 gallons of sake a year (it still makes shoyu, and also vinegar). Two-thirds is sold in Hawaii, and the rest goes to California for distribution across the United States.

The firm's master brewer, Takao Nihei, has been honored by the Brewmasters Association of Japan for a number of technical achievements in the brewing process.

Before World War II, there were seven sake breweries in Hawaii, but now only the Honolulu Sake Brewery remains. Why?

Forest Product Demand To Soar

ATLANTA (UPI)—More than 3 billion tree seedlings have been planted in industrial woodlands in the past decade, says a forestry expert. Vernon J. Knight, director of natural resources for Kimberly-Clark Corporation, says more than 6,000 company foresters have been responsible for spending some $70 million a year on conservation programs in that period.

Intensified forestry programs are helping industry prepare to meet a "soaring demand for forest products expected by the end of this century," according to Knight. Of the 510 million acres of commercial woodlands in the United States, about 65 million acres are held by industrial firms, he said.

Dangerous Homes

ROME (UPI)—Accidents in the home kill 7,500 persons and injure 1 million in Italy every year, according to official statistics. This compares with 10,000 killed in traffic accidents and 4,000 in accidents at working places.

Scientists See Breakthrough On Mars Data In Summer Pass

HILO, Hawaii (UPI)—Scientists at the world's highest observatory are undertaking a special year-long project to probe the mysteries of Mars.

On Aug. 10, Mars makes its closest approach to the earth in 15 years, and the Mauna Kea Observatory atop a 13,796-foot mountain will offer the best viewing platform in the Northern Hemisphere.

Dr. William M. Sinton, director of the observatory, is in charge of the Mars program and, with a team of astronomers, is keeping a close watch on the water vapor and carbon dioxide in the Red Planet's thin atmosphere throughout the year of study.

Sinton hopes the monitoring of water vapor will provide clues to the planet's weather patterns and that the carbon dioxide studies will throw some new light on the topography of Mars, the fourth planet from the sun and the next outside Earth.

The scientists are particularly interested in Mars' polar ice caps and their seasonal melting patterns. And, although the planet has been mapped over the years, doubts have arisen as to whether areas assumed to be mountains really are.

Water vapor and carbon dioxide are measured by spectroscopy, a method in which the image of light from a telescope is placed onto a device which then breaks the light into a rainbow-like spectrum. The spectrum is then photographed and analyzed.

"By June, Mars will be close enough for us to undertake the different kinds of observations necessary to look for rare gases in the planet's atmosphere," Sinton said. "We just don't know what we'll find."

Sinton said the observatory on the island of Hawaii which houses an 88-inch telescope, is ideal for viewing the unusual apposition of Earth and Mars because Mars will be low in the southern horizon for the more northerly latitudes, and thus more distorted.

Sinton said "Mauna Kea's height places the observatory above 80 per cent or more of the water vapor in the Earth's atmosphere, another distorting factor, and the clearer atmosphere provided by the location results in high quality viewing."

Skunk Scent Used To Make Perfume

CHICAGO (UPI)—That perfume you're wearing may attract a real stinker —and not the man who's wooing you.

While the skunk's contribution to the world of perfumes does not elicit enthusiastic response, certain perfume manufacturers value the scent for its persistency, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, and treat the yellow, odoriferous liquid for use as a perfume base.

The Prince And The Naked Lady

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles was in the audience at "Heloise and Abelard" but unlike a lot of his countrymen he came to see the play and not the scene in which delectable Diana Rigg appeared in the nude.

For it is now becoming apparent that in the heir to the throne Britain has the most enthusiastic royal patron of the arts since his own great-great-great grandfather, Prince Albert, consort of Queen Victoria, a century ago.

Prince Charles goes to most good plays, musical happenings, serious films and the ballet. His private life includes many friends who are actors, musicians, painters and the like.

The 21-year-old son of Queen Elizabeth is even better qualified than Prince Albert for promoting the arts. He plays the cello and trumpet, collects classical records and likes to sing and act as often as possible.

When he went to Gordonstoun School he was a member of both the choir and the orchestra and took part in a number of public concerts in Scottish towns. At Cambridge University he was an active member of the Footlights Club which stages topical revues and played in several, with roles ranging from a garbageman to a curate.

He chose to have an orchestral concert conducted by Yehudi Menuhin for his 21st birthday party and has since paid a visit to the famous violinist's school for gifted young musicians at Stoke d'Abernon.

Queen Mother Elizabeth, herself a music lover, is delighted to have her grandson to escort her to concerts nowadays. They attended one together at the Royal Festival Hall in aid of charity. Charles also has been to private recitals and was at Covent Garden to watch the Royal Ballet dance "Sleeping Beauty."

As Prince of Wales, Prince Charles takes official interest in the affairs of the Welsh National Opera Company and they recently gave a gala performance in his honor in Cardiff. He opened a new theater in Leeds with some frank observations about modern drama in his speech. He was the first royal guest at the annual luncheon of the Performing Right Society at which its composer members presented him with a specially written work for the cello.

Rome Is Going Bankrupt Regardless Of History

ROME (UPI)—Rome has seven ancient hills named Capitoline, Palatine, Aventine, Quirinale, Viminal, Caelius and Esquiline. The tallest is Esquiline at 195 feet.

The city also has a modern day mountain—named debt. It now stands at 1.5 trillion lire ($2.4 billion) and is growing at a rate of 460 million lire ($732,480) a day.

If Rome was a business, it would declare bankruptcy.

But as capital of Italy, center of Roman Catholicism and one of history's most honored cities, Rome cannot go broke. She just goes on, living in rags on handouts and hopes.

The city owes state and commercial banks 540 billion lire ($864 million) and four of every five lire Rome collects in revenue goes to bankers.

Every city agency is in debt up to its ears. The city bus company Atac alone is 50 billion lire ($80 million) in the red on its 1970 operations.

The Royal Prerogatives Prevail

LONDON (UPI) —If it weren't for the vigilance of the House of Lords Queen Elizabeth wouldn't have a whale, a porpoise or a dolphin to her name today.

The suspicious elders of the upper house of Parliament massed behind her majesty with their votes as their ancestors once did in defense of earlier monarchs with broadsword and battle axe.

And if the Queen happens to want whale steak for the deep freeze at Buckingham Palace all she has to do when the next one is caught or strands itself ashore is pass the word to send it on.

Of course this will never happen, as Prime Minister Edward Heath's government thought the noble lords would understand when it introduced a bill to wipe out obsolete laws dating back 800 years and giving the throne a number of outdated privileges.

But no one in Britain tangles with tradition with impunity. And in spite of a witty plea by Lord Hailsham, the lord chancellor, to help modernize the statute books, the Earl of Cranbrook argued against taking away the Queen's right to first refusal of the seagoing mammals.

There was the government on one side and Cranbrook and tradition on the other and the vote was no contest. The Tory administration suffered a 53 to 30 defeat on that particular amendment, not that anybody in the outside world noticed in the furor over the bankruptcy at Rolls Royce announced the same day.

Actually Cranbrook wanted information on the capture of whales, porpoises and dolphins sent to a central point so any museum in need of a specimen could stake a quick claim. He thought the present arrangement as good as any substitute the Tories could come up with —and besides, it was hallowed by time.

Both the Queen and the heir to the throne, the Prince of Wales, had informed the government they would place their prerogatives at the disposal of Parliament for the purposes of the "Wild Creatures and Forest Laws Bill," knowing well that it isn't easy to break old customs.

For some years Queen Elizabeth's courtiers have been doing very little about collecting what are known as "feudal tenures." These are objects or duties owed the throne in return for the right to occupy certain estates. For example the Dukes of Marlborough and Wellington still have to present small flags to the Queen on the anniversaries of the battles won by their illustrious forebears at Blenheim in 1704 and Waterloo in 1815.

The Lord Mayor of London should pay six horseshoes with nails every year as rent for land where a forge was set up in St. Clement's Parish in 1235. And the Marquis of Savernake is undoubtedly ready to blow a horn if the Queen enters Savernake Forest.

But it is unlikely the Manor of Aylesbury will ever be called upon to supply straw for the Queen's bed, rushes for her bedchamber floor and three eels and two geese.

Escapist Weekends Are Urged

Toronto Telegram News Serivce

LONDON — Their lives made miserable by strike after strike, their pride hurt by the collapse of the prestigious Rolls-Royce Co., and their pockets hit by spiralling inflation, Britons are being urged to "get away from it all" and seek the Mediterranean sun.

As a price war between the country's package-tour operators has shot up, so the cost of an escapist long weekend has come spiralling down.

For instance, one firm is telling Britons to forget the postal strike and come and spend a long weekend on the Spanish island of Majorca for $25. This includes jet flight, hotel room and breakfast.

For an extra $5 all the meals are thrown in.

Britain's biggest package-tour operator, Clarkson, is offering some eye-opening bargains to customers who can get away for four or five days during the winter.

For $52, the company will put you on a modern jet, fly you all the way to Tunisia, and give you four days at a hotel in the North African country.

When it is remembered that the normal return fare by scheduled airline to Tunisia is $200, the size of the bargain becomes immediately apparent.

For five days in Majorca (with flight, hotel room, and all meals included) Clarksons only asks a mere $37.

The extras are the money you spend on drinks, bullfights and souvenirs.

Horison, another company that has joined the competition, has offered eight days at Majorca for a return fare of $37 — which covers half your food costs.

The minimum return fair to Majorca by scheduled airline costs $76.

So it is clear that the claim of the tour operator that "these are the most fantastic prices in the history of holidays abroad" is not a wild exaggeration.

Hundreds of Britons are taking advantage of these package-tour terms, for it is obviously much cheaper traveling this way than it is going independently.

The companies are able to offer such cheap holidays by chartering fleets of modern jet airlines on a year-to-year basis.

They guarantee to fill hotels all the year around and in turn get highly favorable terms, as this enables hotel owners to keep their doors open and staff employed even in the off-season.

Working on a high-turn-over, low-profit basis, the package companies are growing rapidly.

One company makes a mere $5 profit on each two-week holiday it sells, but finds it nonetheless a highly profitable business.

As a special inducement, children under 12 are given holidays at half the adult price at certain times of the year.

A family with two children can, for instance, have two weeks in Greece at Easter for a total outlay of under $500.

Travel Agent Sees Luxury Rides The Biggest Market For Trains

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI)— Luxury rail travel is alive and well in Alameda.

Richard R. Reynolds believes so strongly in the future of the passenger train that he has bought six railway cars, several with famous histories, and uses them in his travel agent business. And business is good.

"People want to travel by train and it's just a matter of providing them with good accommodations and food," said Reynolds of Great Western Tours.

"I won't say they want to travel regularly by train but there is a tremendous market for tours."

Reynolds has patterned his operations after the Pullman Co., for generations synonymous with elegant service.

"At Great Western we are continuing the tradition of the Pullman Company by operating our own small fleet of sleeping, dining and lounge cars on our tours. With our own handpicked employes, we can control all service on the train," he said.

Great Western has its own staff of porters, chefs and waiters on call for its many rail jaunts.

"One chef cooked for President Roosevelt," Reynolds said with pride.

Reynolds, whose offices are in San Francisco, keeps his cars at a railroad yard near here. "We attach our equipment to existing trains or have the railroad furnish a locomotive," he explained.

The cars include the former Gulf, Mobile and Ohio Pullman car named Samuel King Tigrett, after a pioneering railroad executive.

The Tigrett was on the famed "Midnight Special," immortalized in a song written about a convict watching the train go by his jail cell each day.

Another car, which Reynolds now calls "The Sierra Madre," was built in 1923 for the 20th Century Limited that ran between Chicago and New York. It has a buffet lounge with six bedrooms and a small kitchen.

"We have another that was built in 1914 and belonged to the private car pool that Pullman ran," Reynolds said.

"Walter Chrysler once leased it and Paderewski, the pianist and premier of Poland, leased it several times."

Nader Is Totally Dedicated

Toronto Telegram News Service

NEW YORK — Wine, women and money are the three temptations to which men often succumb.

But Ralph Nader, scourge of American industry, is interested in none of these things. Ralph is totally dedicated to his work.

The only women in his life are his two sisters, Laura, 40, and Claire, 42. Like their famous brother, both are professional successes who think nothing of working a 20-hour day.

Claire, who has never married, is a social scientist at the Oak Ridge National Laboratories in Tennessee. Laura, married to a research physicist and the mother of three children, is a professor of anthropology at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Dark-haired Laura, a good-natured woman with inquiring brown eyes, is always ready for an earnest chat on her favorite subjects — "and I guess that covers a pretty wide field," she laughs.

"Lately, I've become very involved with the status of women. That status definitely needs upgrading, but of course it won't be accomplished by telling all women to become professionals.

"I still believe, though, that women outside the professional sphere fail to utilize their own power. This power is their leisure time, but they don't use it.

"They seem to lack respect for themselves and consequently for each other. If they did regard themselves as responsible, capable individuals, they too would be active and creative in politics, ecology, peace movements and consumer affairs.

"In my family you could be anything you wanted to be. It didn't matter whether you were a boy or a girl, that is, beyond a certain point. If you wanted to do something or become someone you did it, and the family helped all they could."

Laura's three children were born during university holidays, although the first, in 1964, arrived just two weeks before her mother was due back at work.

"There's no maternity leave for faculty members," Laura said, "so for the first month or so I would nurse the baby, run to the university to give a lecture, and then run back home again. It didn't hurt her.

"You know, what we should do in this country is stop talking about childrearing as if women were widows. Child-rearing is the responsibility of both parents — not just women.

"And since most women are housewives, we should upgrade the job of housekeeper. American housewives have one of the hardest jobs in the world, simply because of their isolation."

The Nader family is a close-knit one and Laura talks affectionately about her "baby" brother.
